

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTORY.

TO THE MEMBERS

OF THE

THIRTY-FIRST LEGISLATIVE SESSION OF MINNESOTA

THIS MANUAL IS RESPECTFULLY

DEDICATED.

The Legislative Manual of eighteen hundred and ninety-nine is divided as to contents into three parts. Part I. contains the state organic act, act authorizing a state government, act of admission, declaration of independence, articles of confederation, constitutions of the State of Minnesota and the United States, territorial and state government, legislative statistics and Jefferson's Manual of Parliamentary Practice. Part II. contains history, resources, and growth of state, and review of state departments and institutions. Part III. contains roster of officers of state departments and institutions, county officers and federal officers appointed from Minnesota, election, population and financial statistics of the state, and such miscellaneous matter as has usually been published in the Manual and that has been considered of general interest.

The publication of this Manual is authorized under chapter 122, General Laws of 1893, as amended by chapter 64, General Laws of 1895. A synopsis of the same herewith follows:

SECTION 1. It shall be the duty of the secretary of state to cause to be prepared and published, for the use of the senate and house of representatives, a book to be denominated "Legislative Manual," which shall contain the constitution of the United States, and the organic act and the constitution of this state, Jefferson's Manual, rules of order of the senate and house of representatives of this state, joint rules of the senate and house, lists of senators and members of the house and employes of each house, statistical and other information of the same description with that heretofore published in the Legislative Manual.

SEC. 6. The secretary of state shall, under the contract of the state printer, and upon as favorable terms as he can secure for the state, cause ten thousand (10,000) copies of the Legislative Manual to be published biennially, to be distributed as follows:

Fifty copies to each member of the Legislature.

Fifty copies to the State Historical Society for exchange with other states.

Five copies to the State University.

Three copies to the State Library.

Two copies to the Congressional Library at Washington.

Two copies to the Soldiers' Home.

Two copies to each free public library in this state.

Two copies to each public college, seminary or academy in this state.

Two copies to each state normal school.

Two copies to each state high school.

One copy to each state institution not herein provided for.

One copy to each elective state officer.

One copy to each appointed state officer who is the head of any department.

One copy to each officer and employe of the house and senate.

One copy to each supreme and district court judge.

One copy to each United States senator and member of congress from this state.

Two hundred and seventy-five copies to remain in the office of the secretary of state for distribution among the members of the next succeeding legislature. The remaining copies shall be held in the office of the secretary of state for distribution as he may deem best.

By an act approved March 30, 1899 (chapter 106, G. L. 1899), this edition of the publication of the Manual was augmented by the provision therein for an increase of 10,000 additional copies. By this act there is provided, in addition to the above enumeration:

One copy to each independent, special and common school district in this state.

One copy to each auditor's office in this state.

This is a wise provision. As the Manual constitutes, without question, the best civil government text book of Minnesota, the state can find no better place for a copy of this work than in the school room. It is safe to predict that this experiment will meet with so general and enthusiastic approbation that the next legislature will make this provision a permanent feature.

The distribution of this edition of the Manual to the general public remains as heretofore with the individual members of the legislature.

ALBERT BERG, Secretary of State, 1895 to 1901.

CYPRIPEDIUM.—THE MOCCASIN FLOWER
STATE FLOWER OF MINNESOTA.

THE STATE FLOWER

OF

MINNESOTA.

The name Cypripedium (from Greek words meaning the shoe of Venus), published for this genus in 1737 by Linnæus, and its common English and American popular names, as Lady's Slipper, Moccasin Flower, and Indian Shoe, refer to the saccate and somewhat shoe-like form of the most conspicuous petal (in this Orchis family called the lip) of the flower.

About twenty-five species of Cypripedium are known, belonging to the north temperate zone and reaching south into Mexico and northern India. Six species occur in the northern United States and Canada, east of the Rocky Mountains, all of these being found in Minnesota; and about a dozen species in total occur on this continent. They are perennial herbs with perfect, irregular flowers, which are solitary or few, large and showy.

The Minnesota species are as follows: C. arietinum R. Br., the Ram'shead Moccasin Flower, with red and whitish veiny lip, as shown in the accompanying plate; C. candidum Muhl., the small White Moccasin Flower; C. parviflorum Salisb., the small Yellow Moccasin Flower, also shown in this plate; C. pubescens Willd., with much larger yellow flowers; C. spectabile Sw., with most showy, large flowers, of mingled white and pink purple color; and C. acaule Ait., the Stemless Moccasin Flower, with leaves on the ground and a large rose-purple flower on an erect scape nearly a foot high. These plants grow preferably in cold and moist woods and in bogs, flowering from May to July. The first and second are rare or infrequent; but the other four are frequent or common, especially northward.

Note.—Minnesota has fourteen genera, including forty-one species, of the Orchis family, to which the Cypripediums belong. In total, 1,582 species of flowering plants, and sixty-eight ferns and their allies, making together 1,650 species, were tabulated, as known to grow without cultivation in this state, by Warren Upham in the Catalogue of the Flora of Minnesota, published in the Twelfth Annual Report of the Geological and Natural History Survey for the year 1883 (193 pages, with a map showing the areas of forest and prairie). Within the basin of the Minnesota river, according to the report in 1892 by Prof. Conway MacMillan, the state botanist, 1,174 species and varieties of flowering plants, including all our Cypripediums, are known and have been collected for the Herbarium of the State University. The State Flower is thus chosen from among more than a thousand others which bloom on our prairies, in the northern woods, in their cool bogs, and in our streams and lakes.

THE STATE FLAG

OF

MINNESOTA.

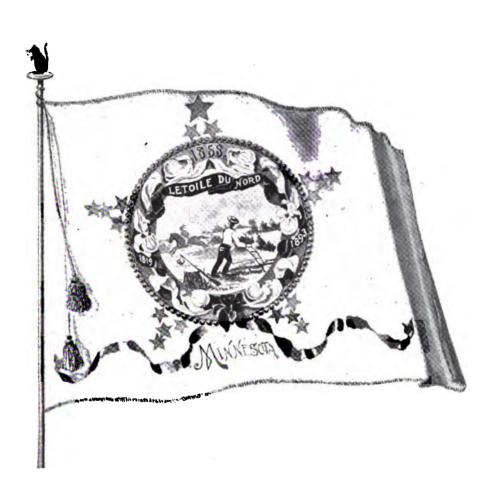

The state legislature of 1893, by chapter sixteen, provided for the adoption of a state flag.

Mrs. Franklyn L. Greenleaf, Mrs. A. A. White, Mrs. Edward Durant, Mrs. F. B. Clarke, Mrs. H. F. Brower and Mrs. A. T. Stebbbins were by this act named and designated a commission to select and adopt an appropriate design for a state flag.

Conformably to the provision of this act, this commission called for designs, and on Tuesday, February 28, 1893, met, selected and adopted the design presented by Mrs. Edward H. Center, of Minneapolis.

Following is a description of the flag: "The ground is of white silk, and the reverse side of blue silk, bordered with bullion fringe. In the center is the state seal, wreathed with white Moccasin flowers, on a blue ground. The red ribbon of the seal bearing the motto is continued through the wreath, entwining the blossoms and floating carelessly over the lower portion of the flag. It bears, in gold, the dates 1819, the time of the settlement of Minnesota, and 1893. Above, also in gold, is the date 1858, the time of the admission of Minnesota to the Union. Below the design, in gold letters, is wrought 'Minnesota.' Grouped around the seal are nineteen stars in the design of star points, with the North Star, significant of the North Star State, in a group of three at the top."

The choice of the number nineteen is a peculiarly happy one, as Minnesota was the nineteenth state, after the original thirteen, to be admitted to the Union. The standard to the flag was surmounted by a golden gopher, and tied with a gold cord and tassel. The execution of the design is entirely in needle work.

THE STATE SEAL

OF

MINNESOTA.

The first official record of a state seal is in the message of Gov. Ramsey to the first territorial legislature, Sept. 9, 1849, in which he says: "A temporary great seal of the Territory of Minnesota has been adopted, an impression of which will be submitted. I preferred consulting the legislative asssembly upon the adoption of a permanent great seal, and I herewith lay before you the design of one, to which I ask your attention, and if you approve it, or suggest its modification, it will be placed in the hands of an artist and engraved, and thenceforward supersede the seal now in use." On October 31st Mr. James M. Boal, from the committee appointed to draft a device for the territorial seal, reported having adopted for "a device, an every-day scene, consisting of an Indian family with their lodge, canoe, etc., and a single white man visiting them, with no other protection than the feeling of hospitality and friendship existing between the two people. The white man is receiving from the Indian the pipe of peace," etc. This report was adopted, and an act providing for the use of the seal was duly passed and became a law. But, for some reason, the seal so authorized was never used.

In place of it one was adopted, just how or by whom there is no record now, and which was used as "the great seal of Minnesota" until 1858. It bears the date at the bottom, "1849." The device is much the same as the present state seal. A farmer is plowing in the foreground, but facing to the west. His rifle, powderhorn, etc., are leaning on a stump near him. In the distance, to the left, is the Falls of St. Anthony, and an Indian on horseback riding rapidly eastward, towards what appears to be a rising sun. Over the device is the motto, "Quo sursum velo videre," the third word a misprint for volo, the whole meaning, "I wish to see what lies beyond." This motto was selected by Hon. H. H. Sibley, while delegate in congress, and the engraving of the seal was procured in Washington, by Gov. Ramsey, of D. O. Hare, an engraver of that city, at a cost of $157.

This seal was ridiculed more or less by journalists, who said it represented "a man plowing one way and looking another," or "an astonished Indian and a scared white man," etc. But it was used until 1858.

At the first session of the state legislature the question of a state seal was taken up. Hon. Chas. F. Dowe, a member of the constitutional convention in 1857, had drafted (by Mr. Buechner, an artist of St. Paul) a design for a state seal, which he had hoped that the first state legislature would adopt. It was generally considered very suitable (an engraving is given of it on page 658 of W. H. C. Folsom's History of the Northwest). Article fifteen of the state constitution, adopted on October 13, 1857, provided that "The legislature shall provide for an appropriate device and motto for said seal." The first legislative session (which assembled Dec. 2, 1857), however, does not seem to have done so, and when the state government came into operation in May, 1858, there was still no "state seal" for use on documents. Gov. Sibley authorized the secretary of state to continue the use of the old territorial seal for the present. At the adjourned session of the legislature, in June, Gov. Sibley referred to the subject, and a special committee was appointed to report the design for a seal, of which W. H. C. Folsom was chairman. This was done on June 30. Mr Folsom had secured an elaborate design from an artist of St. Paul. Dr. R. O. Sweeny, fully described in his report. A joint resolution adopting the design was passed, and duly signed, on July 16.

Several months appear to have elapsed before the new seal was engraved and put into use, and when it was, it was found that the elaborate design proposed in Mr. Folsom's report had not been adopted, but that the device of the old territorial seal had been used, with a little change. The equestrian Indian was represented as riding westward and the farmer plowing eastward. No other change was made except the use of the word "state" instead of "territory," and adding the date of its admisssion, "1858." The motto was "L'Etoile du Nord" (the North Star). The "Minnesotian" newspaper ridiculed this latter in a series of vituperative articles, declaring that Gov. Sibley had used a French motto simply because he spoke that tongue. But the seal soon came into general use, and has been the only one used officially for thirty years.

*Hon. F. P. Brown, Secretary of State,

Dear Sir: You inquire whether it will be necessary to give notice of election of state senators for odd numbered districts, at the coming general election.

Your inquiry is evidently based upon the language of section 24 of article 4 of the constitution of the State of Minnesota. (See sec. 24 above.)

The above is as section 24 reads since its amendment in 1877. It will be seen that by the terms of this section that representatives chosen at such election (being the general election of 1878), or at any election thereafter, shall hold their office for the term of two years; and the senators chosen at such election (being the general election of 1878), by districts designated as odd numbers, were to hold their office for two years: and those chosen by even numbered districts, for the term of four years. And thereafter, that is, after such election (the election of 1878) senators shall be chosen for four years, except there shall be an entire new election of senators at the election of representatives next succeeding each new apportionment.

It is difficult to see how but one construction can be placed upon this language. There are but two limitations placed upon a four years' term of state senators; one is that those chosen by odd numbered districts, at the election of 1878, shall hold for two years; another is, that a new election after an apportionment may result in shortening by two years the terms of all senators; if the apportionment is made at the first session after the election of senators. The first is a positive limitation. The other is a possible limitation which may apply after the election; as to the election itself and the term for which they are to be elected, the language is too plain to admit of any question. After providing for the election of 1878, it is provided: "And thereafter senators shall be chosen for four years," except * *

It may be urged that this section provided that as to the election of 1878, one-half should hold office for four years and one-half for two years; thus providing for one-half the Senate going out of office every two years, and that it was desirable that this order should be maintained. Whatever may be said as to the wisdom of such policy, we are obliged to interpret the law as we find it; for, where a law is plain and unambiguous, we must assume that that was intended which the words used clearly import.

I have the honor therefore to advise you that in my opinion all the senators elected in 1890 were elected for the term of four years. Very truly yours,

MOSES E. CLAPP, Attorney General.

SEC. 36. Any city or village in this State may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this State, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter. and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof; provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters voting at such election to change the patrol limits now established.

Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one-or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors.

In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village, any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto.

The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants, or to cities of ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. ACT OF ADMISSION INTO THE UNION.

An Act for the admission of Minnesota into the Union.

[Passed May 11, 1858.]

Whereas, an act of Congress was passed February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, entitled "An act to authorize the people of the Territory of Minnesota to form a constitution and state government preparatory to their admission into the Union on an equal footing with the original states;" and, whereas, the people of said Territory did, on the twenty-ninth day of August, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, by delegates elected for that purpose, form for themselves a constitution and state government, which is republican in form, and was ratified and adopted by the people at an election held on the thirteenth day of October, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, for that purpose; therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the State of Minnesota shall be one, and is hereby declared to be one, of the United States of America, and admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original states in all respects whatever.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That said State shall be entitled to two representatives in Congress, until the next apportionment of representatives among the several states.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That from and after the admission of the State of Minnesota, as hereinbefore provided, all the laws of the United States which are not locally inapplicable shall have the same force and effect within that State as in other states of the Union; and the said State is hereby constituted a judicial district of the United States, within which a district court, with like powers and jurisdiction as the district court of the United States for the district of Iowa, shall be established; the judge, attorney and marshal of the United States of the said district of Minnesota shall reside within the same, and shall be entitled to the same compensation as the judge, attorney and marshal of the district of Iowa; and in all cases of appeal or writ of error heretofore prosecuted and now pending in the supreme court of the United States, upon any record from the supreme court of Minnesota Territory, the mandate of execution or order of further proceedings shall be directed by the supreme court of the United States to the district court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, or to the supreme court of the State of Minnesota, as the nature of such appeal or writ of error may require; and each of those courts shall be the successor of the supreme court of Minnesota Territory, as to all such cases, with full power to hear and determine the same, and to award mesne or final process therein.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed, by their Creator, with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present king of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation, till his assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature—a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable and distant from the repository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time after such dissolutions to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large, for their exercise, the State remaining, in the meantime, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our consent:

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury:

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies:

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering, fundamentally, the forms of our government:

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections among us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind—enemies in war, in peace, friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in general congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, Free and Independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as Free and Independent States, they have full p wer to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which Independent States thay of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

The taxes for paying that proportion shall be laid and levied by the authority and direction of the legislatures of the several states within the time agreed upon by the United States in congress assembled.
- ART. 9. § 1. The United States in congress assembled shall have the sole and exclusive right and power of determining on peace and war, except in the cases mentioned in the sixth article; of sending and receiving ambassadors, entering into treaties and alliances; provided, that no treaty of commerce shall be made whereby the legislative power of the respective states shall be restrained from imposing such imposts and duties on foreigners as their own people are subjected to, or from prohibiting the exportation or importation of any species of goods or commodities whatsoever; of establishing rules for deciding in all cases what captures on land or water shall be legal, and in what manner prizes taken by land or naval forces in the service of the United States shall be divided or appropriated; of granting letters of marque and reprisal in times of peace; appointing courts for the trial of piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and establishing courts for receiving and determining finally appeals in all cases of captures; provided, that no member of congress shall be appointed a judge of any of the said courts.

- § 2. The United States in congress assembled shall also be the last resort on appeal in all disputes and differences now subsisting, or that may hereafter arise, between two or more states concerning boundary, jurisdiction, or any other cause whatever; which authority shall always be exercised in the manner following: Whenever the legislative or executive authority or lawful agent of any state in controversy with another shall present a petition to congress, stating the matter in question, and praying for a hearing, notice thereof shall be given by order of congress to the legislative or executive authority of the other state in controversy, and a day assigned for the appearance of the parties by their lawful agents, who shall then be directed to appoint, by joint consent, commissioners or judges to constitute a court for hearing and determining the matter in question; but if they can not agree, congress shall name three persons out of each of the United States, and from the list of such persons each party shall alternately strike out one, the petitioners beginning, until the number shall be reduced to thirteen; and from that number not less than seven nor more than nine names, as congress shall direct, shall, in the presence of congress, be drawn out by lot; the persons whose names shall be so drawn, or any five of them, shall be commissioners or judges to hear and finally determine the controversy, so always as a major part of the judges who shall hear the cause shall agree in the determination; and if either party shall neglect to attend at the day appointed, without showing reasons which congress shall judge sufficient, or being present shall refuse to strike, the congress shall proceed to nominate three persons out of each state, and the secretary of congress shall strike in behalf of such party absent or refusing; and the judgment and sentence of the court, to be appointed in the manner before prescribed, shall be final and conclusive; and if any of the parties shall refuse to submit to the authority of such court, or to appear to defend their claim or cause, the court shall nevertheless proceed to pronounce sentence or judgment, which shall in like manner be final and decisive; the judgment or sentence and other proceedings being in either case transmitted to congress and lodged among the acts of congress, for the security of the parties concerned; provided, that every commissioner, before he sits in judgment, shall take an oath, to be administered by one of the judges of the supreme or superior court of the state where the cause shall be tried, "well and truly to hear and determine the matter in question, according to the best of his judgment, without favor, affection, or hope of reward;" provided, also, that no state shall be deprived of territory for the benefit of the United States.
- § 3. All controversies concerning the private right of soil claimed under different grants of two or more states, whose jurisdiction, as they may respect such lands, and the states which passed such grants are adjusted, the said grants or either of them being at the same time claimed to have originated antecedent to such settlement of jurisdiction, shall, on the petition of either party to the congress of the United States, be finally determined, as near as may be, in the same manner as is before prescribed for deciding disputes respecting territorial jurisdiction between different states.

- § 4. The United States in congress assembled shall also have the sole and exclusive right and power of regulating the alloy and value of coin struck by their own authority, or by that of the respective states; fixing the standard of weights and measures throughout the United States; regulating the trade and managing all affairs with the Indians, not members of any of the states; provided, that the legislative right of any state, within its own limits, be not infringed or violated; establishing and regulating postoffices from one state to another, throughout all the United States, and exacting such postage on the papers passing through the same as may be requisite to defray the expenses of the said office; appointing all officers of the land forces in the service of the United States, excepting regimental officers; appointing all the officers of the naval forces, and commissioning all officers whatever in the service of the United States; making rules for the government and regulation of the said land and naval forces, and directing their operations.
- § 5. The United States in congress assembled shall have authority to appoint a committee, to sit in the recess of congress, to be denominated "A Committee of the States," and to consist of one delegate from each state; and to appoint such other committees and civil officers as may be necessary for managing the general affairs of the United States under their direction; to appoint one of their number to preside; provided, that no person be allowed to serve in the office of president more than one year in any term of three years; to ascertain the necessary sums of money to be raised for the service of the United States, and to appropriate and apply the same for defraying the public expenses; to borrow money or emit bills on the credit of the United States, transmitting every half year to the respective states an account of the sums of money so borrowed or emitted; to build and equip a navy; to agree upon the number of land forces, and to make requisitions from each state for its quota, in proportion to the number of white inhabitants in such state, which requisition shall be binding; and thereupon the legislature of each state shall appoint the regimental officers, raise the men, and clothe, arm and equip them, in a soldier-like manner, at the expense of the United States; and the officers and men so clothed, armed, and equipped shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in congress assembled; but if the United States in congress assembled shall, on consideration of circumstances, judge proper that any state should not raise men, or should raise a smaller number than its quota, and that any other state should raise a greater number of men than the quota thereof, such extra number shall be raised, officered, clothed, armed and equipped in the same manner as the quota of such state, unless the legislature of such state shall judge that such extra number cannot be safely spared out of the same, in which case they shall raise, officer, clothe, arm and equip as many of such extra number as they judge can be safely spared, and the officers and men so clothed, armed, and equipped shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in congress assembled.
- § 6. The United States in congress assembled shall never engage in a war, nor grant letters of marque and reprisal in time of peace, nor enter into any treaties or alliances, nor coin money, nor regulate the value thereof, nor ascertain the sums and expenses necessary for the defense and welfare of the United States, or any of them, nor emit bills, nor borrow money on the credit of the United States, nor appropriate money, nor agree upon the number of vessels of war to be built or purchased, or the number of land or sea forces to be raised, nor appoint a commander-in-chief of the army or navy, unless nine states assent to the same; nor shall a question on any other point, except for adjourning from day to day, be determined, unless by the votes of a majority of the United States in congress assembled.

§ 7. The congress of the United States shall have power to adjourn to any time within the year, and to any place within the United States, so that no period of adjournment be for a longer duration than the space of six months, and shall publish the journal of their proceedings monthly, except such parts thereof relating to treaties, alliances, or military operations as in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the delegates of each state, on any question, shall be entered on the journal, when it is desired by any delegate; and the delegates of a state, or any of them, at his or their request, shall be furnished with a transcript of the said journal, except such parts as are above excepted, to lay before the legislatures of the several states.

ART. 10. The committee of the states, or any nine of them, shall be authorized to execute, in the recess of congress, such of the powers of congress as the United States in congress assembled, by the consent of nine states, shall, from time to time, think expedient to vest them with; provided, that no power be delegated to the said committee, for the exercise of which, by the articles of confederation, the voice of nine states, in the congress of the United States assembled, is requisite.

ART. 11. Canada acceding to this confederation, and joining in the measures of the United States, shall be admitted into and entitled to all the advantages of this Union; but no other colony shall be admitted into the same, unless such admission be agreed to by nine states.

ART. 12. All bills of credit emitted, moneys borrowed, and debts contracted by or under the authority of congress, before the assembling of the United States, in pursuance of the present confederation, shall be deemed and considered as a charge against the United States, for payment and satisfaction whereof the said United States and the public faith are hereby solemnly pledged.

ART. 13. Every state shall abide by the determination of the United States in congress assembled, on all questions which by this confederation are submitted to them. And the articles of this confederation shall be inviolably observed by every state, and the Union shall be perpetual; nor shall any alteration at any time hereafter be made in any of them, unless such alteration be agreed to in a congress of the United States, and be afterward confirmed by the legislature of every state.

And whereas, it has pleased the great Governor of the world to incline the hearts of the legislatures we respectively represent in congress to approve of and to authorize us to ratify the said articles of confederation and perpetual union, Know ye, that we, the undersigned delegates, by virtue of the power and authority to us given for that purpose, do by these presents, in the name and in behalf of our respective constituents, fully and entirely ratify and confirm each and every of the said articles of confederation and perpetual union, and all and singular the matters and things therein contained. And we do further solemnly plight and engage the faith of our respective constituents, that they shall abide by the determinations of the United States in congress assembled, on all questions which by the said confederation are submitted to them; and that the articles thereof shall be inviolably observed by the states we respectively represent, and that the Union shall be perpetual. In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands in congress.

Done at Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, the ninth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-eight, and in the third year of the Independence of America.

CONSTITUTION

THE UNITED STATES.

Preamble. We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I.

SECTION I. All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States, which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives.

SEC. 2. The house of representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several states; and the electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature.

No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen.

Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within this Union according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every 30,000, but each state shall have at least one representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose 3; Massachusetts, 8; Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, 1; Connecticut, 5; New York, 6; New Jersey, 4; Pennsylvania, 8; Delaware, 1; Maryland, 6; Virginia, 10; North Carolina, 5; South Carolina, 5; and Georgia, 3.

When vacancies happen in the representation from any state the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

The house of representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

SEC. 3. The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, chosen by the legislature thereof for six years; and each senator shall have one vote.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided, as equally as may be, into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year; and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year; so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen.

The vice president of the United States shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

The senate shall choose their own officers, and also a president pro tempore, in the absence of the vice president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States.

The senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments.

When sitting for that purpose they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment according to law.

SEC. 4. The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators.

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meetings shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall, by law, appoint a different day.

SEC. 5. Each house shall be the judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same; excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

Neither house, during the session of congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

SEC. 6. The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall, in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place.

No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office.

SEC. 7. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives, but the senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

Every bill which shall have passed the house of representatives and the senate shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the president of the United States; if he approve, he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and, if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law.

Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the senate and house of representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the president of the United States, and, before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

Sec. 8. The Congress shall have power:

To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States:

To borrow money on the credit of the United States;

To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes;

To establish an uniform rule of naturalization and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States;

To coin money, regulate the value thereof and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures;

To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States;

To establish postoffices and post roads;

To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times, to authors and inventors, the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries;

To constitute tribunals inferior to the supreme court:

To define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offenses against the laws of nations;

To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water;

To raise and support armies; but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years;

To provide and maintain a navy;

To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces;

To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions;

To provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the states, respectively, the appointment of the officers and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress;

To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, py cession of particular states and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the government of the United States; and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock yards, and other needful buildings; and

To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

SEC. 9. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the states now existing shall think proper to admit shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight; but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless when, in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it.

No bill of attainder, or ex post facto law, shall be passed.

No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state. No preference shall be given, by any regulation of commerce or revenue, to the ports of one state over those of another; nor shall vessels bound to or from one state be obliged to enter, clear or pay duties in another.

No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States, and no person holding any office of profit and trust under them shall, without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office or title of any kind whatever, from any king, prince or foreign state.

SEC. 10. No state shall enter into any treaty, alliance or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money; emit bills of credit; make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts; pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility.

No state shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any imposts or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws; and the net produce of all duties and imposts laid by any state on imports or exports shall be for the use of the treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the Congress.

No state shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, enter into any agreement or compact with another state or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II.

SECTION I. The executive power shall be vested in a president of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the vice president, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows

Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of senators and repre-

[The electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and the number of votes for each; which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit, sealed, to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate. The president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates; and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the president, if such a number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the house of representatives shall immediately choose, by ballot, one of them for president; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list the said house shall, in like manner, choose the president. But in choosing the president the vote shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the president, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the vice president. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the senate shall choose from them, by ballot, the vice president.]*

The Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of president; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president; and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed, or a president shall be elected.

The president shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected; and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

Before he enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation:

The portion in brackets has been superseded by the 12th amendment.

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

SEC. 2. The president shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states, when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices; and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.

He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur, and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate shall appoint, ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls, judges of the supreme court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law. But the Congress may, by law, vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the president alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

The president shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session.

SEC. 3. He shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them; and in case of disagreement between them with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

SEC. 4. The president, vice president, and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for and conviction of treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III.

SECTION I. The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may, from time to time, ordain and establish. The judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

SEC. 2. The judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity, arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more states, between a state and citizens of another state, between citizens of different states, between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state or the citizens thereof and foreign states, citizens, or subjects.*

In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a state shall be party, the supreme court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places as the Congress may by law have directed.

SEC. 3. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason; but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture, except during the life of the person attained.

ARTICLE IV.

SECTION I. Full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other state. And the Congress may by general laws prescribe the manner in which such acts, records and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

SEC. 2. The citizens of each state shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several states.

A person charged in any state with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice and be found in another state, shall, on demand of the executive authority of the state from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the state having jurisdiction of the crime.

No person held to service or labor in one state under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due.

SEC. 3. New states may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state, nor any state be formed by the junction of two or more states or parts of states, without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned, as well as of the Congress.

The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the

^{*}See the 11th amendment.

United States, and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States or of any particular state.

SEC. 4. The United States shall guarantee to every state in the Union a republican form of government; and shall protect each of them against invasion, and, on application of the legislature, or of the executive (when the legislature can not be convened), against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V.

The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which in either case shall be valid, to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress; provided, that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no state, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the senate.

ARTICLE VI.

All debts contracted and engagements entered into, before the adoption of this Constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution, as under the confederation.

This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land, and the judges in every state shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding.

The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several state legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this Constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.

The ratification of the conventions of nine states shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the states so ratifying the same.

ARTICLES.

In addition to, and amendment of, the Constitution of the United States of America, proposed by Congress and ratified by the Legislatures of the several states, pursuant to the fifth article of the original Constitution.

ARTICLE I.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, or to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II.

A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III.

No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV.

ARTICLE V.

No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service, in time of war and public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be witness against himself; nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI.

In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

ARTICLE VII.

In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court in the United States than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII.

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted.

ARTICLE IX.

The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X.

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states, respectively, or to the people.

ARTICLE XI.

The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by citizens of another state, or by citizens or subjects of any foreign state.

ARTICLE XII.

The electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for president and vice president, one of whom at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as president, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as vice president; and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as president and of all persons voted for as vice president, and of the number of votes for each; which lists they shall sign and certify, and transmit, sealed, to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate; the president of the senate shall, in presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted; the person having the greatest number of votes for president shall be the president; if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers, not exceeding three, on the list of those voted for as president, the house of representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the president. But in choosing the president the vote shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states; and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the house of representatives shall not choose a president whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the vice president shall act as president, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the president.

SEC. 2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

SECTION 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such state.

SEC. 3. No person shall be a senator or representative in Congress, or elector of president and vice president, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any state, who, having previously taken an oath, as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any state legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any state, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may by a vote of two-thirds of each house remove such disability.

SEC. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any state shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

SEC. 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

ARTICLE XV.

SECTION I. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any state, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

SEC. 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Under the enabling act of Congress, approved March 3, 1857, a constitutional convention of one hundred and eight members (each council district to elect two for each councilman and representative it was entitled to) was authorized to meet at the capitol on the second Monday in July, to frame a state constitution, and submit it to the people of the territory. The election was held on the first Monday in June. On July 13th the delegates met, but a disagreement arising in the organization, the Republican members organized one body, and the Demoratic members organized separately. Each of these bodies claiming to be the legal constitutional convention, proceeded with the work of forming an instrument to be submitted to the people. After some days an understanding was effected between them, and, by means of committees of conference, the same constitution was framed and adopted by both bodies. On being submitted to the people, October 13th, it was ratified.

SECTION I.

IMPORTANCE OF ADHERING TO RULES.

Mr. Onslow, the ablest among the speakers of the house of commons, used to say "It was a maxim he had often heard when he was a young man, from old and experienced members, that nothing tended more to throw power into the hands of the administration, and those who acted with the majority of the house of commons, than a neglect of or departure from the rules of proceeding; that these forms, as instituted by our ancestors, operated as a check and control on the actions of the majority, and that they were in many instances a shelter and protection to the minority, against the attempts of power." So far the maxim is certainly true, and it is founded in good sense, that it is always in the power of the majority, by their numbers, to stop any improper measures proposed on the part of their opponents; the only weapons by which the minority can defend themselves against similar attempts from those in power are the forms and rules of proceeding which have been adopted as they were found necessary, from time to time, and are become the law of the house; by a strict adherence to which the weaker party can only be protected from those irregularities and abuses which these forms were intended to check, and which the wantonness of power is but too often apt to suggest to large and successful majorities. 2 Hats. 171, 172.

And whether these forms be in all cases the most rational or not is really not of so great importance. It is much more material that there should be a rule to go by than what that rule is, that there may be a uniformity of proceedings in business not subject to the caprice of the speaker or captiousness of the members. It is very material that order, decency and regularity be preserved in a dignified public body. 2 Hats. 149.

SECTION II.

LEGISLATIVE.

[All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.] Constitution of the United States, Art. 1, Sec. 1.

[The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services to be ascertained by law and paid out of the treasury of the United States.] Constitution of the United States, Art. 1, Sec. 6.

[For the powers of Congress see the following articles and sections of the Constitution of the United States: I.—4, 7, 8, 9. II.—1, 2. III.—3. IV.—1. 3, 5, and all the amendments.]

SECTION III.

PRIVILEGE.

The privileges of members of Parliament, from small and obscure beginnings, have been advancing for centuries with a firm and never yielding pace. Claims seem to have been brought forward from time to time, and repeated, till some example of their admission enabled them to build law on that example. We can only, therefore, state the points of progression at which they now are. It is now acknowledged: (1) That they are at all times exempted from question elsewhere for anything said in their own house; that during the time of privilege (2) neither a member himself, his* wife, nor his servants (familiaries sui), for any matter of their own, may bet arrested on mesne process, in any civil suits; (3) nor be detained under execution, though levied before time of privilege; (4) nor impleaded, cited or subpænaed in any court; (5) nor summoned as a witness or juror; (6) nor may their lands or goods be distrained; (7) nor their persons assaulted, or characters traduced. And the period of time covered by privilege, before and after the session, with the practice of short prorogations under the connivance of the crown, amounts in fact to a perpetual protection against the courts of justice. In one instance, indeed, it has been relaxed by the 10 G. 3, c 50, which permits judiciary proceedings to go on against them. That these privileges must be continually progressive, seems to result from their rejecting all definition of them; the doctrine being that "Their dignity and independence are preserved by keeping their privileges indefinite, and that the maxims upon which they proceed, together with the method of proceeding, rest entirely in their own breast, and are not defined and ascertained by any particular stated laws." 1 Blackst. 163, 164.

[It was probably 'rom this view of the encroaching character of privilege that the framers of our Constitution, in their care to provide that the law shall bind equally on all, and especially that those who make them shall not exempt themselves from their operation, have only privileged "senators and representatives" themselves from the single act of "arrest," in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same, and from being questioned in any other place for any speech or debate in either house." Const. U. S., Art. 1, Sec. 6. Under the general authority "to make all laws necessary and proper for carrying into execution the powers given them," Const. U. S., Art. 2, Sec. 8, they may provide by law the details which may be necessary for giving full effect to the enjoyment of this privilege. No such law being yet made, it seems to stand at present on the following grounds: 1. The act of arrest is void ab initio. 2. The member arrested may be discharged on motion (1 Bl. 166; 3 Stra. 990), or by habeas corpus under the federal or state authority, as the case may be; or by a writ of privilege out of the chancery (2 Stra. 989), in those states which have adopted that part of the laws of England. Orders of the House of Commons, 1550; February 20th. 3. The arrest, being unlawful, is a trespass for which the officer and others concerned are liable to action and indictment in the ordinary courts of justice, as in other cases of unauthorized arrest. 4. The court before which the process is returnable is bound to act as in other cases of unauthorized proceeding, and liable also, as in other similar cases, to have their proceeding stayed or corrected by the superior courts.]

^{*}Order of the House of Commons, 1663, July 16.

[†]Elsynge, 217; 1 Hats. 21; Gray's Deb. 133.

[The time necessary for going to and returning from Congress, not being defined, it will, of course, be judged of in every particular case by those who will have to decide the case.] While privilege was understood in England to extend, as it does here, only to exemption from arrest eundo, moranda, et redeundo, the House of Commons themselves decided that "a convenient time was to be understood." (1580) I Hals. 99, 100. Nor is the law so strict in point of time as to require the party to set out immediately on his return, but allows him time to settle his private affairs and to prepare for his journey; and does not even scan his road very nicely, nor forfeit his protection for a little deviation from that which is most direct; some necessity, perhaps, constraining him to it. 2 Stra. 986, 987.

This privilege from arrest privileges, of course, against all process, the disobedience to which is punishable by an attachment of the person, as a subpoena ad respondendum, or testificandum, or a summons on a jury; and with reason, because a member has superior duty to perform in another place. [When a representative is withdrawn from his seat by summons, the 40,000 people whom he represents lose their voice in debate and vote, as they do on his voluntary absence; when a senator is withdrawn by summons, his state loses half its voice in debate and vote, as it does on his voluntary absence. The enormous disparity of evils admits no comparison.]

[So far there will probably be no difference of opinion as to the privileges of the two houses of Congress; but in the following cases it is otherwise: In December, 1795, the House of Representatives committed two persons of the name of Randall and Whitney, for attempting to corrupt the integrity of certain members, which they considered as a contempt and breach of the privileges of the house; and, the facts being proved. Whitney was detained in confinement a fortnight, and Randall three weeks, and was reprimanded by the speaker. In March, 1796, the House of Representatives voted a challenge given to a member of their house to be a breach of the privileges of the house; but satisfactory apologies and acknowledgments being made, no further proceeding was had. The editor of the Aurora having, in his paper of Feb. 10, 1800, inserted some paragraphs defamatory of the Senate and failed in his appearance, he was ordered to be committed. In debating the legality of this order, it was insisted in support of it that every man, by the law of nature, and every body of men, possessed the right of self-defense; that all public functionaries are essentially invested with the powers of self-preservation; that they have an inherent right to do all acts necessary to keep themselves in a condition to discharge the trusts confided to them; that whenever authorities are given, the means of carrying them into execution are given by necessary implication; that thus we see the British Parliament exercise the right of punishing contempts; all the state legislatures exercise the same power, and every court does the same; that, if we have it not, we sit at the mercy of every intruder who may enter our doors or gallery, and by noise and tumults render proceeding in business impracticable; that if our tranquillity is to be perpetually disturbed by newspaper defamation, it will not be possible to exercise our functions with the requisite coolness and deliberation; and that we must, therefore, have a power to punish these disturbers of our peace and proceedings. To this it was answered, that the Parliament and courts of England have cognizance of contempts by the express provisions of their law; that the state legislatures have equal authority, because their powers are plenary; they represent their constituents completely, and possess all their powers, except such as their constitutions have expressly denied them; that the courts of the several states have the same powers by the laws of their states, and those of the federal government by the same state laws adopted in each state, by a law of Congress; that none of these bodies, therefore, derive those powers from natural or necessary right, but from express law; that Congress has no such natural or necessary power, nor any powers but such as are given them by the Constitution; that that has given them, directly, exemption from personal arrest, exemption from question elsewhere for what is said in their house, and power over their own members and proceedings; for these no further law is necessary, the Conscitution being the law; that, moreover, by that article of the Constitution which authorizes them "to make all laws necessary and proper for carrying into execution the power vested by the Constitution in them," they may provide by law for an undisturbed exercise of their functions, e. g. for the punishment of contempts, of affrays or tumults in their presence, etc., but till the law be made, it does not exist; and does not exist from the ordinary neglect; that in the meantime, however, they are not unprotected, the ordinary magistrates and courts of law being open and competent to punish all unjustifiable disturbances or defamations, and even their own sergeant, who may appoint deputies ad libitum to aid him (3 Grey, 59, 147, 255), is equal to small disturbances; that in requiring a previous law, the Constitution had regard to the inviolability of the citizen, as well as of the member; as, should one house, in the regular form of a bill, aim at too broad privileges, it may be checked by the other, and both by the president; and also as, the law being promulgated, the citizen will know how to avoid offense. But if one branch may assume its own privileges without control; if it may do it on the spur of the occasion, conceal the law in its own breast, and after the fact committed make its sentence both the law and the judgment on that fact; if the offense is to be kept undefined, and to be declared only ex re nata, and according to the passions of the moment, and there be no limitation either in the manner or measure of the punishment, the condition of the citizen will be perilous indeed. Which of these doctrines is to prevail, time will decide. Where there is no fixed law, the judgment on any particular case is the law of that single case only, and dies with it. When a new and even similar case arises, the judgment which is to make and at the same time apply the law is open to question and consideration as are all new laws. Perhaps Congress, in the meantime, in their care for the safety of the citizen as well as that for their own protection, may declare by what law it is necessary and proper to enable them to carry into execution the powers vested in them, and thereby hang up a rule for the inspection of all, which may direct the conduct of the citizen, and at the same time test the judgment they shall themselves pronounce in their own case.]

Privilege from arrest takes place by force of the election; and before a return be made a member may be named of a committee, and is to every extent a member, except that he cannot vote until he is sworn. Memor, 107, 108; D'Ewes, 642, col. 2; 643, col. 1; Pet. Miscel. Parl. 119. Lex. Parl. c. 23; 2 Hats. 22, 62.

Every man must at his peril take notice who are members of either house returned of record. Lex. Parl. 23; 4 Inst. 24.

On complaint of a breach of privilege, the party may either be summoned or sent for in custody of the sergeant. 1 Grey, 88, 95.

The privilege of a member is the privilege of the house. If the member waive it without leave, it is a ground for punishing him, but cannot in effect waive the privilege of the house. 3 Grey, 140, 222.

For any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place. Const. U. S. I. 6, S. P., Protest of the Commons to James I., 1621; 2 Rapin, No. 54, pp. 211, 212. But this is restrained to things done in the house in a parliamentary course. I Rush, 663. For he is not to have privilege contra morem parliamentarium, to exceed the bounds and limits of his place and duty. Com. p.

If an offense be committed by a member of the house, of which the house has cognizance, it is an infringement of their right for any person or court to take notice of it, till the house has punished the offender, or referred him to a due course. Lex. Parl. 63.

Privilege is in the power of the house, and is a restraint to proceedings of inferior courts, but not of the house itself. 2 Nelson, 450; 2 Grey, 399. For whatever is spoken in the house is subject to the censure of the house; and offenses of this kind have been severely punished by calling the person to the bar to make submission, committing him to the tower, expelling the house, etc. Scob. 72: L. Parl. c. 22.

It is a breach of order for a speaker to refuse to put a question which is in order. 2 Hats. 175-6; 5 Grey, 133.

And even in cases of treason, felony, and breach of the peace, to which privilege does not extend as to substance, yet in Parliament a member is privileged as to the mode of proceeding. The case is first to be laid before the house, that it may judge of the fact and of the grounds of the accusation, and how far forth the manner of the trial may concern their privilege; otherwise it would be in the power of other branches of government, and even of every private man, under pretense of treason, etc., to take any man from his service in the house, and so as many, one after another, as would make the house what he pleaseth. Dec. of Com. on the King's declaring Sir John Hothan a traitor, 4 Rushw. 586. So when a member stood indicted for a felony it was adjudged that he ought to remain of the house till conviction; for it may be any man's case who is guiltless, to be accused and indicted of felony or the like crime. 23 El. 1580; D'Ewes, 283, col. 1; Lex. Parl. 133.

When it is found necessary for the public service to put a member under arrest, or when on any public inquiry matter comes out which may lead to affect the person of a member, it is the practice immediately to acquaint the house, that they may know the reasons for such a proceeding, and take such steps as they may think proper. 2 Hats. 259. Of which we see many examples. 1b. 256, 257, 258. But the communication is subsequent to the arrest. 1 Blackst. 167.

It is highly expedient, says Hatsel, for the due preservation of the privileges of the separate branches of the legislature, that neither should encroach on the other or interfere in any matter depending before them, so as to preclude, or even influence, that freedom of debate, which is essential to a free council. They are therefore not to take notice of any bills or other matters depending, or of votes that have been given, or of speeches which have been held, by the members of either of the other branches of the legislature, until the same have been communicated to them in the usual parliamentary manner. 2 Hats. 252; 4 Inst. 15; Seld. Jud. 53. Thus the king's taking notice of the bill for suppressing soldiers, depending before the house; his proposing a provisional clause for a bill before it was presented to him by the two houses; his expressing displeasure against some persons for matters moved in Parliament during the debate, and preparation of a bill, were breaches of privilege (2 Nelson, 347); and in 1783, December 17th, it was declared a breach of fundamental privileges, etc., to report any opinion or pretended opinion of the king on any bill or proceeding depending in either house of Parliament, with a view to influence the votes of the members. 2 Hats. 251, 6.

SECTION IV.

ELECTIONS.

[The times, places and manner of holding elections, for senators and representatives, shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators. Const. I. 4.]

[Each house shall be the judge of the election, returns and qualifications of its own members. Const. I. 5.]

SECTION V.

QUALIFICATIONS.

[The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, chosen by the legislature thereof, for six years; and each senator shall have one vote.]

[Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided, as equally as may be, into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the end of the second year; of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year; so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of the state, any executive thereof may make temporary appointments, until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.]

[No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen. Const. I. 3.]

[The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several states; and the electors of each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of that most numerous branch of the state legislature.]

[No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of the state in which he shall be chosen.]

[Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within this Union, according to their respective numbers; which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each state shall have at least one representative. Constitution of the United States, I. 2.]

The provisional apportionments of representatives made in the Constitution in 1787, and afterwards by Congress, were as follows:

- 4. As per act of Dec. 21, 1811, one representative for 35,000, third census.
- 5. As per act of March 7, 1822, one representative for 40,000, fourth census.
- 6. As per act of May 22, 1832, one representative for 47,700, fifth census.
- 7. As per act of June 25, 1842, one representative for 70,680, sixth census.
- 8. As per act of May 23, 1850, one representative for 98,702, seventh census.
- 9. By act of Congress of May 23, 1850, it was enacted that the number of representatives in Congress should be 233; that the representative population determined by the census of that year and thereafter should be divided by said number 233; and the quotient so found should be the ratio of representation for the several states. The ratio thus ascertained under the census of 1860 was 126,823, and upon this basis the 233 representatives were apportioned among the several states, one representative for every district containing that number of persons; giving to each state at least one representative. Subsequently, by act of March 4, 1862, the ratio was changed and the number of representatives from and after March 3, 1863, was increased from 233 to 241, by allowing one additional representative to each of the following states, viz.: Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont; and this number was increased by the admission of Nevada and Nebraska, with one representative each, to 243.

- 10. As per apportionment bill passed Feb. 2, 1872, and supplemental apportionment bill passed May 30, 1872.
- II. Previous to the 3d of March, 1820, Maine formed part of Massachusetts, and was called the "District of Maine," and its representatives are numbered with those of Massachusetts. By compact between Maine and Massachusetts, Maine became a separate and independent state, and by act of Congress of March 3, 1820, was admitted into the Union as such; the admission to take place on the fifteenth of the same month. On the 7th of April, 1820, Maine was declared entitled to seven representatives, to be taken from those of Massachusetts.
- 12. Divided by action of state legislature and Congress of 1861 and 1862 and State of West Virginia created therefrom.

 - 30. Admitted under act of Congress, Jan. 29, 1861, with I representative.
- 31. Previous to Dec. 31, 1862, West Virginia was a part of the State of Virginia, which state was entitled to eleven members of the House of Representatives.
 - 32. Admitted under act of Congress, Oct. 31, 1864, with 1 representative.
- 33. Admitted under act of Congress of January, 1867, and proclamation of the president, March 1, 1867, with one representative.

[When vacancies happen in the representation from any state, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies. Const. I. 2.]

[No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office. Const. I. 6.]

SECTION VI.

QUORUM.

[A majority of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide. Const. I. 5.]

In general, the chair is not to be taken till a quorum for business is present; unless, after due waiting, such a quorum be despaired of, when the chair may be taken and the house adjourned. And whenever, during business, it is observed that a quorum is not present, any member may call for the house to be counted; and, being found deficient, business is suspended. 2 Hats. 125, 126.

[The president having taken the chair and a quorum being present, the journal of the preceding day shall be read, to the end that any mistake may be corrected that shall have been made in the entries. Rules of the Senate.]

SECTION VII.

CALL OF THE HOUSE.

On a call of the house, each person rises up as he is called, and answereth; the absentees are then only noted, but no excuse to be made till the house be fully called over. Then the absentees are called a second time; and, if still absent, excuses are to be heard. Ord. House of Commons, 92.

They rise that their persons may be recognized; the voice in such a crowd being an insufficient verification of their presence. But in so small a body as the Senate of the United States, the trouble of rising can not be necessary.

Orders for calls on different days may subsist at the same time. 2 Hats. 72.

SECTION VIII.

ABSENCE.

[No member shall absent himself from the service of the Senate without leave of the Senate first obtained. And in case a less number than a quorum of the Senate shall convene, they are hereby authorized to send the sergeant-at-arms, or any other person or persons by them authorized, for any or all absent members, as the majority of such members present shall agree, at the expense of such absent members, respectively, unless such excuse for non-attendance shall be made as the Senate, when a quorum is convened, shall judge sufficient; and in that case the expense shall be paid out of the contingent fund. And this rule shall apply as well to the first convention of the Senate, at the legal time of meeting, as to each day of the session after the hour is arrived to which the Senate stood adjourned. Rule 8.]

SECTION IX.

SPEAKER.

[The vice president of the United States shall be president of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided. Constitution, I. 3.]

[The Senate shall choose their officers, and also a president pro tempore in the absence of the vice president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States. Ib.]

[The House of Representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers. Const. I. 2.]

When but one person is proposed and no objection made, it has not been usual in Parliament to put any question to the house; but, without a question, the members proposing him conduct him to the chair. But if there be objection, or another proposed, a question is put by the clerk. 2 Hats. 168. As are also questions of adjournment. 6 Grey, 406. Where the house debated and exchanged messages and answers with the king for a week without a speaker, till they were prorogued. They have done it de die diem for fourteen days. 1 Chand. 331, 335.

[In the Senate, a president pro tempore, in the absence of the vice president, is proposed and chosen by ballot. His office is understood to be determined on the vice president appearing and taking the chair, or at the meeting of the Senate after the first recess.]

Where the speaker has been ill, other speakers pro tempore have been appointed. Instances of this are 1 H. 4, Sir John Cheney, and for Sir Wm. Sturton, and in 15 H. 6, Sir John Tyrell, in 1656, January 27th; 1658, March 9th; 1659, January 13th.

Sir John Charlton, ill, Seymour chosen, 1673, February 18th.

Seymour being ill, Sir Robert Sawyer chosen, 1678, April 15th.

Sawyer being ill, Seymour chosen.

Not merely pro tempore. 1 Chand. 169, 276, 277.

Thorpe in execution, a new speaker chosen, 31 H., VI. 3 Grey, 11; and March 14, 1694, Sir John Trevor chosen. There have been no later instances. 2 Hats. 161; 4 Inst.; 8 L. Parl. 263.

A speaker may be removed at the will of the house and a speaker pro tempore appointed.* 2 Grey, 186; 5 Grey, 134.

SECTION X.

ADDRESS.

[The president shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. Const. II. 3.]

A joint address of both houses of Parliament is read by the speaker of the House of Lords. It may be attended by both houses in a body, or by a committee from each house, or by the two speakers only. An address of the House of Commons only may be presented by the whole house or by the speaker (9 Grey, 473; 1 Chandler, 298, 301), or by such particular members as are of the privy council. 2 Hats. 278.

SECTION XI.

COMMITTEES.

Standing committees, as of privileges and elections, etc., are usually appointed at the first meeting to continue through the session. The first person named is generally permitted to act as chairman. But this is a matter of courtesy, every committee having a right to elect their own chairman, who presides over them, puts questions, and reports their proceedings to the house 4 Inst. 11, 12; Scob. 9; 1 Grey, 122.

At these committees the members are to speak standing and not sitting; though there is reason to conjecture it was formerly otherwise. D'Ewes, 630, col. 1; 4 Parl. Hist. 440; 2 Hats. 77.

Their proceedings are not to be published, as they are of no force till confirmed by the house. Rushw., part 3, vol. 2, 74; 3 Grey, 401; Scob. 39. Nor can they receive a petition but through the house. 9 Grey, 412.

When a committee is charged with an inquiry, if a member prove to be involved, they can not proceed against him, but must make a special report to the house; whereupon the member is heard in his place, or at the bar, or a special authority is given to the committee to inquire concerning him. 9 Grey, 523.

So soon as the house sits, and a committee is notified of it, the chairman is in duty bound to rise instantly, and the members to attend the service of the house. 2 Nals. 319.

^{*}RULE 43. The vice president, or president of the senate pro tempore, shall have the right to name a member to perform the duties of the chair; but such substitution shall not extend beyond an amendment.

It appears that on joint committee of the lords and commons, each committee acted integrally in the following instances: 7 Grey, 261, 278, 285, 338; I Chandler, 357, 462. In the following instances it does not appear whether they did or not: 6 Grey, 129; 7 Grey, 213, 229, 321.

SECTION XII.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

The speech, message, and other matters of great concernment, are usually referred to a committee of the whole house (6 Grey, 311), where general principles are digested in the form of resolutions, which are debated and amended till they get into a shape which meets the approbation of a majority. These being reported and confirmed by the house, are then referred to one or more select committees, according as the subject divides itself into one or more bills. Scob. 36, 44. Propositions for any charge on the people are especially to be first made in a committee of the whole. 3 Hats. 127. The sense of the whole is better taken in committee, because in all committees everyone speaks as often as he pleases. Scob. 49. They generally asquiesce in the chairman named by the speaker; but, as well as all other committees, have a right to elect one, some member, by consent, putting the question. Scob. 36; 3 Grey, 301. The form of going from the house into committee is for the speaker, on motion, to put the question that the house do now resolve itself into a committee of the whole, to take into consideration such a matter, naming it. If determined in the affirmative, he leaves the chair and takes a seat elsewhere, as any other member; and the person appointed chairman seats himself at the clerk's table. Scob. 36. Their quorum is the same as that of the house, and if a defect happens, the chairman, on a motion and question, rises, the speaker resumes the chair, and the chairman can make no other report than to inform the house of the cause of their dissolution. If a message is announced during a committee, the speaker takes the chair, and receives it, because the committee can not. 2 Hats. 125, 126.

In a committee of the whole, the tellers on a division differing as to numbers, great heats and confusion arose, and danger of a decision by the sword. The speaker took the chair, the mace was forcibly laid on the table; whereupon, the members retiring to their places, the speaker told the house "He had taken the chair without an order, to bring the house into order." Some excepted against it, but it was generally approved, as the only expedient to suppress the disorder. And every member was required, standing up in his place, to engage that he would proceed no further in consequence of what had happened in the grand committee, which was done. 3 Grey, 128.

A committee of the whole being broken up in disorder, and the chair resumed by the speaker without an order, the house was adjourned. The next day the committee was considered as thereby dissolved, and the subject again before the house, and it was decided in the house, without returning into the committee. 3 Grey. 130.

No previous question can be put in a committee, nor can this committee adjourn as others may; but if their business is unfinished, they rise, on a question, the house is resumed, and the chairman reports that the committee of the whole have, according to order, had under their consideration such a matter, and have made progress therein; but, not having had time to go through the same, have directed him to ask leave to sit again. Whereupon a question is put upon their having leave, and on the time the house will again resolve itself into a committee. Scob. 38. But if they have gone through the matter referred to them, a member moves that the committee may rise, and the chairman report their proceedings to the house; which being resolved, the chairman rises, the speaker resumes the chair, the chairman informs him that the committee have gone through the business referred to them, and that he is ready to make the report when the house shall think proper to receive it. If the house have time to receive it, there is usually a cry of "Now, now," whereupon he makes the report; but if it be late, the cry is "To-morrow, to-morrow," or "Monday," etc.; or a motion is made to that effect, and a question put, that it be received to-morrow, etc. Scob. 38.

In other things the rules of proceedings are to be the same as in the house. Scob. 39.

SECTION XIII.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

Common fame is a good ground for the house to proceed by inquiry and even to accusation. Resolution House of Commons, I Car. 1, 1624; Rush., L. Parl. 115; I Grey, 16-22-92; 8 Grey, 21, 23, 27, 45.

Witnesses are not to be produced but where the house has previously instituted an inquiry (2 Hats. 102), nor then are orders for their attendance given blank. 3 Grey, 51.

When any person is examined before a committee, or at the bar of the house, any member wishing to ask the person a question must address it to the speaker or chairman, who repeats the question to the person, or says to him, "You hear the question—answer it." But if the propriety of the question be objected to, the speaker directs the witness, counsel and parties to withdraw, for no question can be moved or put, or debated while they are there. 2 Hats. 108. Sometimes the questions are previously settled in writing before the witness enters. Ib. 106, 107; 8 Grey, 64. The question asked must be entered in the journals. 3 Grey, 81. But the testimony given in answer before the house is never written down; but before a committee it must be, for the information of the house, who are not present to hear it. 7 Grey, 52, 334.

If either house have occasion for the presence of a person in custody of the other, they ask the other their leave that he may be brought up to themin custody. 3 Hats. 52.

A member, in his place, gives information to the house of what he knows of any matter under hearing at the bar. Journal H. of C., Jan. 22, 1744-45.

Either house may request, but not demand, the attendance of a member of the other. They are to make the request by message to the other house, and to express clearly the purpose of attendance, that no improper subject of examination may be tendered to him. The house then gives leave to the member to attend, if he chooses it; waiting first to know from the member himself whether he choose to attend, till which they do not take the message into consideration. But when the peers are sitting as a court of criminal judicature they may order attendance, unless where it be a case of impeachment by the commons. There it is to be a request. 3 Hats. 17; 9 Grey, 306, 406; 10 Grey, 133.

Counsel are to be heard only on private, not on public, bills, and on such points of law only as the house shall direct. 10 Grey, 61.

SECTION XIV.

ARRANGEMENT OF BUSINESS.

The speaker is not precisely bound to any rules as to what bills or other matter shall be first taken up, but is left to his own discretion, unless the house on the question decide to take up a particular subject. Hackew. 136.

A settled order of business is, however, necessary for the government of the presiding person, and to restrain individual members from calling up favorite measures, or matters under their special patronage, out of their just turn. It is useful also for directing the discretion of the house, when they are moved to take up a particular matter, to the prejudice of the others having priority of right to their attention in the general order of business.

[In Senate, the bills and other papers which are in possession of the house, and in a state to be acted on. are arranged every morning, and brought on in the following order:]

- [1. Bills ready for a second reading are read, that they may be referred to committees and so be put under way. But if, on their being read, no motion is made for commitment, they are then laid on the table in the general file, to be taken up in their just turn.]
 - [2. After 12 o'clock, bills ready for it are put on their passage.]
- [3. Reports in possession of the house, which offer grounds for a bill, are to be taken up that the bill may be ordered in.]
- [4. Bills or other matters before the house, and unfinished on the preceding day, whether taken up in turn or on special order, are entitled to be resumed and passed on through their present stage.]
- [5. These matters being dispatched, for preparing and expediting business, the general file of bills and other papers is then taken up, and each article of it is brought on according to its seniority, reckoned by the date of its first introduction to the house. Reports on bills belong to the dates of their bill.]

[The arrangement of the business of the Senate is now as follows:]

- [1. Motions previously submitted.]
- [2. Reports of committees previously made.]
- [3. Bills from the House of Representatives, and those introduced on leave, which have been read the first time, are read the second time; and if not referred to a committee, are considered in committee of the whole, and proceeded with as in other cases.]

- [4. After 12 o'clock, engrossed bills of the Senate, and bills of the House of Representatives, on third reading, are put on their passage.]
- [5. If the above are finished before I o'clock, the general file of bills consisting of those reported from committees on the second reading and those reported from committees, after having been referred, are taken up in the order in which they were reported to the Senate by the respective committees.]
- [6. At 1 o'clock, if no business is pending, or if no motion be called to proceed to other business, the special orders are called, at the head of which stands the unfinished business of the preceding day.]

[In this way we do not waste our time in debating what shall be taken up. We do one thing at a time; follow up a subject while it is fresh, and till it is done with, clear the house of business gradatim as it is brought on, and prevent, to a certain degree, its immense accumulation towards the close of the session.]

[Arrangements, however, can only take hold of matters in possession of the house. New matter may be moved at any time when no question is before the house. Such are original motions and reports on bills. Such are bills from the other house, which are received at all times, and receive their first reading as soon as the question then before the house is disposed of; and bills brought in on leave, which are read first whenever presented. So messages from the other house respecting amendments to bills are taken up as soon as the house is clear of a question, unless they require to be printed for better consideration. Orders of the day may be called for, even when another question is before the house.]

SECTION XV.

ORDER.

[Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings; punish its members for disorderly behavior; and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member. Const. I. 5.]

In Parliament, "Instances make order," per Speaker Onslow. 2 Hats. 141. But what is done only by one Parliament can not be called custom of Parliament; by Prynne. 1 Grey, 52.

SECTION XVI.

ORDER RESPECTING PAPERS.

The clerk is to let no journals, records, accounts, or papers be taken from the table or out of his custody. 2 Hats. 193, 194.

Mr. Prynne having at a committee of the whole amended a mistake in a bill, without order or knowledge of the committee, was reprimanded. I Chand. 77.

A bill being missing, the house resolved that a protestation should be made and subscribed by the members "before Almighty God and this honorable house, that neither myself nor any other to my knowledge have taken away or do at this present conceal a bill entitled," etc. 5 Grey, 202.

After a bill is engrossed it is put into the speaker's hands, and he is not to let any one have it to look into. Town., col. 200.

SECTION XVII.

ORDER IN DEBATE.

When the speaker is seated in his chair, every member is to sit in his place. Scob. 6; 3 Grey, 403.

When any member means to speak, he is to stand up in his place uncovered, and to address himself, not to the house, or any particular member, but to the speaker, who calls him by his name that the house may take notice who it is that speaks. Scob. 6; D'Ewes, 487, col. 1; 2 Hats. 77; 4 Grey, 66; 8 Grey, 108. But members who are indisposed may be indulged to speak sitting. 2 Hats. 75; 1 Grey, 143.

[In Senate, every member, when he speaks, shall address the chair, standing in his place, and, when he has finished, shall sit down. Rule 3.]

When a member stands up to speak, no question is to be put, but he is to be heard unless the house overrules him. 4 Grey, 390; 5 Grey, 6, 143.

If two or more rise to speak nearly together, the speaker determines who was first up, and calls him by name; whereupon he proceeds, unless he voluntarily sits down and gives way to the other. But sometimes the house does not acquiesce in the speaker's decision, in which case the question is put, "Which member was first up?" 2 Hats.; 76 Scob.; 7 D'Ewes, 434, col. 1, 2.

[In the Senate of the United States, the president's decision is without appeal. Their rule is in these words: "When two members rise at the same time, the president shall name the person to speak, but in all cases the member who shall first rise and address the chair shall speak first. Rule 5.]

No man may speak more than once on the same bill on the same day, or even on another day, if the debate be adjourned. But if it be read more than once in the same day, he may speak once at every reading. Co. 12, 115; Hakew. 148; Scob. 38; 2 Hats. 75. Even a change of opinion does not give a right to be heard a second time. Smyth's Comn., L. 2, c. 3; Arcan. Parl. 17.

[The corresponding rule of the Senate is in these words: No member shall speak more than twice in any one debate on the same day, without leave of the Senate. Rule 4.]

But he may be permitted to speak again to a clear matter of fact (3 Grey, 357, 416), or merely to explain himself (2 Hats. 73) in some material part of his speech (1b. 75); or to the manner or words of the question, keeping himself to that only, and not traveling into the merits of it (Memorials in Hakew. 29); or to the orders of the house, if they be transgressed, keeping within that line, and not falling into the matter itself. Mem. in Hakew. 30, 31.

But if the speaker rises to speak, the member standing up ought to sit down, that he may be first heard. Town., col. 205; Hale Parl. 133; Mem. in Hakew. 30, 31. Nevertheless, though the speaker may of right speak of matters of order, and be first heard, he is restrained from speaking on any other subject, except where the house have occasion for facts within his knowledge, then he may, with their leave, state the matter of fact. 3 Grey, 38.

No one is to speak impertinently or beside the question, superfluously or tediously. Scob. 31, 33; 2 Hats. 166, 168; Hale Parl. 133.

No person is to use indecent language against the proceedings of the house, no prior determination of which is to be reflected on by any member, unless he means to conclude with a motion to rescind it. 2 Hats. 169, 170; Rushw., p. 3, v. 1, fol. 42. But while a proposition under consideration is still in fieri, though it has even been reported by a committee, reflections on it are no reflections on the house. 9 Grey, 508.

No person, in speaking, is to mention a member then present by his name, but to describe him by his seat in the house, or who spoke last, or on the other side of the question, etc. (Mem. in Hakew. 3; Smyth's Comw., L. 2, c. 3); nor to digress from the matter to fall upon the person (Scob. 31; Hale Parl. 133; 2 Hats. 166), by speaking, reviling, nipping or unmannerly words against a particular member. Smyth's Comw., L. 2, c. 3. The consequences of a measure may be reprobated in strong terms; but to arraign the motives of those who propose to advocate it is a personality, and against order. Qui digreditur a materia ad personam, Mr. Speaker ought to suppress. Ord. Com. 1604, Apr. 19.

[* * * When a member shall be called to order by the president or a senator, he shall sit down, and shall not proceed without leave of the Senate; and every question of order shall be decided by the president, without debate, subject to an appeal to the Senate; and the president may call for the sense of the Senate on any question of order. Rule 6.]

[No member shall speak to another or otherwise interrupt the business of the Senate, or read any newspaper while the journals or public papers are reading, or when any member is speaking in any debate. Rule 2.]

No one is to disturb another in his speech by hissing, coughing, spitting (6 Grey, 332; Scob. 8; D'Ewes, 332, col. 1; 1640, col. 1), speaking or whispering to another (Scob. 6; D'Ewes, 2, 487, col. 1); nor stand up to interrupt him (Town, col. 205; Mcm. in Hakew. 31); nor to pass between the speaker and the speaking member; nor to go across the house (Scob. 6); or to walk up and down it; or to take books or papers from the table, or write there. 2 Hats. 171.

Nevertheless, if a member finds that it is not the inclination of the house to hear him, and that by conversation or any other noise they endeavor to drown his voice, it is his most prudent way to submit to the pleasure of the house and sit down; for it scarcely ever happens that they are guilty of this piece of ill manners without sufficient reason, or inattentive to a member who says anything worth their hearing. 2 Hats. 77, 78.

If repeated calls do not produce order, the speaker may call by his name any member obstinately persisting in irregularity; whereupon the house may require the member to withdraw. He is then to be heard in exculpation and to withdraw. Then the speaker states the offense committed, and the house considers the degree of punishment they will inflict. 3 Hats. 167, 7, 8, 172.

For instances of assault and affrays in the House of Commons, and the proceedings thereon, see 1 Pet. Misc. 82; 3 Grey, 128; 4 Grey, 328; 5 Grey, 382; 6 Grey, 254; 10 Grey, 8. Whenever warm words or an assault have passed between members, the house, for the protection of their members, requires them to declare in their places not to prosecute any quarrel (3 Grey, 127, 293; 5 Grey, 280); or orders them to attend the speaker, who is to accommodate their differences, and report to the house (3 Grey, 419); and they are put under restraint if they refuse, or until they do. 9 Grey, 234, 312.

Disorderly words are not to be noticed till the member has finished his speech. 5 Grey, 356; 6 Grey, 60. Then the person objecting to them, and desiring them to be taken down by the clerk at the table, must repeat them. The speaker then may direct the clerk to take them down in his minutes; but if he thinks them not disorderly, he delays the direction. If the call becomes pretty general, he orders the clerk to take them down, as stated by the objecting member. They are then part of his minutes, and when read to the offending member, he may deny they were his words, and the house must then decide by a question whether they are his words or not. Then the member may justify them, or explain the sense in which he used them, or apologize. If the house is satisfied, no further proceeding is necessary. But if two members still insist to take the sense of the house, the member must withdraw before that question is stated, and then the sense of the house is to be taken. 2 Hats. 199; 4 Grey, 170; 6 Grey, 59. When any member has spoken, or other business intervenes, after offensive words spoken, they can not be taken notice of for censure. And this is for the common security of all, and to prevent mistakes which must happen if words are not taken down immediately. Formerly they might be taken down at any time the same day. 2 Hats. 196; Mem. in Hakew. 71; 3 Grey, 48; 9 Grey, 514.

Disorderly words spoken in a committee must be written down as in the house; but the committee can only report them to the house for animadversion. 6 Grey, 46.

[The rule of the Senate says: If the member be called to order by a senator for words spoken, the exceptionable words shall immediately be taken down in writing, that the president may be better enabled to judge of the matter. Rule 7.]

In Parliament, to speak irreverently or seditiously against the king is against order. Smyth's Comw., L. 2, c. 3; 2 Hats. 170.

It is a breach of order in debate to notice what has been said on the same subject in the other house, on the particular vote or majorities on it there; because the opinion of each house should be left to its own dependency, not to be influenced by the proceedings of the other; and the quoting them might beget reflections leading to a misunderstanding between the two houses. 8 Grey, 22.

Neither house can exercise any authority over a member or officer of the other, but should complain to the house of which he is, and leave the punishment to them. Where the complaint is of words disrespectfully spoken by a member of another house, it is difficult to obtain punishment, because of the rules supposed necessary to be observed (as to the immediate noting down of words) for the security of members. Therefore it is the duty of the house, and more particularly of the speaker, to interfere immediately, and not to permit expressions to go unnoticed which may give a ground of complaint to the other house, and introduce proceedings and mutual accusations between the two houses which can hardly be terminated without difficulty and disorder. 3 Hats. 51.

No member may be present when a bill or any business concerning himself is debating; nor is any member to speak to the merits of it till he withdraws. 2 Hats. 219. The rule is that if a charge against a member arise out of a report of a committee, or of examination of witnesses in the house, as the member knows from that to what points he is to direct his exculpation, he may be heard to those points, before any question is moved or stated against him. He is then to be heard, and withdraw before any question is moved. But if the question itself is the charge, as for breach of order or matter arising in debate, then the charge must be stated (that is, the question must be moved), himself heard, and then to withdraw. 2 Hats. 121, 122.

Where the private interests of a member are concerned in a bill or question, he is to withdraw. And where such an interest has appeared, his voice has been disallowed, even after a division. In a case so contrary, not only to the laws of decency, but to the fundamental principle of the social compact which denies to any man to be a judge in his own cause, it is for the honor of the house that this rule of immemorial observance should be strictly adhered to. 2 Hats. 119, 121; 6 Grey, 368.

No member is to come into the house with his head covered, nor to move from one place to another with his hat on; nor is to put on his hat in coming in or removing, until he be set down in his place. Scob. 6.

A question of order may be adjourned to give time to look into precedents. 2 Hats. 118.

In Parliament, all decisions of the speaker may be controlled by the house. 3 Grey, 319.

SECTION XVIII.

ORDERS OF THE HOUSE.

Of right the door of the house ought not to be shut, but to be kept by porters or sergeants-at-arms assigned for that purpose. Mod. Ten. Parl. 23.

[By rules of the Senate, on motion made and seconded to shut the doors of the Senate on the discussion of any business which may, in the opinion of a member, require secrecy, the president shall direct the gallery to be cleared; and during the discussion of such motion the doors shall remain shut. Rule 18.]

[No motion shall be deemed in order to admit any person or persons whatsoever within the doors of the Senate chamber to present any petition, memorial or address, or to hear any such read. Rule 19.]

The only case where a member has a right to insist on anything is where he calls for the execution of a subsisting order of the house. Here, there having been already a resolution, any person has a right to insist that the speaker, or any other whose duty it is, shall carry it into execution; and no debate or delay can be had on it. Thus any member has a right to have the house or gallery cleared of strangers, an order existing for that purpose; or to have the house told where there is no quorum present. 2 Hats. 87, 129. How far an order of the house is binding, see Hakew. 392.

But where an order is made that any particular matter be taken up on a particular day, there a question is to be put, when it is called for, whether the house will now proceed to that matter? Where orders of the day are on important or interesting matter, they ought not to be proceeded on till an hour at which the house is usually full [which in the Senate is at noon].

Orders of the day may be discharged at any time, and a new one made for a different day. 3 Grey, 48, 313.

When a session is drawing to a close, and the important bills are all brought in, the house, in order to prevent interruption by further unimportant bills, sometimes comes to a resolution that no new bill be brought in, except it be sent from the other house. 3 Grey, 156.

All orders of the house determine with the session; and one taken under such an order may, after the session is ended, be discharged on a habcas corpus. Raym. 120; Jacob's L. D. by Ruffhead; Parliament, I Lev. 165, Pritchard's case.

[Where the Constitution authorizes each house to determine the rules of its proceedings, it must mean in those cases (legislative, executive, or judiciary) submitted to them by the Constitution, or in something relating to these, and necessary toward their execution. But orders and resolutions are sometimes entered in the journals having no relation to these, such as acceptances of invitations to attend orations, to take part in processions, etc. These must be understood to be merely conventional among those who are willing to participate in the ceremony, and are, therefore, perhaps, improperly placed among the records of the house.]

SECTION XIX.

PETITIONS.

A petition prays something. A remonstrance has no prayer. I Grey, 58. Petitions must be subscribed by the petitioners (Scob. 87; L. Parl., c. 22; 9 Grey, 362), unless they are attending (I Grey, 401), or unable to sign, and averred by a member (3 Grey, 418). But a petition not subscribed, but which the member presenting it affirmed to be all in the handwriting of the petitioner, and his name written in the beginning, was, on the question (March 14, 1800), received by the Senate. The averment of a member, or of somebody without doors, that they know the handwriting of the petitioners, is necessary, if it be questioned. 6 Grey, 36. It must be presented by a member, not by the petitioners, and must be opened by him, holding it in his hand. 10 Grey, 57.

[Before any petition or memorial addressed to the Senate shall be received and read at the table, whether the same shall be introduced by the president or a member, a brief statement of the contents of the petition or memorial shall verbally be made by the introducer. Rule 24.]

Regularly, a motion for receiving it must be made and seconded, and a question put, whether it shall be received; But a cry from the house of "Received," or even its silence, dispenses with the informality of this question; it is then to be read at the table and disposed of.

SECTION XX.

MOTIONS.

When a motion has been made, it is not to be put to the question or debated until it is seconded. Scob. 21.

[The Senate say, No motion shall be debated until the same shall be seconded. Rule 9.]

It is then, and not until then, in possession of the house, and can not be withdrawn but by leave of the house. It is to be put into writing, if the house or speaker require it, and must be read to the house by the speaker, as often as any member desire it for his information. 2 Hats. 82.

[The rule of the Senate is: When a motion shall be made and seconded, it shall be reduced to writing, if desired, by the president or any member, delivered in at the table and read, before the same shall be debated. * * * Rule 10.]

It might be asked whether a motion for adjournment or for the orders of the day can be made by any one member while another is speaking. It can not. When two members offer to speak, he who rose first is to be heard; and it is a breach of order in another to interrupt him, unless by calling him to order, if he departs from it. And, the question of order being decided, he is still to be heard through. A call for adjournment, or for the order of the day, or for the question, by gentlemen from their seats, is not a motion. No motion can be made without rising and addressing the chair. Such calls are themselves breaches of order, which, though the member who has risen may respect as an expression of impatience of the house against further debate, yet, if he chooses, he has a right to go on.

SECTION XXI.

RESOLUTIONS.

When the house commands, it is by an "order." But facts, principles, and their own opinion and purposes, are expressed in the form of resolutions.

[A resolution for an allowance of money to the clerks being moved, it was objected to as not in order, and so ruled by the chair; but on an appeal to the Senate (i. e., a call for their sense by the president, on account of doubt in his mind, according to Rule 26), the decision was overruled. Jour. Sen., June 1, 1796. I presume the doubt was, whether an allowance of money could be made otherwise than by bill.]

SECTION XXII.

BILLS.

[Every bill shall receive three readings previous to its being passed; and the president shall give notice at each whether it be first, second, or third; which reading shall be on three different days, unless the Senate unanimously direct otherwise. * * * Rule 25.]

SECTION XXIII.

BILLS, LEAVE TO BRING IN.

[One day's notice, at least, shall be given of an intended motion for leave to bring in a bill. Rule 25.]

When a member desires to bring in a bill on any subject, he states to the house in general terms the causes for doing it, and concludes by moving for leave to bring in a bill, entitled, etc. Leave being given on the question, a committee is appointed to prepare and bring in the bill. The mover and seconder are always appointed of this committee, and one or more in addition. Hahew. 122; Scob. 40.

It is to be presented fairly written, without any erasure or interlineation, or the speaker may refuse it. Scob. 41; 1 Grey, 82, 84.

SECTION XXIV.

BILLS, FIRST READING.

When a bill is first presented, the clerk reads it at the table, and hands it to the speaker, who, rising, states to the house the title of the bill; that this is the first time of reading it; and the question will be whether it shall be read a second time? then sitting down to give an opening for objections. If none be made, he rises again, and puts the question, whether it shall be read a second time? Hakew. 137, 141. A bill can not be amended on the first reading. 6 Grey, 286. Nor is it usual for it to be opposed then; but it may be done, and rejected. D'Ewes, 335, col. 1; 3 Hals. 198.

SECTION XXV.

BILLS, SECOND READING.

The second reading must regularly be on another day. Hakew. 143. It is done by the clerk at the table, who then hands it to the speaker. The speaker, rising, states to the house the title of the bill; that this is the second time of reading it; and that the question will be, whether it shall be committed, or engrossed and read a third time? But if the bill came from the other house, as it always comes engrossed, he states that the question will be, whether it shall be read a third time? and before he has so reported the state of the bill, no one is to speak to it. Hakew. 143, 146.

[In the Senate of the United States, the president reports the title of the bill; that this is the second time of reading it; that it is now to be considered as in a committee of the whole; and the question will be, whether it shall be read a third time? or that it may be referred to a special committee?]

SECTION XXVI.

BILLS, COMMITMENT.

If on motion and question it be decided that the bill shall be committed, it may then be moved to be referred to committee of the whole house, or to a special committee. If the latter, the speaker proceeds to name the committee. Any member may also name a single person, and the clerk is to write him down as of the committee. But the house have a controlling power over the names and number, if a question be moved against any one; and may in any case put in and put out whom they please.

Those who take exceptions to some particulars in the bill are to be of the committee, but none who speak directly against the body of the bill, for he that would totally destroy will not amend it (Hakew. 146; Town., col. 208; D'Ewes, 634, col. 2; Scob. 47), or, as it is said (5 Grey, 145), the child is not to be put to a nurse that cares not for it (6 Grey, 373). It is therefore a constant rule "that no man is to be employed in any matter who has declared himself against it." And when any member who is against the bill hears himself named of its committee, he ought to ask to be excused. Thus (March 7, 1606) Mr. Hadley was, on the question being put, excused from being of a committee, declaring himself to be against the matter itself. Scob. 45.

[No bill shall be committed or amended until it shall have been twice read; after which it may be referred to a committee. Rule 27.]

[In the appointment of the standing committees, the Senate will proceed, by ballot, severally to appoint the chairman of each committee, and then, by one ballot, the other members necessary to complete the same; and a majority of the whole number of votes given shall be necessary to the choice of a chairman of a standing committee. All other committees shall be appointed by ballot, and a plurality of votes shall make a choice. When any subject or matter shall have been referred to a committee, any other subject or matter of a similar nature may, on motion, be referred to such committee. Rule 34.]

The clerk may deliver the bill to any member of the committee (Town., col. 38); but it is usual to deliver to him who is first named.

In some cases the house has ordered a committee to withdraw immediately into the committee chamber, and act on and bring back the bill, sitting in the house. Scob. 48. A committee meet when and where they please, if the house has not ordered time and place for them (6 Grey, 370); but they can only act when together, and not by separate consultation and consent—nothing being the report of the committee but what has been agreed to in committee actually assembled.

A majority of the committee constitutes a quorum for business. Elsynge's Method of Passing Bills, 11.

Any member of the house may be present at any select committee, but can not vote, and must give place to all of the committee, and sit below them. Elsynge, 12: Scob. 40.

The committee have full power over the bill or other paper committed to them, except that they can not change the title or subject. 8 Grey, 228.

The paper before a committee, whether select or of the whole, may be a bill, resolutions, draught of an address, etc., and it may either originate with them or be referred to them. In every case the whole paper is read first by the clerk, and then by the chairman, by paragraphs (Scob. 49), pausing at the end of each paragraph, and putting questions for amending, if proposed. In the case of resolutions on distinct subjects originating with themselves, a question is put on each separately as amended or unamended, and no final question on the whole (3 Hats. 276); but if they relate to the same subject, a question is put on the whole. If it be a bill, draught of an address, or other paper originating with them, they proceed by paragraphs, putting questions for amending either by insertion or striking out, if proposed; but no question on agreeing to the paragraph separately; this is reserved to the close, when a question is put on the whole for agreeing to it as amended or unamended. But if it be a paper referred to them, they proceed to put questions of amendment, if proposed, but no final question on the whole, because all parts of the paper, having been adopted by the house, stand, of course, unless altered or struck out by a vote. Even if they are opposed to the whole paper, and think it can not be made good by amendments, they can not reject it, but must report it back to the house without amendments and there make their opposition.

The natural order in considering and amending any paper is to begin at the beginning, and proceed through it by paragraphs, and this order is so strictly adhered to in Parliament that when a latter part has been amended you can not recur back and make any alterations in a former part. 2 Hats. 90. In numerous assemblies this restraint is doubtless important. [But in the Senate of the United States, though in the main we consider and amend the paragraphs in their natural order, yet recurrences are indulged; and they seem, on the whole, in that small body, to produce advantages overweighing their inconveniences.]

To this natural order of beginning at the beginning there is a single exception found in parliamentary usage. When a bill is taken up in committee, or on its second reading, they postpone the preamble till the other parts of the bill are gone through. The reason is, that on consideration of the body of the bill, such alterations may therein be made as may also occasion the alteration of the preamble. Scob. 50; 7 Grey, 431.

On this head the following case occurred in the Senate, March 6, 1800: A resolution which had no preamble, having been already amended by the house so that a few words only of the original remained in it, a motion was made to prefix a preamble, which, having an aspect very different from the resolution, the mover intimated that he should afterwards propose a correspondent amendment in the body of the resolution. It was objected that a preamble could not be taken up till the body of the resolution is done with; but the preamble was received, because we are in fact through the body of the resolution; we have amended that as far as amendments have offered, and, indeed, till little of original is left. It is the proper time, therefore, to consider a preamble; and whether the one offered be consistent with the resolution is for the house to determine. The mover, indeed, has intimated that he shall offer a subsequent proposition for the body of the resolution; but the house is not in possession of it; it remains in his breast, and may be withheld. The rules of the house can only operate on what is before them. [The practice of the Senate, too, allows recurrences backwards and forwards, for the purpose of amendment, not permitting amendments in a subsequent to preclude those in a prior part, or econverso.]

When the committee is through the whole, a member moves that the committee may rise, and the chairman report the paper to the house, with or without amendments, as the case may be. 2 Hats. 289, 292; Scob. 53; 2 Hats. 290; 8 Scob. 50.

When a vote is once passed in a committee, it can not be altered but by the house, their votes being binding on themselves. 1607, June 4.

The committee may not erase, interline, or blot the bill itself; but must, in a paper by itself, set down the amendments, stating the words which are to be inserted or omitted (Scob. 50), and where, by references to the page, line and word of the bill. Scob. 50.

SECTION XXVII.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

The chairman of the committee, standing in his place, informs the house that the committee to whom was referred such a bill have, according to order, had the same under consideration, and have directed him to report the same without any amendment, or with sundry amendments (as the case may be), which he is ready to do when the house pleases to receive it. And he or any other may move that it be now received; but the cry of "Now, now," from the house generally dispenses with the formality of a motion and question. He then reads the amendments, with the coherence in the bill, and opens the alterations and the reasons of the committee for much amendments, until he has gone through the whole. He then delivers it at the clerk's table, where the amendments reported are read by the clerk without the coherence; whereupon the papers lie upon the table till the house, at its convenience, shall take up the report. Scob. 52; Hakew. 148.

The report being made, the committee is dissolved, and can act no more without a new power. Scob. 51. But it may be revived by a vote; and the same matter recommitted to them. 4 Grey, 361.

SECTION XXVIII.

BILLS, RECOMMITMENT.

After a bill has been committed and reported, it ought not, in any ordinary course, to be recommitted; but in case of importance, and for special reasons, it is sometimes recommitted, and usually to the same committee. Hakew. 151. If a report be recommitted before agreed to in the house, what has passed in committee is of no validity; the whole question is again before the committee, and a new resolution must be again moved, as if nothing had passed. 2 Hals. 131—note.

In Senate, January, 1800, the salvage bill was recommitted three times after the commitment.

A particular clause of a bill may be committed without the whole bill (3 Hats. 131); or so much of a paper to one and so much to another committee.

SECTION XXIX.

BILL, REPORTS TAKEN UP.

When the report of a paper originating with a committee is taken up by the house, they proceed exactly as in committee. Here, as in committee, when the paragraphs have, on distinct questions, been agreed to seriatim (5 Grey, 366; 6 Grey, 368; 8 Grey, 47, 104, 360; 1 Torbuck's Deb. 125; 3 Hats. 348), no question need be put on the whole report. 5 Grey, 381.

On taking up a bill reported with amendments, the amendments only are read by the clerk. The speaker then reads the first, and puts it to the question, and so on until the whole are adopted or rejected, before any other amendment be admitted, except it be an amendment to an amendment. Elsynge's Mem. 53. When, through the amendments of the committee, the speaker pauses, and gives time for amendments to be proposed in the house to the body of the bill, as he does also if it has been reported without amendments, putting no questions but on amendments proposed; and, when through the whole, he puts the question whether the bill be read the third time.

SECTION XXX.

QUASI-COMMITTEE.

If on motion and question the bill be not committed, or if no proposition for commitment be made, then the proceedings in the Senate of the United States and in Parliament are totally different. The former shall be first stated.

[The twenty-eighth rule of the Senate says: "All bills on a second reading shall first be considered by the Senate in the same manner as if the Senate were in committee of the whole, before they shall be taken up and proceeded on by the Senate agreeably to the standing rules, unless otherwise ordered" (that is to say, unless ordered to be referred to a special committee). And when the Senate shall consider a treaty, bill, or resolution, as in committee of the whole, the vice president or president pro tempore may call a member to fill the chair during the time the Senate shall remain in committee of the whole; and the chairman (so-called) shall, during such time, have the powers of the president pro tempore.]

[The proceedings of the Senate, as in a committee of the whole, or in quasi-committee, are precisely as in a real committee of the whole, taking no questions but on amendments. When through the whole, they consider the quasi-committee as risen, the house resumes without any motion, question or resolution to that effect, and the president reports that "The house, acting in a committee of the whole, have had under their consideration the bill cntitled, etc., and have made sundry amendments, which he will now report to the house." The bill is then before them, as it would have been if reported from a committee, and the questions are regularly to be put again on every amendment; which being gone through, the president pauses to give time to the house to propose amendments to the body of the bill, and, when through, puts the question whether it shall be read a third time.]

[After progress in amending the bill in quasi-committee, a motion may be made to refer it to a special committee. If the motion prevails, it is equivalent in effect to the several votes, that the committee rise, the house resume itself, discharge the committee of the whole, and refer the bill to a special committee. In that case, the amendments already fall. But if the motion fails, the quasi-committee stands in statu quo.]

[How far does this twenty-eighth rule subject the house, when in quasicommittee, to the laws which regulate the proceedings of committees of the whole? The particulars in which these differ from proceedings in the house are the following: I. In a committee every member may speak as often as he pleases. 2. The votes of a committee may be rejected or altered when reported to the house. 3. A committee, even of the whole, can not refer any matter to another committee. 4. In a committee no previous question can be taken; the only means to avoid any improper discussion is to move that the committee rise; and if it be apprehended that the same discussion will be attempted on returning into committee, the house can discharge them, and proceed itself on the business, keeping down the improper discussion by the previous question. 5. A committee can not punish a breach of order in the house or in the gallery. 9 Grey, 113. It can only rise and report it to the house, who may proceed to punish. [The first and second of these peculiarities attach to the quasi-committee of the Senate, as every day's practice proves, and seem to be the only ones to which the twenty-eighth rule meant to subject them: for it continues to be a house, and therefore, though it acts in some respects as a committee, in others it preserves its character as a house. Thus [3] it is in the daily habit of referring its business to a special committee. 4. It admits of the previous question. If it did not, it would have no means of preventing an improper discussion; not being able, as a committee is, to avoid it by returning into the house, for the moment it would resume the same subject there; the twenty-eighth rule declares it again a quasi-committee. 5. It would doubtless exercise its powers as a house on any breach of order. 6. It takes a question by yea and nay, as the house does. 7. It receives messages from the president and the other house. 8. In the midst of a debate it receives a motion to adjourn, and adjourns as a house, not a committee.]

SECTION XXXI.

BILL, SECOND READING IN THE HOUSE.

In Parliament, after the bill has been read the second time, if on the motion and question it be not committed, or if no proposition for commitment be made, the speaker reads it by paragraphs, pausing between each, but putting no question but on amendments proposed; and when through the whole, he puts the question, whether it shall be read a third time? If it comes from the other house, or, if originating with themselves, whether it shall be engrossed and read a third time? The speaker reads sitting, but rises to put questions. The clerk stands while he reads.

[*But the Senate of the United States is so much in the habit of making many and material amendments at the third reading that it has become the practice not to engross a bill until it has passed—an irregular and dangerous practice, because in this way the paper which passes the Senate is not that which goes to the other house, and that which goes to the other house as the act of the Senate has never been seen in the Senate. In reducing numerous, difficult and illegible amendments into the text, the secretary may, with the most innocent intentions, commit errors which can never again be corrected.]

The bill being now as perfect as its friends can make it, this is the proper stage for those fundamentally opposed to make their first attack. All attempts at earlier periods are with disjointed efforts, because many who do not expect to be in favor of the bill ultimately are willing to let it go on to its perfect state, to take time to examine it themselves and to hear what can be said for it, knowing that after all they will have sufficient opportunities of giving it their veto. Its last two stages, therefore, are reserved for this—that is to say, on the question, whether it shall be engrossed and read a third time, and, lastly, whether it shall pass? The first of these is usually the most interesting contest, because then the whole subject is new and engaging, and the minds of the members having not yet been declared by any trying vote, the issue is the more doubtful. In this stage, therefore, is the main trial of strength between its friends and opponents, and it behooves everyone to make up his mind decisively for this question, or he loses the main battle; and accident and management may, and often do, prevent a successful rallying on the next and last question, whether it shall pass. When the bill is engrossed, the title is to be indorsed on the back, and not within the bill. Hakew. 250.

^{*}The former practice of the senate referred to in this paragraph has been changed by the following rule:

[[]Rule 29. The final question upon the second reading of every bill, resolution, constitutional amendment or motion, originating in the senate, and requiring three readings previous to being passed, shall be, "Whether it shall be engrossed and read a third time?" and no amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill, resolution, amendment or motion, unless by unanimous consent of the members present; but it shall at all times be in order before the final passage of any such bill, resolution, constitutional amendment or motion, to move its commitment; and should such commitment take place, and any amendment be reported by the committee, the said bill, resolution, constitutional amendment or motion, shall be again read a second time, and considered as in committee of the whole, and then the aforesaid question shall be again put.]

SECTION XXXII.

READING PAPERS.

Where papers are laid before the house or referred to a committee, every member has a right to have them once read at the table before he can be compelled to vote on them; but it is a great, though common, error to suppose that he has a right, toties quoties, to have acts, journals, accounts, or papers on the table read independently of the will of the house. The delay and interruption which this might be made to produce evince the impossibility of the existence of such a right. There is, indeed, so manifest a propriety of permitting every member to have as much information as possible on every question on which he is to vote, that when he desires the reading, if it be seen that it is really for information and not for delay, the speaker directs it to be read without putting the question, if no one objects; but if objected to, a question must be put. 2 Hals. 117, 118.

It is equally an error to suppose that any member has a right, without a question put, to lay a book or paper on the table, or have it read, on suggesting that it contains matter infringing on the privileges of the house. Ib.

For the same reason a member has not a right to read a paper in his place, if it be objected to, without leave of the house. But this rigor is never exercised but where there is an intentional or gross abuse of the time and patience of the house.

A member has not a right even to read his own speech, committed to writing, without leave. This also is to prevent an abuse of time, and therefore is not refused but where that is intended. 2 Grcy, 226.

A report of a committee of the Senate on a bill from the House of Representatives being under consideration, on motion that the report of the committee of the House of Representatives on the same bill be read in the Senate, it passed in the negative. Feb. 28, 1793.

Formerly when papers were referred to a committee, they used to be first read: but of late only the titles, unless a number insist they shall be read, and then nobody can oppose it. 2 Hats. 117.

SECTION XXXIII.

PRIVILEGED QUESTIONS.

[*While a question is before the Senate no motion shall be received, unless for an amendment, for the previous question, or for postponing the main question, or to commit it, or to adjourn. Rule 11.]

It is no possession of a bill unless it be delivered to the clerk to be read, or the speaker reads the title. Lex. Parl. 274; Elsynge's Mcm. 85; Ord. House of Commons, 64.

It is a general rule that the question first moved and seconded shall be first put. Scob. 28, 22; 2 Hats. 81. But this rule gives way to what may be called privileged questions; and the privileged questions are of different grades among themselves.

A motion to adjourn simply takes place of all others, for otherwise the house might be kept sitting against its will, and indefinitely. Yet this motion can not be received after another question is actually put, and while the house is engaged in voting.

Orders of the day take place of all other questions, except for adjournment-that is to say, the question which is the subject of an order is made a privileged one, pro hac vice. The order is a repeal of the general rule as to this special case. When any member moves, therefore, for the order of the day to be read, no further debate is permitted on the question which was before the house; for if the debate might proceed, it might continue through the day and defeat the order. This motion, to entitle it to precedence, must be for the orders generally, and not for any particular one; and if it be carried on the question, "Whether the house will now proceed to the orders of the day?" they must be read and proceeded on in the course in which they stand (2 Hats. 83); for priority of order gives priority of right, which can not be taken away but by another special order.

After these there are other privileged questions, which will require considerable explanation.

It is proper that every parliamentary assembly should have certain forms of questions, so adapted as to enable them fitly to dispose of every proposition which can be made to them. Such are: 1. The previous question. 2. To postpone indefinitely. 3. To adjourn a question to a definite day. 4. To lie on the table. 5. To commit. 6. To amend. The proper occasion for each of these questions should be understood.

- I. When a proposition is moved which it is useless or inexpedient now to express or discuss, the previous question has been introduced for suppressing for that time the motion and its discussion. 3 Hats. 188, 180.
- 2. But as the previous question gets rid of it only for that day, and the same proposition may recur the next day, if they wish to suppress it for the whole of that session, they postpone it indefinitely. 3 Hats. 183. This

^{*}This rule has been modified so as to specify the question entitled to preference. The rule is now as follows:

[When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn. to lay on the table, to postpone indefinitely, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or to amend; which several motions shall have precedence in the order they stand arranged, and the motion for adjournment shall always be in order, and be decided without debate.]

quashes the proposition for that session, as an indefinite adjournment is a dissolution, or the continuance of a suit sine die is a discontinuance of it.

- 3. When a motion is made which it will be proper to act on, but information is wanted, or something more pressing claims the present time, the question or debate is adjourned to such a day within the session as will answer the views of the house. 2 Hats. 81. And those who have spoken before may not speak again when the adjourned debate is resumed. 2 Hats. 73. Sometimes, however, this has been abusedly used by adjourning it to a day beyond the session, to get rid of it altogether, as would be done by an indefinite postponement.
- 4. When the house has something else which claims its present attention, but would be willing to reserve in their power to take up a proposition whenever it shall suit them, they order it to lie on the table. It may then be called for at any time.
- 5. If the proposition will want more amendment and digestion than the formalities of the house will conveniently admit, they refer it to a committee.
- 6. But if the proposition be well digested, and may need but few and simple amendments, and especially if these be of leading consequence, they then proceed to consider and amend it themselves.

The Senate, in their practice, vary from this regular gradation of forms. Their practice comparatively with that of Parliament stands thus:

FOR THE PARLIAMENT:

Postponement indefinite,

Adjournment,

Adjournment,

Postponement to a day beyond the session,

Postponement to a day within the session,

Postponement indefinite.

Lying on the table.

Lying on the table.

In their eighth rule, therefore, which declares that while the question is before the Senate no motion shall be received, unless it be for the previous question, or to postpone, commit or amend the main question, the term postponement must be understood according to their broad uses of it, and not in the parliamentary sense. Their rule then establishes as privileged questions the previous questions, postponement, commitment, and amendment.

But it may be asked, have these questions any privileges among themselves? or are they so equal that the common principle of the "first moved first put" takes place among them? This will need explanation. Their competitions may be as follows:

	Previous question and	commit	In the first, second and
2.	Postpone and previous	question commit amend	third classes, and the first member of the fourth class, the rule "first moved first
3∙	Commit and previous	questionpostponeamend	put," takes place.
4.	Amend and previous	question postpone commit

In the first class, where the previous question is first moved, the effect is peculiar, for it not only prevents the after motion to postpone or commit from being put to question before it, but also from being put after it; for if the previous question be decided affirmatively, to-wit: that the main question shall now be put, it would of course be against the decision to postpone or commit, and if it be decided negatively, to-wit: that the main question shall not now be put, this puts the house out of possession of the main question, and consequently there is nothing before them to postpone or commit. So that neither voting for or against the previous question will enable the advocates for postponing or committing to get at their object. Whether it may be amended shall be examined hereafter.

Second class. If the postponement be decided affirmatively, the proposition is removed from before the house; and consequently there is no ground for the previous question, commitment or amendment; but if decided negatively (that it shall not be postponed), the main question may then be suppressed by the previous question, or may be committed or amended.

The third class is subject to the same observation as the second.

The fourth class. Amendment of the main question first moved, and afterwards the previous question, the question of amendment shall be first put.

Amendment and postponement competing, postponement is first put, as the equivalent proposition to adjourn the main question would be in Parliament. The reason is, that the question for amendment is not suppressed by postponing or adjourning the main question, but remains before the house whenever the main question is resumed; and it might be that the occasion for other urgent business might go by, and be lost by length of debate on the amendment if the house had it not in their power to postpone the whole subject.

Amendment and commitment. The question for committing though last moved shall be first put; because, in truth, it facilitates and befriends the motion to amend. Scobell is express: "On motion to amend a bill, any one may, notwithstanding, move to commit it, and the question for commitment shall be first put." Scob. 46.

We have hitherto considered the question of two or more of the privileged questions contending for privilege between themselves, when both are moved on the original or main question; but now let us suppose one of them to be moved, not on the original primary question, but on the secondary one, e. g.

Suppose a motion to postpone, commit, or amend the main question, and that it be moved to suppress that motion by putting a previous question on it. This is not allowed, because it would embarrass questions too much to allow them to be piled on one another several stories high; and the same result may be had in a more simple way, by deciding against the postponement, commitment, or amendment. 2 Hats. 81, 2, 3, 4.

Suppose a motion for the previous question, or commitment, or amendment of the main question, and that it be then moved to postpone the motion for the previous question, or for commitment, or amendment of the main question. I. It would be absurd to postpone the previous question, commitment, or amendment alone, and thus separate the appendage from its principal; yet it must be postponed separately from its original, if at all, because the eighth rule of the Senate says that "when a main question is before the house, no motion shall be received but to commit, amend or pre-question the original question," which is the parliamentary doctrine also; therefore, the motion to postpone the secondary motion for the previous question, or for committing or amending, can not be received. 2. This is a piling of questions one on another, which, to avoid embarrassment, is not allowed. 3. The same result may be had more simply by voting against the previous question, commitment or amendment.

Suppose a commitment moved of a motion for the previous question, or to postpone or amend. The first, second and third reasons before stated all hold good against this.

Suppose an amendment moved to a motion for the previous question. Answer: The previous question can not be amended. Parliamentary usage, as well as the ninth rule of the Senate, has fixed its form to be, "Shall the main question be now put?"-i. e., at this instant; and as the present instant is but one, it can admit of no modification. To change it to to-morrow, or any other moment, is without example and without utility. But suppose a motion to amend a motion for postponement as to one day instead of another, or to a special instead of an indefinite time. The useful character of amendment gives it a privilege of attaching itself to a secondary and privileged motion; that is, we may amend a postponement of a main question. So, we may amend a commitment of a main question, as by adding, for example, "with instructions to inquire," etc. In like manner, if an amendment be moved to an amendment, it is admitted; but it would not be admitted in another degree, to-wit: to amend an amendment to an amendment of a main question. This would lead to too much embarrassment. The line must be drawn somewhere, and usage has drawn it after the amendment to the amendment. The same result must be sought by deciding against the amendment to the amendment and then moving it again as it wished to be amended. In this form it becomes only amendment to an amendment.

[When motions are made for reference of the same subject to a select committee and to a standing committee, the question on reference to the standing committee shall be first put. Rule 36.]

[In filling a blank with the sum, the largest sum should be first put to the question, by the thirteenth rule of the Senate,*] contrary to the rule of Parliament, which privileges the smallest sum and the longest time. 5 Grey, 179; 2 Hats. 8, 83; 3 Hats. 132, 133. And this is considered to be not in the form of an amendment to the question, but as alternative or successive originals. In all cases of time or number, we must consider whether the larger comprehends the lesser as in a question to what day a postponement shall be, the number of a committee, amount of a fine, term of an imprisonment, term of irredeemability of a loan, or the terminus in quem in any other case; then the question must begin a maximo. Or whether the lesser includes the greater, as in questions on the limitation of the rate of interest, on what day the session shall be closed by adjournment, on what day the next shall commence, when an act shall commence, or the terminus a quo in any other case where the question must begin a minimo; the object being not to begin at that extreme which, and more, being within every man's wish, no one could negative it, and yet, if he should vote in the affirmative, every question for more would be precluded, but at that extreme which would unite few, and then to advance or recede till you get a number which will unite a bare majority. 3 Grey, 376, 384, 385. "The fair question, in this case, is not that to which, and more, all will agree, whether there shall be addition to the question." Grey, 355.

Another exception to the rule of priority is when a motion has been made to strike out or agree to a paragraph. Motions to amend it are to be put to the question before a vote is taken on striking out or agreeing to the whole paragraph.

But there are several questions which, being incidental to every one, will take place of every one, privileged or not, to-wit: a question of order arising out of any other question must be decided before that question. 2 Hats. 88.

A matter of privilege arising out of any question, or from a quarrel between two members, or any other cause, supersedes the consideration of the original question, and must be first disposed of. 2 Hats. 88.

Reading papers relative to the question before the house. This question must be put before the principal one. 2 Hats. 88.

Leave asked to withdraw a motion. The rule of Parliament being that a motion made and seconded is in the possession of the house, and can not be withdrawn without leave, the very terms of the rule imply that leave may be given, and, consequently, may be asked and put to the question.

SECTION XXXIV.

THE PREVIOUS QUESTION.

When any question is before the house, any member may move a previous question, "Whether that question (called the main question) shall now be put?" If it pass in the affirmative, then the main question is to be put immediately, and no man may speak anything further to it, either to add or alter. Memorials in Hakew. 28; 4 Grey, 27.

The previous question being moved and seconded, the question from the chair shall be, "Shall the main question be now put?" and if the nays prevail, the main question shall not then be put.

This kind of question is understood by Mr. Hatsell to have been introduced in 1604. I Hats. 80. Sir Henry Vane introduced it. 2 Grey, 113, 114; 3 Grey, 384. When the question was put in this form, "Shall the main question be put?" a determination in the negative suppressed the main question during the session; but since the words "now put" are used, they exclude it for the present only; formerly, indeed, only till the present debate was over (4 Grey, 43), but now for that day and no longer. 2 Grey, 113, 114.

Before the question, "Whether the main question shall now be put?" any person might formerly have spoken to the main question, because otherwise he would be precluded from speaking to it at all. Memorials in Hakew. 28.

The proper occasion for the previous question is when a question is brought forward of a delicate nature as to high personages, etc., or the discussion of which may call forth observations which might be of injurious consequences. Then the previous question is proposed, and, in the modern usage, the discussion of the main question is suspended, and the debate confined to the previous question. The use of it has been extended abusively to other cases; but in these it has been an embarrassing procedure; its uses would be as well answered by other more simple parliamentary forms, and therefore it should not be favored, but restricted within as narrow limits as possible.

Whether a main question may be amended after the previous question on it has been moved and seconded? 2 Hats. 88, says, if the previous question has been moved and seconded, and also proposed from the chair (by which he means stated by the speaker for debate), it has been doubted whether an amendment can be admitted to the main question. He thinks it may, after the previous question is moved and seconded; but not after it has been proposed from the chair. In this case he thinks the friends to the amendment must vote that the main question be not now put, and then move their amended question, which being made new by the amendment, is no longer the same which has just been suppressed, and therefore may be proposed as a new one. But this proceeding certainly endangers the main question, by dividing its friends, some of whom may choose it unamended, rather than lose it altogether; while others of them may vote, as Hatsell advises, that the main question be not now put, with a view to move it again in an amended form. The enemies of the main question, by this maneuver to the previous question, get the enemies to the amendment added to them on the first vote, and throw the friends of the main question under the embarrassment of rallying again as they can. To support his opinion, too, he makes the deciding circumstances, whether an amendment may or may not be made, to be, that the previous question has been proposed from the chair. But, as the rule is that the house is in possession of a question as soon as it is moved and seconded, it can not be more than possessed of it by its being also proposed from the chair. It may be said, indeed, that the object of the previous question being to get rid of a question which it is not expedient should be discussed, this object may be defeated by moving to amend, and, in the discussion of that motion, involving the subject of the main question. But so may the object of the previous question be defeated, by moving the amended question, as Mr. Hatsell proposes, after the decision against putting the original question. He acknowledges, too, that the practice has been to admit previous amendments, and only cites a few late instances to the contrary. On the whole, I should think it best to decide it ab inconvenienti, to-wit: which is most inconvenient, to put it in the power of one side of the house to defeat a proposition by hastily moving the previous question, and thus forcing the main question to be put unamended, or to put it in the power of the other side to force on, incidentally at least, a discussion which would be better avoided? Perhaps the last is the least inconvenience, inasmuch as the speaker, by confining the discussion rigorously to the amendment only, may prevent their going into the main question, and inasmuch, also, as so great a proportion of the cases in which the previous question is called for are fair and proper subjects for public discussion, and ought not to be obstructed by a formality introduced for questions of a peculiar character.

SECTION XXXV.

AMENDMENTS.

On an amendment being moved, a member who has spoken to the main question may speak again to the amendment. Scob. 23.

If an amendment be proposed inconsistent with one already agreed to, it is a fit ground for its rejection by the house, but not within the competence of the speaker to suppress as if it were against order; for were he permitted to draw questions of consistence within the vortex of order, he might usurp a negative on important modifications, and suppress instead of subserving the legislative will.

Amendments may be made so as totally to alter the nature of the proposition; and it is a way of getting rid of a proposition, by making it bear a sense different from what it was intended by the movers, so that they vote against it themselves. 2 Hats. 79, 4, 82, 84. A new bill may be engrafted by way of amendment, on the words "Be it enacted," etc. 1 Grey, 190, 192.

If it be proposed to amend by leaving out certain words, it may be moved as an amendment to this amendment, to leave out a part of the words of the amendment, which is equivalent to leaving them in the bill. 2 Hats. 80, 9. The parliamentary question is, always, whether the words shall stand part of the bill.

When it is proposed to amend by inserting a paragraph, or part of one, the friends of the paragraph may make it as perfect as they can by amendments before the question is put for inserting it. If it be received, it can not be amended afterward, in the same stage, because the house has on a vote agreed to it in that form. In like manner, if it is proposed to amend by striking out a paragraph, the friends of the paragraph are first to make it as perfect as they can by amendments, before the question is put for striking it out. If on the question it be retained, it can not be amended afterwards, because a vote against striking out is equivalent to a vote agreeing to it in that form.

When it is moved to amend by striking out certain words and inserting others, the manner of stating the question is first to read the whole passage to be amended as it stands at present, then the words proposed to be struck out, next those to be inserted, and lastly the whole passage as it will be when amended. And the question, if desired, is then to be divided, and put first on striking out. If carried, it is next on inserting the words proposed. If that be lost, it may be moved to insert others. 2 Hals. 80, 7.

A motion is made to amend by striking out certain words and inserting others in their place, which is negatived. Then it is moved to strike out the same words, and to insert others of a tenor entirely different from those first proposed. It is negatived. Then it is moved to strike out the same words and insert nothing, which is agreed to. All this is admissible, because to strike out and insert A is one proposition. To strike out and insert B is a different proposition. And to strike out and insert nothing is still different. And the rejection of one proposition does not preclude the offering a different one. Nor would it change the case were the first motion divided by putting the question first on striking out, and that negatived; for, as putting the whole motion to the question at once would not have precluded, the putting the half of it can not do it.*

But if it had been carried affirmatively to strike out the words and to insert A, it could not afterwards be permitted to strike out A and insert B. The mover of B should have notified, while the insertion of A was under debate, that he would move to insert B; in which case those who preferred it would join in rejecting A.

After A is inserted, however, it may be moved to strike out a portion of the original paragraph, comprehending A, provided the coherence to be struck out be so substantial as to make this effectively a different proposition, for then it is resolved into the common case of striking out a paragraph after amending it. Nor does anything forbid a new insertion, instead of A and its coherents.

In Senate, Jan. 25, 1798, a motion to postpone until the second Tuesday in February some amendments proposed to the Constitution, the words, "until the second Tuesday in February," were struck out by way of amendment. Then it was moved to add, "until the first day of June." Objected that it was not in order, as the question should be first put on the longest time: therefore, after shorter time decided against, a longer time can not be put to question. It was answered that this rule takes place only in filling blanks for time. But when a specific time stands part of motion, that may be struck out as well as any other part of a motion; and when struck out, a motion may be received to insert any other. In fact, it is not until they are struck out, and a blank for the time thereby produced, that the rule can begin to operate, by receiving all the propositions for different times and putting the questions successively on the longest. Otherwise it would be in the power of the mover, by inserting originally a short time, to preclude the possibility of a longer, for till the short time is struck out, you can not insert a longer; and if, after it is struck out, you can not do it, then it can not be done at all. Suppose the first motion had been made to amend by striking out "the second Tuesday in February," and insert instead thereof, "the first of June," it would have been regular, then, to divide the question, by proposing the first question to strike out and then that to insert. Now this is precisely the effect of the present proceeding; only, instead of one motion and two questions, there are two motions and two questions to effect it—the motion being divided as well as the question.

^{*}In the case of a division of the question, and a decision against striking out, I advance doubtingly the opinion here expressed. I find no authority either way and I know it may be viewed under a different aspect. It may be thought that, having decided separately not to strike out the passage, the same question for striking out can not be put over again, though with a view to a different insertion. Still I think it more reasonable and convenient to consider the striking out and insertion as forming one proposition; but should readily yield to any evidence that the contrary is the practice in Parliament.

When the matter contained in two bills might better be put into one, the manner is to reject the one, and incorporate its matter into another bill by way of amendment. So if the matter of one bill would be better distributed into two, any part may be struck out, by way of amendment, and put into a new bill. If a section is to be transposed, a question must be put on striking it out where it stands, and another for inserting it in the place desired.

A bill passed by the one house with blanks. These may be filled up by the other by way of amendments, returned to the first as such, and passed. 3 Hats. 83.

The number prefixed to the section of a bill being merely a marginal indication, and no part of the text of the bill, the clerk regulates that—the house or committee is only to amend the text.

SECTION XXXVI.

DIVISION OF THE QUESTION.

If a question contain more parts than one, it may be divided into two or more questions. Mem. in Hakew. 39. But not as the right of an individual member, but with the consent of the house. For who is to decide whether a question is complicated or not?—where is it complicated?—into how many propositions it may be divided? The fact is that the only mode of separating a complicated question is by moving amendments to it; and these must be decided by the house, on a question, unless the house orders it to be divided; as, on a question, Dec. 2, 1640, making void the election of the knights for Worcester, on a motion it was resolved to make two questions of it, to-wit: one on each knight. 2 Hats. 85, 86. So, wherever there are several names in question, they may be divided and put one by one. 9 Grey, 444. So, 1729, April 17, on an objection that a question was complicated, it was separated by amendment. 2 Hats. 79.

The soundness of these observations will be evident from the embarrassments produced by the twelfth rule of the Senate, which says: "If the question in debate contain several points, any member may have the same divided."

1798, May 30, the alien bill in quasi-committee. To a section and proviso in the original had been added two new provisos by way of amendment. On a motion to strike out the section as amended, the question was desired to be divided. To do this it must be put first on striking out either the former proviso, or some distinct member of the section. But when nothing remains but the last member of the section and the proviso, they can not be divided so as to put the last member to question by itself; for the provisos might then be left standing alone as exceptions to a rule when the rule is taken away, or the new provisos might be left to a second question, after having been decided on once before at the same reading, which is contrary to rule. But the question must be on striking out the last member of the section as amended. This sweeps away the exceptions with the rule, and relieves from inconsistence. A question, to be divisible, must comprehend points so distinct and entire that, one of them being taken away, the other may stand entire. But a proviso or an exception without an enacting clause does not contain an entire point or proposition.

May 31. The same bill being before the Senate. There was a proviso that the bill should not extend: (1) To any foreign minister; nor (2) to any person whom the president should give a passport; nor (3) to any alien merchant conforming himself to such regulations as the president shall prescribe; and a division of the question into its simplest elements was called for. It was divided into four parts, the fourth taking in the words, "conforming himself," etc. It was objected that the words; "any alien merchant," could not be separated from their modifying words, "conforming," etc., because these words, if left by themselves, contain no substantive idea—will make no sense. But admitting that the divisions of a paragraph into separate questions must be so made that each part may stand by itself, yet the house having on the question retained the two first divisions, the words, "any alien merchant," may be struck out, and their modifying words will then attach themselves to the preceding description of persons, and become a modification of that description.

When a question is divided, after the question on the first member, the second is open to debate and amendment; because it is a known rule that a person may rise and speak at any time before the question has been completely decided by putting the negative as well as the affirmative side. But the question is not completely put when the vote has been taken on the first member only. One-half of the question, both affirmative and negative, remains still to be put. See Execut. Jour., June 25, 1795. The same decision by President Adams.

SECTION XXXVII.

COEXISTING QUESTIONS.

It may be asked whether the house can be in possession of two motions or propositions at the same time? so that one of them being decided, the other goes to questions without being moved anew? The answer must be special. When a question is interrupted by a vote of adjournment, it is thereby removed from before the house, and does not stand ipso facto before them at their next meeting, but must come forward in the usual way. So, when it is interrupted by the order of the day. Such other privileged questions also as dispose of the main question (e. g., the previous question, postponement, or commitment) remove it from before the house. But it is only suspended by a motion to amend, to withdraw, to read papers, or by a question of order or privilege, and stands again before the house when these are decided. None but the class of privileged questions can be brought forward while there is another question before the house, the rule being that when a motion has been made and seconded no other can be received, except it be a privileged one.

SECTION XXXVIII.

EQUIVALENT.

If, on a question for rejection, a bill be retained, it passes, of course, to its next reading. Hakew. 141; Scob. 42. And a question for a second reading determined negatively is a rejection without further question. 4 Grey, 145. And see Elsynge's Memor. 42, in what cases questions are to be taken for rejection.

Where questions are perfectly equivalent, so that the negative of the one amounts to the affirmative of the other, and leaves no other alternative, the decision of the one concludes necessarily the other. 4 Grey, 157. Thus the negative of striking out amounts to the affirmative of agreeing; and therefore to put a question on agreeing after that on striking out would be to put the same question, in effect, twice over. Not so in questions of amendments between the two houses. A motion to recede being negative, does not amount to a positive vote to insist, because there is another alternative, towit: to adhere.

A bill originating in one house is passed by the other with an amendment. A motion in the originating house to agree to the amendment is negatived. Does there result from this a vote of disagreement, or must the question on disagreement be expressly voted? The questions respecting amendments from another house are—ist, to agree; 2d, to disagree; 3d, to recede; 4th, insist; 5th, adhere.

1st. To agree.
2d. To disagree.

Either of these concludes the other necessarily, for the positive of either is exactly the equivalent of the negative of the other, and no other alternative remains. On either motion amendments to the amendments may be proposed—e. g., if it be moved to disagree, those who are for the amendment have a right to propose amendments, and to make it as perfect as they can, before the question of disagreeing is put.

3d. To recede. 4th. To insist.

4th. To insist. 5th. To adhere. You may then either insist or adhere.

You may then either recede or adhere.

You may then either recede or insist.

Consequently the negative of these is not equivalent to a positive vote the other way. It does not raise so necessary an implication as may authorize the secretary by inference to enter another vote; for two alternatives still remain, either of which may be adopted by the house.

SECTION XXXIX.

THE QUESTION.

The question is to be put first on the affirmative and then on the negative side.

After the speaker has put the affirmative part of the question, any member who has not spoken before to the question may rise and speak before the negative be put; because it is no full question till the negative part be put. Scob. 23; 2 Hats. 73.

But in small matters, and which are, of course, such as receiving petitions, reports, withdrawing motions, reading papers, etc., the speaker most commonly supposes the consent of the house where no objection is expressed, and does not give them the trouble of putting the question formally. Scob. 22; 2 Hats. 87; 5 Grey, 129; 9 Grey, 301.

SECTION XL.

BILLS, THIRD READING.

To prevent bills from being passed by surprise, the house, by a standing order, directs that they shall not be put on their passage before a fixed hour, naming one at which the house is commonly full. Hakew. 153.

[The usage of the Senate is not to put bills on their passage till noon.]

A bill reported and passed to the third reading can not on that day be read the third time and passed; because this would be to pass on two readings in the same day.

At the third reading the clerk reads the bill and delivers it to the speaker, who states the title, that it is the third time of reading the bill, and that the question will be whether it shall pass. Formerly the speaker, or those who prepared a bill, prepared also a breviate or summary statement of its contents, which the speaker read when he declared the state of the bill, at the several readings. Sometimes, however, he reads the bill itself, especially on its passage. Hakew. 136-37, 153; Coke, 22, 115. Latterly, instead of this, he, at the third reading, states the whole contents of the bill verbalim; only, instead of reading the formal parts, "Be it enacted," etc., he states that "preamble recites so and so—the first section enacts that, etc.; the second section enacts," etc.

[But in the Senate of the United States both of these formalities are dispensed with; the breviate presenting but an imperfect view of the bill, and being capable of being made to present a false one; and the full statement being a useless waste of time, immediately after a full reading by the clerk, and especially as every member has a printed copy in his hand.]

A bill on the third reading is not to be committed for the matter or body thereof; but to receive some particular clause or proviso, it has been sometimes suffered, but is a thing very unusual. Hakew. 126. Thus (27 El. 1584) a bill was committed on the third reading, having been formally committed on the second, but is declared not usual. D'Ewes, 337, col. 2; 414, col. 2.

When an essential provision has been omitted, rather than erase the bill and render it suspicious they add a clause on a separate paper, engrossed and called a rider, which is read and put to the question three times. Elsynge's Memorials, 59; 6 Grey, 335; 1 Blackst. 183. For example of riders, see 3 Hats. 121, 122, 124, 126. Everyone is at liberty to bring in a rider without asking leave. 10 Grey, 52.

It is laid down as a general rule that amendments proposed at the second reading shall be twice read, and those proposed at the third reading thrice read, as also all amendments from the other house. Town., col. 19, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28.

It is with great and almost invincible reluctance that amendments are admitted at this reading which occasion erasures or interlineations. Sometimes a proviso has been cut off from a bill, sometimes erased. 9 Grev. 513.

This is the proper stage for filling up blanks; for if filled up before, and now altered by erasure, it would be peculiarly unsafe.

At this reading the bill is debated afresh, and for the most part is more spoken to at this time than on any of the former readings. Hakew. 153.

The debate on the question whether it should be read a third time has discovered to its friends and opponents the arguments on which each side relies, and which of these appear to have influence with the house; they have had time to meet them with new arguments, and to put their old ones into new shapes. The former vote has tried the strength of the former opinion, and furnished grounds to estimate the issue; and the question now offered for its passage is the last occasion which is ever to be offered for carrying or rejecting it.

When the debate is ended, the speaker, holding the bill in his hand, puts the question for its passage, by saying, "Gentlemen, all of you who are of opinion that this bill shall pass, say aye;" and after the answer of the ayes, "All those of the contrary opinion, say no." Hakew. 154.

After the bill is passed there can be no further alteration of it in any point. Hakew. 159.

SECTION XLI.

DIVISION OF THE HOUSE.

The affirmative and negative of the question having been both put and answered, the speaker declares whether the yeas or nays have it by the sound, if he be himself satisfied, and it stands as the judgment of the house. But if he be not himself satisfied which voice is the greater, or if before any other member comes into the house, or before any new motion is made (for it is too late after that), any member shall rise and declare himself dissatisfied with the speaker's decision, then the speaker is to divide the house. Scob. 24; 2 Hats. 140.

When the House of Commons is divided, the one party goes forth and the other remains in the house. This has made it important which go forth and which remain, because the latter gain all the indolent, the indifferent and inattentive. The general rule, therefore, is that those who give their vote for the preservation of the orders of the house shall stay in, and those who are for introducing any new matter or alteration, or proceeding contrary to the established course, are to go out. But this rule is subject to many exceptions and modifications. 2 Hats. 134; 1 Rush., p. 3, fol. 92; Scob. 43, 52; Co. 12, 116; D'Ewes, 505, col. 1; Mem. in Hakew. 25, 29, as will appear by the following statement of who go forth:

The one party being gone forth, the speaker names two tellers from the affirmative and two from the negative side, who first count those sitting in the house and report the number to the speaker. Then they place themselves within the door, two on each side, and count those who went forth as they come in, and report the number to the speaker. Mem. in Hakew. 26.

A mistake in the report of the tellers may be rectified after the report made. 2 Hats. 145, note.

[But in both houses of Congress all these intricacies are avoided. The ayes first rise, and are counted standing in their places by the president or speaker. Then they sit, and the noes rise and are counted in like manner.]

[In Senate, if they are equally divided, the vice president announces his opinion, which decides.]

[The Constitution, however, has directed that "the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal." And, again, that in all cases of reconsidering a bill disapproved by the president, and returned with his objections, "the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journals of each house respectively."]

[By the sixteenth and seventeenth rules of the Senate, when the yeas and nays shall be called for by one-fifth of the members present, each member called upon shall, unless for special reasons he be excused by the Senate, declare openly and without debate his assent or dissent to the question. In taking the yeas and nays, and upon the call of the house, the names of the members shall be taken alphabetically.]

[When the yeas and nays shall be taken upon any question in pursuance of the above rule, no member shall be permitted, under any circumstances whatever, to vote after the decision is announced from the chair.]

[When it is proposed to take the vote by yeas and nays, the president or speaker states that "the question is whether, e. g., the bill shall pass—that it is proposed that the yeas and nays shall be entered on the journal. Those, therefore, who desire it, will rise." If he finds and declares that one-fifth have risen, he then states that "those who are of the opinion that the bill shall pass are to answer in the affirmative; those of a contrary opinion in the negative." The clerk then calls over the names alphabetically, notes the yea or nay of each, and gives the list to the president or speaker, who declares the result. In the Senate, if there be an equal division, the secretary calls on the vice president and notes his affirmative or negative, which becomes the decision of the house.]

In the House of Commons every member must give his vote the one way or the other (Scob. 24), as it is not permitted to anyone to withdraw who is in the house when the question is put, nor is anyone to be told in the division who was not in when the question was put. 2 Hals. 140.

This last position is always true when the vote is by yeas and nays; where the negative as well as affirmative of the question is stated by the president at the same time, and the vote of both sides begins and proceeds pari passu. It is true also when the question is put in the usual way, if the negative has also been put; but if it has not, the member entering, or any other member, may speak, and even propose amendment, by which debate may be opened again, and the question be greatly deferred. And as some who have answered aye may have been changed by the new arguments, the affirmative must be put over again. If, then, the member entering may, by speaking a few words, occasion a repetition of a question, it would be useless to deny it on his simple call for it.

While the house is telling, no member may speak or move out of his place, for if any mistake be suspected it must be told again. Mem. in Hakew. 26; 2 Hats. 143.

If any difficulty arises in point of order during the division, the speaker is to decide peremptorily, subject to the future censure of the house if irregular. He sometimes permits old, experienced members to assist him with their advice, which they do sitting in their seats covered, to avoid the appearance of debate; but this can only be with the speaker's leave, else the division might last several hours. 2 Hats. 143.

The voice of the majority decides; for the lex majoris partis is the law of all councils, elections, etc., where not otherwise expressly provided. Hakew. 93. But if the house be equally divided, "semper presumatur pro negante;" that is, the former law is not to be changed but by a majority. Towns., col. 134.

[But in the Senate of the United States, the vice president decides when the house is divided. Const. U. S., I. 3.]

When from counting the house on a division it appears that there is not a quorum, the matter continues exactly in the state in which it was before the division, and must be resumed at that point on any future day. 2 Hats. 126.

1606, May 1st, on a question whether a member having said yea may afterwards sit and change his opinion, a precedent was remembered by the speaker, of Mr. Morris, attorney of the wards, in 39 Eliz., who in like case changed his opinion. Mem. Hakew. 27.

SECTION XLII.

TITLES.

After the bill has passed, and not before, the title may be amended, and is to be fixed by a question; and the bill is then sent to the other house.

SECTION XLIII.

RECONSIDERATION.

[When a question has been once made and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member of the majority to move for the reconsideration thereof; but no motion for the reconsideration of any vote shall be in order after a bill, resolution, message, report, amendment or motion upon which the vote was taken shall have gone out of the possession of the Senate announcing their decision; nor shall any motion for reconsideration be in order unless made on the same day on which the vote was taken, or within the two next days of the actual session of the Senate thereafter.*

[1798, January. A bill on its second reading being amended and on the question whether it shall be read a third time negatived, was restored by a decision to reconsider that question. Here the votes of negative and reconsideration, like positive and negative quantities in an equation, destroy one another, and are as if they were expunged from the journal. Consequently the bill is open for amendment, just so far as it was the moment preceding the question for the third reading; that is to say, all parts of the bill are open for amendment except those on which votes have been already taken in its present stage. So, also, it may be recommitted.]

[†The rule permitting a reconsideration of a question affixing it to no limitation of time or circumstance, it may be asked whether there is no limitation? If, after the vote, the paper on which it is passed has been parted with, there can be no reconsideration; as if a vote has been for the passage of a bill and the bill has been sent to the other house. But where the paper remains, as on a bill rejected, when, or under what circumstances, does it cease to be susceptible of reconsideration? This remains to be settled; unless a sense of that the right of reconsideration is a right to waste the time of the house in repeated agitations of the same question, so that it shall never know when a question is done with, should induce them to reform this anomalous proceeding.]

In Parliament, a question once carried can not be questioned again at the same session, but must stand as the judgment of the house. Towns., col. 67; Mem. in Hakew. 33. And a bill once rejected, another of the same substance can not be brought in again the same session. Hakew. 158; 6 Grey, 392. But this does not extend to prevent putting in the same question in different stages of a bill; because every stage of a bill submits the whole and eyery part of it to the opinion of the house as open for amendment, either by insertion or omission, though the same amendment has been accepted or rejected in a former stage. So in reports of committees, e. g., report of an address, the same question is before the house, and open for free discussion. Towns., col. 26; 2 Hats. 98, 100, 101. So orders of the house, or instruction to committee, may be discharged. So a bill, begun in one house, and sent to the other, and there rejected, may be renewed again in that other, passed and sent back. Ib. 92; 3 Hats. 161. Or if, instead of being rejected, they read it once and lay it aside, or amend it, and put it off a month, they may order in another to the same effect, with the same or different title. Hakew. 97, 98.

Diverse expedients are used to correct the effects of this rule; as by passing an explanatory act, if anything has been omitted or ill expressed (3 Hats.

^{*}This part of the rule has been added since the Manual was compiled.

[†]This rule now fixes the limitation.

278), or an act to enforce, and make more effectual, an act, etc., or to rectify mistakes in act, etc., or a committee on one bill may be instructed to receive a clause to rectify the mistakes of another. Thus, June 24, 1685, a clause was inserted in a bill for rectifying a mistake committed by a clerk in engrossing a bill of supply. 2 Hats. 194-6. Or the session may be closed for one, two, three or more days, and a new one commenced. But then all matters depending must be finished, or they fall, and are to begin de novo. 3 Hats. 94, 98. Or a part of the subject may be taken up by another bill, or taken up in a different way. 6 Grey, 304, 316.

And in cases of the last magnitude, this rule has not been so strictly and verbally observed as to stop indispensable proceedings altogether. 2 Hats. 22, 98. Thus when the address on the preliminaries of peace in 1782 had been lost by a majority of one, on account of the importance of the question and smallness of the majority, the same question in substance, though with some words not in the first, and which might change the opinion of some members, was brought on again and carried, as the motives for it were thought to outweigh the objection of form. 2 Hats. 99, 100.

A second bill may be passed to continue an act of the same session, or to enlarge the time limited for its execution. 2 Hats. 95, 98. This is not in contradiction to the first act.

SECTION XLIV.

BILLS SENT TO THE OTHER HOUSE.

[All bills passed in the Senate shall, before they are sent to the House of Representatives, be examined by a committee, consisting of three members, whose duty shall be to examine all bills, amendments, resolutions, or motions, before they go out of possession of the Senate, and to make report that they are correctly engrossed; which report shall be entered on the journal. Rule 33.]

A bill from the other house is sometimes ordered to lie on the table. 2 Hats. 97.

When bills passed in one house and sent to the other are grounded on special facts requiring proof, it is usual, either by message or at a conference. to ask the grounds and evidence; and this evidence, whether arising out of papers, or from the examination of witnesses, is immediately communicated. 3 Hats. 48.

SECTION XLV.

AMENDMENTS BETWEEN THE HOUSES.

When either house, c. g., the House of Commons, sends a bill to the other, the other may pass it with amendments. The regular progression in this case is, that the commons disagree to the amendment; the lords insist on it; the commons insist on their disagreement; the lords adhere to their amendment; the commons adhere to their disagreement. The term of insisting may be repeated as often as they choose to keep the question open. But the first adherence by either renders it necessary for the other to recede or adhere also; when the matter is usually suffered to fall. 10 Grey, 148. Latterly, however, there are instances of their having gone to a second adherence. There must be an absolute conclusion of the subject somewhere, or otherwise transactions between the houses would become endless. 3 Hats. 268, 270. The term of insisting, we are told by Sir John Trever, was then (1679) newly introduced into parliamentary usage by the lords. 7 Grey, 94. It was certainly a happy innovation, as it multiplies the opportunities of trying modifications which may bring the houses to concurrence. Either house, however, is free to pass over the term of insisting, and to adhere in the first instance (10 Grey, 146); but it is not respectful to the other. In the ordinary parliamentary course there are two free conferences, at least, before an adherence. 10 Grey, 147.

Either house may recede from its amendment, and agree to the bill; or recede from their disagreement to the amendment, and agree to the same absolutely, or with an amendment; for here the disagreement and receding destroy one another, and the subject stands as before the disagreement. Elsynge, 23, 27; 9 Grey, 476.

But the house can not recede from, or insist on, its own amendment, with an amendment, for the same reason that it can not send to the other house an amendment to its own act after it has passed the act. They may modify an amendment from the other house by ingrafting an amendment on it, because they have never assented to it; but they can not amend their own amendment, because they have, on the question, passed it in that form. 9 Grey, 363; 10 Grey, 240. In the Senate, March 29, 1798. Nor where one house has adhered to their amendment, and the other agrees with an amendment, can the first house depart from the form which they have fixed by an adherence.

In the case of a money bill, the lords' proposed amendments became, by delay, confessedly necessary. The commons, however, refused them, as infringing on their privileges as to money bills; but they offered themselves to add to the bill a proviso to the same effect, which had no coherence with the lords' amendments; and urged that it was an expedient warranted by precedent, and not unparliamentary in a case become impracticable, and irremediable in any other way. 3 Hats. 256, 266, 270, 271. But the lords refused, and the bill was lost. 1 Chand. 288. A like case, 1 Chand. 311. So the commons resolved that it was unparliamentary to strike out, at a conference, anything in a bill which had been agreed and passed by both houses. 6 Grey, 274; 1 Chand. 312.

A motion to amend an amendment from the other house takes precedence of a motion to agree or disagree.

A bill originating in one house is passed by the other with an amendment.

The originating house agrees to their amendment with an amendment. The other may agree to their amendment with an amendment, that being only in the second and not the third degree; for, as the amending house, the first amendment with which they passed the bill is a part of its text; it is the only text they have agreed to. The amendment to that text by the originating house, therefore, is only in the first degree, and the amendment to that again by the amending house is only in the second, to-wit: an amendment to an amendment, and so admissible. Just so, when on a bill from the originating house, the other, at its second reading, makes an amendment; on the third reading this amendment is become the text of the bill, and if an amendment to it be moved, an amendment to that amendment may also be moved, as being only in the second degree.

SECTION XLVI.

CONFERENCES.

It is on the question of amendments between the houses that conferences are usually asked; but they may be asked in all cases of difference of opinion between the two houses on matters pending between them. The request of a conference, however, must always be with the house which is possessed of the papers. 3 Hats. 31; 1 Grey, 425.

Conferences may be either simple or free. At a conference simply, written reasons are prepared by the house asking it, and they are read and delivered, without debate, to the managers of the other house at the conference; but are not then to be answered. 4 Grey, 144. The other house, then, if satisfied, vote the reason satisfactory, or say nothing; if not satisfied, they resolve them not satisfactory, and ask a conference on the subject of the last conference, where they read and deliver, in like manner, written answers to those reasons. 3 Grey, 183. They are meant chiefly to record the jurisdiction of each house to the nation at large, and to posterity, and in proof that the miscarriage of a necessary measure is not imputable to them. 3 Grey, 255. At free conferences the managers discuss, viva voce and freely, and interchange propositions for such modifications as may be made in a parliamentary way, and may bring the sense of the two houses together. And each party reports in writing to their respective houses the substance of what is said on both sides, and it is entered in their journals. 9 Grey, 220; 3 Hats. 280. This report can not be amended or altered as that of a committee may be. Journal of Senate, May 24, 1796.

A conference may be asked, before the house asking it has come to a resolution of disagreement, insisting or adhering. 3 Hats. 269, 341. In which case the papers are not left with the other conferrees, but are brought back to be the foundation of the vote to be given. And this is the most reasonable and respectful proceeding; for, as was urged by the lords on a particular occasion, "it is held vain, and below the wisdom of Parliament, to reason or argue against fixed resolutions, and upon terms of impossibility to persuade." 3 Hats. 226. So the commons say, "an adherence is never delivered at a free conference, which implies debate." 10 Grey, 137. And on another occasion the lords made it an objection that the commons had asked a free conference after they had made resolutions of adhering. It was then affirmed, however, on the part of the commons, that nothing was more parliamentary than to proceed with free conferences after adhering (3 Hats. 269), and we do in fact see inferences of conferences, or of free conference, asked after the resolution of disagreeing (3 Hats. 251, 253, 260, 286, 291, 316, 349); of insisting (1b. 280, 296, 299, 319, 322, 355); of adhering (269, 270, 283, 300); and even of a second or final adherence. 3 Hats. 270. And in all cases of conference asked after a vote of disagreement, etc., the conferrees of the house asking it are to leave the papers with the conference of the other; and in one case where they refused to receive them, they were left on the table in the conference chamber. Ib. 317, 323, 354; 10 Grey, 146.

After a free conference, the usage is to proceed with free conferences, and not return again to a conference. 3 Hats. 270; 9 Grey, 229.

After a conference denied, a free conference may be asked. I Grey, 45.

When a conference is asked, the subject of it must be expressed, or the conference not agreed to. Ord. H. Com. 89; 1 Grey, 425; 8 Grey, 31. They are sometimes asked to inquire concerning an offense or default of a member of the other house. 6 Grey, 181; 1 Chand. 304. Or the failure of the other house to present to the king a bill passed by both houses. 8 Grey, 302. Or on information received, and relating to the safety of the nation. 10 Grey, 171. Or when the methods of Parliament are thought by the one house to have been departed from by the other, a conference is asked to come to a right understanding thereon. 10 Grey, 148. So when an unparliamentary message has been sent, instead of answering it, they ask a conference. 3 Grey, 155. Formerly an address or article of impeachment, or a bill with amendments, or a vote of the house, or concurrence in a vote, or a message from the king, were sometimes communicated by way of conference. 6 Grey, 128, 300, 387; 7 Grey, 80; 8 Grey, 210, 255; 1 Torbuck's Deb. 278; 10 Grey, 293; 1 Chand. 49, 287. But this is not the modern practice. 8 Grey, 255.

A conference has been asked after the first reading of the bill. I Grey, 194. This is a singular instance.

SECTION XLVII.

MESSAGES.

Messages between the houses are to be sent only while both houses are sitting. 2 Hats. 15. They are received during debate without adjourning the debate. 3 Hats. 22.

[In Senate, the messages are introduced in any state of business, except: 1. Where a question is putting. 2. While the yeas and nays are calling. 3. While the ballots are counting. Rule 47. The first case is short; the second and third are cases where any interruption might occasion errors difficult to be corrected. So arranged June 15, 1788.]

In the House of Representatives, as in Parliament, if the house be in committee when a messenger attends, the speaker takes the chair to receive the message, and then quits it to return into committee, without any question or interruption. 4 Grey, 226.

Messengers are not saluted by the members, but by the speaker of the house. 2 Grey, 253, 274.

If messengers commit an error in delivering their message, they may be admitted or called in to correct their message. 4 Grey, 41. Accordingly,

March 13, 1800, the Senate having made two amendments to a bill from the House of Representatives, their secretary, by mistake, delivered one only, which being inadmissible by itself, that house disagreed, and notified the Senate of their disagreement. This produced a discovery of the mistake. The secretary was sent to the other house to correct his mistake, the correction was received, and the two amendments acted on de novo.

As soon as the messenger who has brought the bills from the other house has retired, the speaker holds the bills in his hand, and acquaints the house "that the other house have by their messenger sent certain bills," and then reads their titles, and delivers them to the clerk, to be safely kept till they shall be called for to be read. Hakew. 178.

It is not the usage for one house to inform the other by what numbers a bill has passed. 10 Grey, 150. Yet they have sometimes recommended a bill as of great importance to the consideration of the house to which it is sent. 3 Hats. 25. Nor, when they have rejected a bill from the other house, do they give notice of it; but it passes sub silentio, to prevent unbecoming alterations. 1 Blackst. 183.

[But in Congress the rejection is notified by message to the house in which the bill originated.]

A question is never asked by the one house of the other by way of message, but only at a conference; for this is an interrogatory, not a message. 3 Grey, 151, 181.

When a bill is sent by one house to the other, and is neglected, they may send a message to remind them of it. 3 Hats. 25; 5 Grcy, 154. But if it be mere inattention, it is better to have it done informally, by communication between the speakers or members of the two houses.

Where the subject of a message is of a nature that can properly be communicated to both houses of Parliament, it is expected that this communication should be made to both on the same day. But where a message was accompanied with an original declaration, signed by the party to which the message referred, its being sent to one house was not noticed by the other, because the declaration, being original, could not possibly be sent to both houses at the same time. 2 Hats. 260, 261, 262.

The king, having sent original letters to the commons. afterward desires they may be returned, that he may communicate them to the lords. I Chandler, 303.

SECTION XLVIII.

ASSENT.

The house which has received a bill and passed it may present it for the king's assent, and ought to do it, though they have not by message notified to the other their passage of it. Yet the notifying by message is a form which ought to be observed between the two houses, from motives of respect and good understanding. 2 Hats. 142. Were the bill to be withheld from being presented to the king, it would be an infringement of the rules of Parliament. Ib.

[When a bill has passed both houses of Congress, the house last acting on it notifies its passage to the other, and delivers the bill to the joint committee of enrollment, who see that it is truly enrolled in parchment.] When the bill is enrolled it is not to be written in paragraphs, but solidly, and all of a piece, that the blanks between the paragraphs may not give room for forgery. 9 Grey, 143. It is then put in the hands of the clerk of the House of Representatives to have it signed by the speaker. The clerk then brings it by way of message to the Senate to be signed by their president. The secretary of the Senate returns it to the committee of enrollment, who present it to the president of the United States. If he approve, he signs, and deposits it among the rolls in the office of the secretary of state, and notifies by message the house in which it originated that he has approved and signed it; of which that house informs the other by message. If the president disapprove, he is to return it with his objections to that house in which it shall have originated, who are to enter the objections at large on their journal and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the president's objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. If any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by its adjournment prevents its return; in which case it shall not be a law. Const. U. S. 1, 7.

[Every order, resolution or vote to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the president of the United States, and, before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him; or, being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill. Const. U. S. 1, 7.]

SECTION XLIX.

JOURNALS.

[Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, except such parts as may, in their judgment, require secrecy. Const. 1, 5.]

[The proceedings of the Senate, when not acting as a committee of the whole, shall be entered on the journals as concisely as possible, care being taken to detail a true account of the proceedings. Every vote of the Senate shall be entered on the journals, and a brief statement of the contents of each petition, memorial, or paper presented to the Senate, be also inserted on the journal. Rule 33.]

[The titles of bills, and such parts thereof only as shall be affected by proposed amendments, shall be inserted on the journals. Rule 32.]

If a question is interrupted by a vote to adjourn, or to proceed to the orders of the day, the original question is never printed in the journal, it never having been a vote, nor introductory to any vote; but when suppressed by the previous question, the first question must be stated, in order to introduce and make intelligible the second. 2 Hats. 83.

So also when a question is postponed, adjourned or laid on the table, the original question, though not yet a vote, must be expressed in the journals; because it makes part of the vote of postponement, adjourning or laying it on the table.

Where amendments are made to a question, those amendments are not printed in the journals separated from the question, but only the question as finally agreed to by the house. The rule of entering in the journals only what the house has agreed to is founded in great prudence and good sense, as there may be many questions proposed which it may be improper to publish to the world in the form in which they are made. 2 Hats. 85.

[In both houses of Congress, all questions whereon the yeas and nays are desired by one-fifth of the members present, whether decided affirmatively or negatively, must be entered on the journals. Const. 1, 5.]

The first order for printing the votes of the House of Commons was Oct. 30, 1685. 1 Chandler, 387.

Some judges have been of opinion that the journals of the House of Commons are no records, but only remembrances. But this is not law. Hob. 110, 111; Lex. Parl. 114, 115; Jour. H. C., Mar. 17, 1592; Hale Parl. 105. For the lords in their house have power of judicature, the commons in their house have power of judicature, and both houses together have power of judicature, and the book of the clerk of the House of Commons is a record, as is affirmed by act of Parliament (6 H. 8, c. 16; 4 Inst. 23, 24); and every member of the House of Commons hath a judicial place. 4 Inst. 15. As records they are open to every person, and a printed vote of either house is sufficient ground for the other to notice it. Either may appoint a committee to inspect the journals of the other, and report what has been done by the other in any particular case. 2 Hats. 361; 3 Hats. 27-30. Every member has a right to see the journals, and take and publish votes from them. Being a record, everyone may see and publish them. 6 Grey, 118, 119.

On information of a misentry or omission of an entry in the journal, a committee may be appointed to examine and rectify it, and report it to the house. 2 Hats. 194-5.

SECTION L.

ADJOURNMENT.

The two houses of Parliament have the sole, separate and independent power of adjourning each their respective houses. The king has no authority to adjourn them; he can only signify his desire, and it is in the wisdom and prudence of either house to comply with his requisition, or not, as they see fitting. 2 Hats. 332; 1 Blackstone, 186; 5 Grey, 122.

[By the Constitution of the United States, a smaller number than a majority may adjourn from day to day. I. 5. But "neither house, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting." I. 5. And in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, the president may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper. Const. II. 3.]

A motion to adjourn, simply, can not be amended, as by adding "to a particular day," but must be put simply, "that this house do now adjourn;" and if carried in the affirmative, it is adjourned till the next sitting day, unless it has come to a previous resolution "that at its rising it will adjourn to a particular day," and then the house is adjourned to that day. 2 Hats. 82.

Where it is convenient that the business of the house be suspended for a short time, as for a conference presently to be held, etc., it adjourns during pleasure. 2 Hats. 305. Or for a quarter of an hour. 5 Grey, 331.

If a question be put for adjournment, it is no adjournment till the speaker pronounces it. 5 Grey. 137. And from courtesy and respect, no member leaves his place till the speaker has passed on.

SECTION LI.

A. SESSION.

Parliament have three modes of separation, to-wit: By adjournment, by prorogation or dissolution by the king, or by the efflux or the term for which they were elected. Prorogation or dissolution constitutes there what is called a session, provided some act has passed. In this case all matters depending before them are discontinued, and at their next meeting are to be taken up de novo, if taken up at all. 1 Blackst. 186. Adjournment, which is by themselves, is no more than a continuance of the session from one day to another, or for a fortnight, a month, etc., ad libitum. All matters depending remain in statu quo, and when they meet again, be the term ever so distant, are resumed, without any fresh commencement, at the point at which they were left. 1 Lev. 165; Lex. Parl., c. 2; 1 Ro. Rep. 29; 4 Inst. 7, 27, 28; Hutt. 61; 1 Mod. 252; Ruffh. Jac. L. Dict. Parliament; 1 Blackst. 186. Their whole session is considered in law but as one day, and has relation to the first day thereof. Bro. Abr. Parliament, 86.

Committees may be appointed to sit during a recess by adjournment, but not by prorogation. 5 Grey, 374; 9 Grey, 350; I Chandler, 50. Neither house can continue any portion of itself in any parliamentary function beyond the end of the session, without the consent of the other two branches. When done, it is by a bill constituting them commissioners for the particular purpose.

[Congress separates in two ways only, to-wit: By adjournment or dissolution by the efflux of their time. What, then, constitutes a session with them? A dissolution closes one session, and the meeting of the new Congress begins another. The Constitution authorizes the president, "on extraordinary occasions, to convene both houses, or either of them." (I. 3.) If convened by the president's proclamation, this must begin a new session, and, of course, determine the preceding one to have been a session. So if it meets under the clause of the Constitution which says, "the Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day"

(I. 4.), this must begin a new session; for even if the last adjournment was to this day, the act of adjournment is merged in the higher authority of the Constitution, and the meeting will be under that, and not under their adjournment. So far we have fixed landmarks for determining sessions. In other words, it is declared by a joint vote authorizing the president of the Senate and speaker to close the session on a fixed day, which is usually in the following form: Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, That the president of the Senate and speaker of the House of Representatives be authorized to close the present session by adjourning their respective houses on the ——— day of ———.]

When it was said above that all matters depending before Parliament were discontinued by the termination of the session, it was not meant for judiciary cases depending before the House of Lords, such as impeachment, appeals, and writs of error. These stand continued, of course, to the next session. Raym. 120, 381; Ruffh. Jac. L. D. Parliament.

TREATIES.

[The president of the United States has power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur. Const. U. S. II. 2.]

[All confidential communications made by the president of the United States to the Senate shall be by the members thereof kept secret; and that all treaties which may hereafter be laid before the Senate shall also be kept secret, until the Senate shall, by their resolution, take off the injunction of secrecy. Rule 39.]

Treaties are legislative acts. A treaty is the law of the land. It differs from other laws only as it must have the consent of a foreign nation, being but a contract with respect to that nation. In all countries, I believe, except England, treaties are made by the legislative power; and there, also, if they touch the laws of the land, they must be approved by Parliament. Ware vs. Hayton, 3 Dallas' Rep. 223. It is acknowledged, for instance, that the king of Great Britain can not by a treaty make a citizen of an alien. Vattel, b. 1, c. 19, sec. 214. An act of Parliament was necessary to validate the American treaty of 1783. And abundant examples of such acts can be cited. In the case of the treaty of Utrecht, in 1712, the commercial articles required the concurrence of Parliament; but a bill brought in for that purpose was rejected. France, the other contracting party, suffered these articles, in practice, to be not insisted on, and adhered to the rest of the treaty. 4 Russel's Hist. Mod. Europe, 457; 2 Smollet, 242, 246.

[By the Constitution of the United States, this department of legislation is confined to two branches only of the ordinary legislature, the president originating, and the Senate having a negative. To what subjects this power extends has not been defined in detail by the Constitution; nor are we entirely agreed among ourselves. I. It is admitted that it must concern the foreign nation party to the contract, or it would be a mere nullity, res inter alios acta. 2. By the general power to make treaties, the Constitution must have intended to comprehend only those subjects which are usually regulated by treaty, and can not be otherwise regulated. 3. It must have meant to except out of these rights to the states; for surely the president and Senate can not do by treaty what the whole government is interdicted from doing in any way. 4. And also to except those subjects of legislation in which it gave a participation to the House of Representatives. This last exception is denied by some, on the ground that it would leave very little matter for the treaty power to work on. The less the better, say others. The Constitution thought it wise to restrain the executive and Senate from entangling and embroiling our affairs with those of Europe. Besides, as the negotiations are carried on by the executive alone, the subjecting to the ratification of the representatives such articles as are within their participation is no more inconvenient than to the Senate. But the ground of this exception is denied as unfounded. For examine, e. g., the treaty of commerce with France, and it will be found that, out of thirty-one articles, there are not more than small portions of two or three of them which would not still remain as subjects of treaties, untouched by these exceptions.]

Treaties being declared, equally with the laws of the United States. to be the supreme law of the land, it is understood that an act of the legislature alone can declare them infringed and rescinded. This was accordingly the process adopted in the case of France in 1798.

[It has been the usage for the executive, when it communicates a treaty to the Senate for their ratification, to communicate also the correspondence of the negotiators. This having been omitted in the case of the Prussian treaty, was asked by a vote of the house, of Feb. 12, 1800, and was obtained. And in December, 1800, the convention of that year between the United States and France, with the report of the negotiations by the envoys, but not their instructions, being laid before the Senate, the instructions were asked for, and communicated by the president.]

[The mode of voting on questions of ratifications is by nominal call.]

[Whenever a treaty shall be laid before the Senate for ratification, it shall be read a first time for information only, when no motion to reject, ratify, or modify the whole, or any part, shall be received. Its second reading shall be for consideration, and on a subsequent day, when it shall be taken up as in a committee of the whole, and everyone shall be free to move a question on any particular article, in this form: "Will the Senate advise and consent to the ratification of this article?" or to propose amendments thereto, either by inserting or by leaving out words, in which last case the question shall be, "Shall the words stand part of the article?" And in every one of the said cases, the concurrence of two-thirds of the senators present shall be requisite to decide affirmatively. And when through the whole, the proceedings shall be stated to the house, and questions be again severally put thereon, for confirmation, or new ones proposed, requiring in like manner a concurrence of two-thirds for whatever is retained or inserted.]

[The votes so confirmed shall, by the house, or a committee thereof, be reduced into the form of a ratification, with or without modifications, as may have been decided, and shall be proposed, on a subsequent day, when everyone shall again be free to move amendments, either by inserting or leaving out words; in which last case the question shall be: "Shall the words stand part of the resolution?" And in both cases the concurrence of two-thirds shall be requisite to carry the affirmative; as well as on the final question to advise and consent to the ratification in the form agreed to. Rule 37.]

[When any question may have been decided by the Senate, in which twothirds of the members present are necessary to carry the affirmative, any member who voted on that side which prevailed in the question may be at liberty to move for a reconsideration, and a motion for reconsideration shall be decided by a majority of votes. Rule 37.]

SECTION LIII.

IMPEACHMENT.

[The House of Representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment. Const. U. S. I. 3.]

[The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present. Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States. But the party convicted shall, nevertheless, be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law. Const. I. 3.]

[The president, vice president, and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors. Const. II. 4.]

[The trial of crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury. Const. III. 2.]

These are the provisions of the Constitution of the United States on the subject of impeachments. The following is a sketch of some of the principles and practices of England on the same subject:

Jurisdiction. The lords can not impeach any to themselves, nor join in the accusation, because they are the judges. Seld. Judic. in Parl. 12, 63. Nor can they proceed against a commoner but on complaint of the commons. Ib. 84. The lords may not, by the law, try a commoner for a capital offense, on the information of the king or a private person, because the accused is entitled to a trial by his peers generally; but, on accusation by the house of commons, they may proceed against the delinquent of whatsoever degree, and whatsoever be the nature of the offense; for there they do not assume to themselves trial at common law. The commons are then instead of a jury, and the judgment is given on their demand, which is instead of a verdict. So the lords do only judge, but not try the delinquent. Ib. 6, 7. But Wooddeson denies that a commoner can now be charged capitally before the lords, even by the commons; and cites Fitzharris' case, 1681, impeached for high treason, where the lords remitted the prosecution to the inferior court. 8 Grey's Deb. 325-7; Wooddeson, 601, 576; 3 Seld. 1610, 1619, 1641; 4 Blackst. 25; 73 Seld. 1604, 1618; 9, 1656.

Accusation. The commons, as the grand inquest of the nation, become suitors for penal justice. 2 Wood. 597; 6 Grey, 356. The general course is to pass a resolution containing a criminal charge against the supposed delinquent, and then to direct some member to impeach him by oral accusation, at the bar of the House of Lords, in the name of the commons. The person signifies that the articles will be exhibited, and desires that the delinquent may be sequestered from his seat, or be committed, or that the peers will take order from his appearance. Sachev. Trial, 329; 2 Wood. 602, 605; Lords' Jour., 3 June, 1701, 101; 1 Wms. 616; 6 Grey, 324.

Process. If a party do not appear, proclamations are to be issued, giving him a day to appear. On their return they are strictly examined. If any error be found in them, a new proclamation issues, giving a short day. If he appear not, his goods may be arrested and they may proceed. Seld. Jud. 98, 99.

Articles. The accusations (articles) of the commons is substituted in place of an indictment. Thus, by the usage of Parliament, in impeachment for writing or speaking, the particular words need not be specified. Sach. Tr. 325; 2 Wood. 602, 605; Lords' Jour., 3 June, 1701, 101; 1 Wms. 616.

Appearance. If he appears, and the case be capital, he answers in custody; though not if the accusation be general. He is not to be committed but on special accusations. If it be for a misdemeanor only, he answers, a lord in his place, a commoner at the bar, and not in custody, unless, on the answer, the lords find cause to commit him, till he finds sureties to attend, and lest he should fly. Seld. Jud. 98, 99. A copy of the article is given him, and a day fixed for his answer. T. Ray, 1; Rushw. 268; Fost. 232; I Clar. Hist. of the Reb. 379. On a misdemeanor his appearance may be in person, or he may answer in writing, or by attorney. Seld. Jud. 100. The general rule on accusations for a misdemeanor is, that in such a state of liberty or restraint as the party is when the commons complain of him, in such he is to answer. Ib. 101. If previously committed by the commons, he answers as a prisoner. But this may be called in some sort judicum parium suorum. Ib. In misdemeanors the party has a right to counsel by the common law, but not in capital cases. Seld. Jud. 102-5.

Answer. The answer need not observe great strictness of form. He may plead guilty as to part, and defend as to the residue; or, saving all exceptions, deny the whole or give a particular answer to each article separately. I Rush, 274; I Rush, 1374; 12 Parl. Hist. 442; 3 Lords' Jour., 13 Nov. 1643; Woodd. 607. But he can not plead a pardon in bar to the impeachment. 2 Woodd. 615; 2 St. Tr. 735.

Replication, rejoinder, etc. There may be a replication, rejoinder, etc. Seld. Jud. 114; 8 Grey's Deb. 233; Sach. Tr. 15; Jour. H. of C., 6 March, 1649-1.

Witnesses. The practice is to swear the witnesses in open house, and then examine them there; or a committee may be named who shall examine them in committee, either on interrogatories agreed on in the house, or such as the committee in their discretion shall demand. Seld. Jud. 120, 123.

Jury. In the case of Alice Pierce (1 R. 2), a jury was impaneled for her trial before a committee. Seld. Jud. 123. But this was on a complaint, not on impeachment by the commons. Seld. Jud. 163. It must also have been for a misdemeanor only, as the lords spiritual sat in the case, which they do on misdemeanors, but not in capital cases. Id. 148. The judgment was a forfeiture of all her lands and goods. Id. 188. This, Selden says, is the only jury he finds recorded in Parliament for misdemeanor; but he makes no doubt, if the delinquent doth put himself on trial of his country, a jury ought to be impaneled, and he adds that it is not so on impeachment by the commons: for they are in loco proprio, and there no jury ought to be impaneled. Id. 124. The Ld. Berkley (6 E. 3) was arraigned for the murder of L. 2, on an information on the part of the king, and not impeachment of the commons; for then they had been patria sua. He waived his peerage and was tried by a jury of Gloucestershire and Warwickshire. Id. 125. In 1 H. 7, the commons protest that they are not to be considered as parties to any judgment given or hereafter to be given in Parliament. Seld. Jud. 133. They have been generally and more justly considered, as is before stated, as the grand jury; for the conceit of Selden is certainly not accurate, and they are patria sua of the accused, and that the lords do only judge, but not try. It is undeniable that they do try; for they examine witnesses as to the facts, and acquit or condemn, according to their own belief of them. And Lord Hale says, "The peers are judges of law as well as of fact" (2 Hale P. C. 275); consequently of fact as well as of law.

Presence of Commons. The commons are to be present at the examination of witnesses. Seld. Jud. 124. Indeed, they are to attend throughout, either as a committee of the whole house, or otherwise, at discretion, appoint managers to conduct the proofs. Rushw. Tr. of Straff. 37; Com. Journ., 4 Feb. 1709-10; 2 Woodd. 614. And judgment is not to be given till they demand it. Seld. Jud. 124. But they are not to be present on impeachment when the lords consider of the answer of proofs and determine of their judgment. Their presence, however, is necessary at the answer and judgment in cases capital (Id. 58, 159), as well as not capital (162). The lords debate the judgment among themselves. Then the vote is first taken on the question of guilty or not guilty; and if they convict, the question, or particular sentence, is out of that which seemeth to be most generally agreed on. Seld. Jud. 167; 2 Woodd. 612.

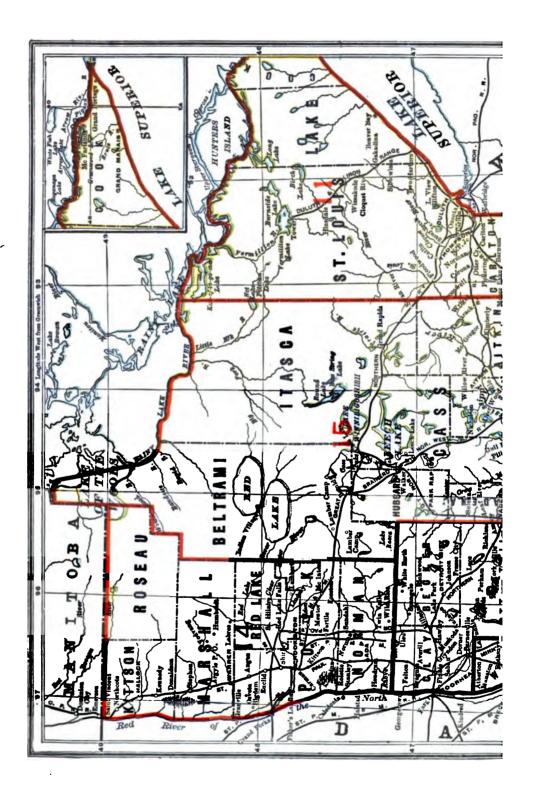

Judgment. Judgments in Parliament, for death, have been strictly guided per legem teræ, which they can not alter; and not at all according to their discretion. They can neither omit any legal part of the judgment nor add to it. Their sentence must be secundum, non ultra legem. Seld. Jud. 168-71. This trial, though it vary in external ceremony, yet differs not in essentials from criminal prosecutions before inferior courts. The same rules of evidence, the same legal notions of crimes and punishments prevailed; for impeachments are not framed to alter the law, but to carry it into more effectual execution against too powerful delinquents. The judgment, therefore, is to be such as is warranted by legal principles or precedents. 6 Sta. Tr. 14; 2 Woodd. 611. The chancellor gives judgments in misdemeanors, the lord high steward formerly in cases of life and death. Seld. Jud. 180. But now the steward is deemed not necessary. Fost. 144; 2 Woodd. 613. In misdemeanors the greatest corporal punishment hath been imprisonment. Seld. Jud. 184. The king's assent is necessary in capital judgments (2 Woodd. 614, contra), but not in misdemeanors. Seld. Jud. 136.

Continuance. An impeachment is not discontinued by the dissolution of Parliament, but may be resumed by the new Parliament. T. Ray, 383; 4 Com. Jour., 23 Dec. 1790; Lords' Jour., May 15, 1791; 2 Woodd. 618.

MINNESOTA.

HISTORY, DESCRIPTION AND RESOURCES.

HISTORY.

The greater part, or about two-thirds, of the territory embraced within the boundaries of Minnesota, was included in the Louisiana Purchase, ceded to the United States by France in 1803. The remainder of this state, comprising its northeastern third part, lying east of the Mississippi river, was included in the country surrendered from Great Britain by the treaty of 1783, at the end of the Revolutionary War. In 1805 a grant of land nine miles square, at the confluence of the Mississippi and St. Peter (now Minnesota) rivers, was obtained from the Sioux Indians. A military post was established on the grant in 1819, and in 1820 arrangements were made for the erection of a fort, which was completed in 1822, and named "Fort Snelling," after the commanding officer, and the grant has ever since been known as the Fort Snelling Reservation. In 1823 the first steamboat ascended the Mississippi as far as Fort Snelling; and annually thereafter one or two trips of steamboats were made to this isolated post for a number of years.

This territory was held by the Chippewa and Dakota or Sioux Indians, but adventurous pioneers had penetrated into the country along the streams tributary to the Mississippi river, and in 1836 Wisconsin Territory was organized, comprising all the territory west of Lake Michigan, and including within its limits all the country west of the Great Lakes and north of Illinois, the west boundary of the Territory being the Mississippi river.

In 1837 two important treaties were made with the native tribes of Indians. The first one was made by Gov. Henry Dodge of Wisconsin, with the Chippewas, at Fort Snelling, on the twenty-ninth of July of that year, whereby the Chippewas ceded to the United States all their pine or agricultural lands on the St. Croix river and its tributaries.

On the twenty-ninth of September of the same year, at the city of Washington, a treaty was made and executed by Joel R. Poinsett, a special commissioner representing the United States, and about twenty Indian chiefs. accompanied by Major Taliaferro, their agent, and Scott Campbell, an interpreter. Through the influence and by the direction of Gov. Dodge, this delegation of chiefs had proceeded to Washington for the purpose of making this treaty, by which the Dakotas ceded to the United States all their lands east of the Mississippi river, including all the islands in the same. The Indians were to receive as consideration for the same $300,000, to be invested in five per cent stocks, the increase of which should be paid to them annually

-$110,000 in cash, to be divided among the mixed bloods, and $90,000, in payment of debts owing by the tribes.

In 1848 Wisconsin adopted a state constitution, but ignored the enabling act, and made the northern part of the western boundary of the State along the line of the St. Louis and Rum rivers, which was not accepted by the United States government, and the boundary line from the Mississippi river to Lake Superior became fixed, as in the enabling act, on the line of the St. Croix river and in a direct line to the mouth of the St. Louis river.

After the acceptance of the Wisconsin constitution, in May, 1848, the territory north and west of the St. Croix and Mississippi rivers being practically without a government, the Hon. John Catlin, claiming to be still secretary and acting governor of Wisconsin Territory, issued a proclamation for a special election, to elect a delegate to Congress. The election was held October 30th, and Hon. H. H. Sibley was chosen delegate, and after some delay was admitted as such into the Congress of the United States.

On March 3, 1849, Congress passed an act to establish the territorial government of Minnesota, and fixing the seat of government at St. Paul, establishing the southern boundary of the State along the north and west boundary lines of the State of Iowa, from the Mississippi river to the Missouri river, and the western boundary through the middle of the channel of the Missouri river to the mouth of the White Earth river, and up the middle of the channel of the White Earth river to the boundary line between the United States and Great Britain, and easterly and southeasterly on the international boundary line to Lake Superior, and thence in a straight line to the northernmost point of the State of Wisconsin, following the north and west boundary of said line down the St. Croix and Mississippi rivers to the place of beginning. At this time the population of the Territory was mainly in the section east of the Mississippi river, and the settlers almost entirely engaged in lumbering. The territorial government was declared fully organized June 1, 1849, by Hon. Alexander Ramsey, who had been appointed first territorial governor. The year 1849 was noted as the year of excitement from the discovery of gold in California, and the eyes of many thousands of people throughout the east were turned westward, where opportunities were opening for the growth of new states. Although at the organization of the Territory there was scarcely a thousand people, within a year the census of 1850 gave to the Territory a population of 6,077. Of this number, however, 1,134 residents were credited to the northernmost part of the Territory on the Red River of the North, many of these being half-breeds, and the early pioneers engaged in the fur trade, brought there through the influence of the Hudson Bay Company.

The first territorial election was held on the first day of August, 1849.

The first session of the territorial legislature commenced in St. Paul, Sept. 3, 1849, during which counties were established and a code of laws enacted. The second session was commenced in January, 1851, at which time the capital was permanently located at St. Paul, the university at St. Anthony, and the state prison at Stillwater.

In 1851 three treaties were made with the Sioux and with the Chippewa bands of Indians, whereby large tracts of lands were relinquished to the United States.

In view of the great extent of country desired, and the importance of the transaction, and the long continued friendship of the Dakota nation, President Fillmore departed from the usual mode of appointing commissioners, and deputed the Hon. Luke Lea, the commissioner of Indian affairs, and Gov. Alexander Ramsey to meet the representatives of the Dakotas, and to conclude with them a treaty for such lands as they might be willing to sell.

On the twenty-seventh of June, 1851, Commissioner Lea arrived in St. Paul on the steamboat Excelsior, and on the twenty-ninth he, in company with Gov. Ramsey, landed at Traverse des Sioux, where the great council was to be held, and the treaty consummated with the Sisseton and Wahpeton bands of Sioux. Great delay in the proceedings was caused by the non-arrival of certain Sioux chiefs from the upper country, and it was not until the eighteenth of July that the council convened, and the preliminaries to the treaty commenced. During this interval of about twenty days they all entertained themselves as best they could with races, dances, suppers, sham fights and all sorts of fun.

On the eighteenth of July, all the chiefs having arrived, proclamation was made, and being convened in grand council and the pipe of peace having been passed around, the council was opened by an address from Gov. Ramsey. On the twenty-third of July the treaty was concluded and signed by the chiefs, by which they ceded to the United States all the lands claimed by these bands east of the Sioux Wood and Big Sioux river and Lac Traverse towards the Mississippi, excepting a reservation one hundred miles long by twenty miles wide, on the headwaters of the Minnesota river.

This sale included 21,000,000 acres of the finest land in the world. By this treaty the Indians were to remove within two years to the reservation; to receive from our government, after removal, $275,000, to enable them to settle up their affairs and to become established in their new home; $30,000 was to be expended in breaking land, erecting mills and establishing a manual labor school; and they were also to receive, for fifty years from that time, an annuity of $68,000, payable as follows, to-wit: Cash, $40,000; civilization fund, $12,000; goods and provisions, $10,000; education fund, $6,000.

On the twenty-ninth of July, 1851, Gov. Ramsey and Commissioner Lea met the chiefs and leading men of the Med-ay-wa-kantoan and Wah-paykoo-tay bands of Sioux at a grand council at Mendota, to negotiate another treaty for the sale of other lands, which treaty was concluded on the fifth of August, and signed by sixty-four chiefs, head men and warriors. By this treaty these bands of Indians ceded and relinquished all their lands in the Territory of Minnesota and State of Iowa, and in consideration thereof the United States was to reserve for them a home of the average width of ten miles on either side of the Minnesota river, and bounded on the west by the Fe-hay-tom-bay and Yellow Medicine river; on the east by the Little Rock river, and a line running due south from its mouth to the Little Warrajar river; to pay them the following sums of money, to-wit: For settling debts and aid in removal, $220,000; for erection of buildings and opening farms, $30,000; civilization fund, to be paid annually, $10,000; educational fund, paid annually, $6,000; goods and provisions, annually, $10,000; cash, $30,000. The annuities were to continue for fifty years from date of treaty.

The commissioners, in their report of Aug. 6, 1851, to Hon. A. H. H. Stuart, secretary of the interior, say, "the amount of land acquired by these treaties is computed at over thirty-five (35) millions of acres." Embraced in the articles of cession as part of the above purchase were 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 of acres in amount lying in the State of Iowa, between the line of the old "neutral ground" and the northern and western boundaries of the State. The tract of country, and generally all lands whatever in the State of Iowa claimed by the Sioux, were therefore embraced in the articles of cession of both treaties.

The Senate of the United States, on the twenty-third of June, 1852, ratified the treaties, with amendments to each, which amendments were subsequently accepted by the Indians, and on the twenty-fourth of February, 1853, President Millard Fillmore issued his proclamation accepting, ratifying and confirming each of the said treaties as amended. The total amount of land relinquished to the government by these two treaties amounted to over 28,000,000 acres in Minnesota.

The third treaty of 1851 was effected by Gov. Ramsey with the Red Lake and Pembina bands of Chippewas at Pembina, by which they ceded certain territory, sixty-five miles in width by one hundred and fifty miles in length, intersected by the Red River of the North. This treaty was not ratified by the government.

After the ratification of these treaties a great wave of immigration set in from all the eastern states, and an era of speculation started which probably has never been excelled in any portion of the west, and a census taken in 1857 gave a population of 150.037.

Notwithstanding there was an abundant supply of good land outside of the limits of the land ceded under these treaties, the adventurous spirit of the pioneers led many of them to settle on the extreme eastern limits of the grant, and in immediate proximity to the Indian settlements. In the southwestern portion of the State, particularly, settlements were made close to the boundary line of Iowa and north and west of Spirit lake. Some were in Iowa and some were in Minnesota, and all were within the jurisdiction of the Indian agent resident in the Territory of Minnesota. Although the Indians were living on the reservation lands west of these settlements, in their hunting expeditions they were accustomed to return to the ceded lands. In a general way the Indians were civil, and committed only petty depredations; but their visits were at times annoying. Among the Indians there was a single band, under the leadership of Ink-pa-du-ta, or the Scarlet Point, of about fifteen lodges, which had been for many years an independent band, and of a thieving, vagabondish character (really outlaws from the Sioux nation, and were not represented in the treaties of 1851), who had taken possession of a strip of land running on both sides of the boundary lines of Iowa and Minnesota, and extending to the Missouri river. In March, 1857, a few of these Indians were hunting in the neighborhood of Rock river, and one of them was bitten by a dog belonging to a white man. The dog was killed by the Indian, and in return the owner of the dog made an assault upon the Indian, and afterwards gathered his neighbors, and they went to the Indian camp and disarmed them. The arms were afterwards returned to them, and the party moved north, arriving at the Spirit lake settlement about the sixth of March, where they massacred the men and took four women into captivity. Other settlements were attacked, and altogether forty-two settlers were killed. Two of the women were afterwards rescued through the efforts of Hon. Charles E. Flandrau, then the Indian agent. An effort was made to punish this band of savages, but all escaped except the oldest son of Ink-pa-du-ta, who had ventured into the camp of other Sioux, near the agency, and was killed in an attempt to capture him.

In 1855 and 1856 town-site speculation became the absorbing thought; and when the panic of 1857 set in Minnesota was soon in a deplorable condition. The demand for an extensive railroad system and a state government had originated in the flush times of 1856 and 1857, and on Feb. 26, 1857, Congress passed an act authorizing a constitutional convention, and granting a large amount of lands in aid of public schools. On March 3, 1857, an act of Congress was approved making a large grant of lands in aid of railroads.

The election of members of the constitutional convention was held June 1, 1857, and the result was an almost equal division representing the Democratic and Republican parties. So close was this division, and there being some contested seats, when the convention assembled, on July 13, two distinct organizations were made, each proceeding to frame a constitution, but finally, by conference committees, united in one document, which was submitted to a vote of the people on October 13, and adopted almost unanimously. By this constitution the boundaries of the State were changed on the west, making the Red River of the North the line, up to Bois des Sioux, along that river and through Lake Traverse and Big Stone lake, and by a direct south line to the north boundary of Iowa.

This constitution provided for an election of State officers at the same time of voting upon the adoption of the constitution, resulting, by a close vote, in the election of the Democratic nominees, and the first State legislature was convened on the 2d of December, 1857, and continued in session until March 25, 1858, when a recess was taken until after the State should be admitted. Some doubts were raised as to the legality of the acts of the legislature previous to admission by Congress. The act of admission was passed and approved May 11, 1858. The legislature again assembled in June, and finally adjourned Aug. 12, 1858. During this prolonged session the embryo State was without funds, and a loan of $250,000 was authorized; but as the acts of the legislature before admission were somewhat irregular, the loan could not be readily negotiated, and to tide over the difficulty State warrants were issued in the form of bank notes, and passed current, with more or less discount, until the summer of 1858, when they were redeemed from the proceeds of the loan consummated after the admission of the State.

The first legislature worked diligently in what they considered the best interest of the State, and as the grant of lands by the United States in aid of railroads within the State had to be turned over to companies, a large part of the session was devoted to railroad legislation; and the scheme of further aid to companies who might be willing to undertake the building of railroads was originated, and commonly denominated the "Five Million Loan Bill," contemplating the loan of the credit of the State, to that amount, in such sums as would be paid upon the grading and final completion of certain miles of road. On a submission of this law to the people it was adopted by a large majority. The opposition at the time of the vote upon this measure was very bitter, and continued after bonds were being issued, and with the dissatisfaction arising from the small amount of work completed and the large amount of bonds issued, threatenings of repudiation advocated by leading men in the State caused a distrust in financial circles and a final collapse of the whole scheme, and the foreclosure of the mortgages taken by the State upon the railroad lands and franchises, and the abandonment of all railroad construction for the time being. The total amount of bonds issued under this provision of the constitution was $2,275,000. By the foreclosure proceedings the State acquired about 250 miles of graded road, the franchises of the companies and the lands, amounting to five millions of acres, as indemnity for this issue of bonds. Notwithstanding the State had acquired all the rights, including the improvements of the railroad companies, the feeling against any settlement of the bonds was strong enough to secure an amendment to the constitution in 1860 prohibiting the passage of any law levying a tax or making other provision for the payment of the principal or interest of these bonds without having the same submitted to a vote of the people and adopted.

The two years following the crash of 1857 were replete with financial disaster and a shrinkage of inflated values in town-sites; but the country was filling up with farmers, and the rich soil of the State was giving abundant harvests.

The political contest of 1859 was bitter, and resulted in the Republican party carrying the State, both for State officers and the legislature.

The census of 1860 gave the State a population of 172,023; and during this year there was great hope of a largely increased immigration into the country; but the political situation in the Union, starting with the opening of the presidential campaign of that year, soon indicated a disturbing element throughout the country, and distrust and depression were manifest on all sides, which was not allayed by the result of the presidential election. The war period, commencing with the time of the president's proclamation in April, 1861, to the final close of the rebellion in 1865, did not permit of any material growth in the State. About twenty-five thousand of her able-bodied citizens volunteered and were enlisted in the Union army.

The Indian reservation set apart by the treaty of 1851, embracing a tract of land in the vicinity of Lake Traverse and Big Stone lake, one hundred miles long by twenty miles wide, embracing some of the finest lands in the State, was becoming a barrier to settlements in the upper Minnesota valley. Settlers had taken lands close up to the reservation, and there was considerable complaint that Indians were coming off the reservation and committing petty depredations, and the Indians had more or less complaints to make regarding the extortions practiced by the post traders. The encroachments of the whites were viewed with suspicion by the Indians, and sooner or later, from these causes alone, a conflict would probably have occurred. The War of the Rebellion, calling away so many of the able-bodied men of the State, left the frontier settlement almost defenseless, and doubtless caused the younger portion of the tribes to become more offensive to the settler, and more exacting in their demands.

The lands embraced within the reservation under the treaty of 1851 were in the very heart of Minnesota, and, considering the forests and streams, were the choicest of farming lands. The settlers on the border were anxiously coveting this Garden of Eden. A sentiment was created throughout the State that the Indians should abandon the tribal relations and become civilized. To this end the head men of the Dakota nation were induced, in 1858, to go to Washington, under the charge of Hon. Joseph R. Brown, in whom they had great confidence, for the purpose of negotiating for the whole or a part of this reservation. A treaty was signed ceding the ten-mile strip on the north side of the river, upon the payment of $166,000, and a further agreement of the government to set aside a civilization fund, by which every head of a family adopting a civilized life should secure in fee eighty acres of land, and the erection of farm buildings, and the supply of utensils; and to be paid a specified sum for the labor. From some cause the payment of $166,000 was never made, and there was great dissatisfaction on account of this treaty among those of the tribes who were averse to accepting the condition of civilization; and from the fact that there was no money divided among them on account of this relinquishment, a bitter dissension arose between the older chiefs and the younger members, the latter claiming that they had been robbed either by the chiefs or by the government; and they proposed to have a settlement, peaceful or otherwise.

This internal strife was augmented from year to year by the withdrawal of families who were willing to accept the civilization fund, the number in three years succeeding the treaty amounting to one hundred and sixty persons. They were, however, still annuity Indians, and claimed the right to be heard in the councils. The annuity Indians, all told, numbered about six thousand two hundred, and the annual cash payment to each person amounted to about fifteen dollars. The Indians were treated as wards of the State. Two agencies were established, around which were gathered storekeepers to sell the Indians goods in anticipation of the annuity payments; and, usually, the annual payment was simply a settlement of the claims of the traders, who took the risk of furnishing the goods in advance. That there was injustice practiced upon the Indians is doubtless true; but probably not so great as the disaffected Indians imagined. There was enough, however, to make the time of the annual payment an anxious period, for fear of an outbreak. The failure of the government in its attempt to punish the Spirit lake murderers had a tendency to create a feeling among the leaders of the rebellious spirit that if they could only unite the whole body of Sioux in an uprising they could make a successful attack upon the settlers, and perhaps regain the lands formerly held by the Indians. The War of the Rebellion, starting in 1861, gave renewed energy to the discontent. The Indians were well aware of the reverses of the Union forces during the first year of the war. The calls for troops were taking the able-bodied men from the farms, and many of the half-breeds had volunteered for the army. All these coincidents had a disquieting effect, and, added to this, in 1862 the June payment was not made; and as there was no satisfactory answer for the delay, the traders took advantage of the necessities of the Indians and insinuated that perhaps the government would go to pieces, and there would be no further payments. The missionaries endeavored to counteract these evil influences, and, with the aid of the civilized Indians, succeeded in averting deliberate outbreak. The delay in payment of annuities, however, tended to keep up the discontent, particularly among the younger braves, who were the hunters. Their vagabond life brought them into the settlements, and in contact with the whites; and their worthless, lazy habits made them offensive to the families, as beggars of meals or money, or anything to take their fancy.

These are, in brief, the circumstances which led up to the great massacre of 1862, which for a short time threatened the lives of all the settlers on the western boundary of the State. There was no concerted action for the massacre, and to some extent there is an uncertainty as to why the first murders were committed. Four young men or boys are believed to have commenced the massacre, in a spirit of bravado, making a threatening attack first upon a family, driving them from their homes, afterwards following them to a neighbor's house, where, after an altercation with the families, they killed three men and two women. These occurrences took place on the seventeenth of August, in the township of Acton, twelve miles west of Litchfield. Realizing that if they remained in the vicinity punishment would soon overtake their murderous acts, they lost no time in going back to camp, relating what they had done, and asking protection. A hasty consultation was had between two of the chiefs; they realized that the murderers must be given up, or the annuities would be stopped, and a war of extermination would be inaugurated. They chose to stand by the murderers; and immediately following there was a general uprising of the entire Sioux bands, and so swift were their movements, before any effective resistance could be brought against them, about eight hundred of the settlers, old men, women and children, were murdered within a few days. The prompt action of the State authorities, aided by the national government, resulted in the capture of about 2,000 of the belligerent Indians and the withdrawal of the remainder beyond the boundaries of the State, and into the wilds of Dakota. Of the captured Indians 303 were found guilty of murder and rape, and were condemned to death by a military court martial. Of this number 265 were reprieved by President Lincoln, and the remainder, thirty-eight of the most prominent engaged in the massacre, were hung in Mankato on the 26th of December, 1862. The next year the general government authorized an expedition against the Indians who had escaped to the Dakota plains, because of the constant raids of small squads of hostiles to the frontiers of the State for the purpose of horse stealing and marauding upon adventurous settlers who might risk going back to their abandoned farms. After two decisive encounters, the Indians retreated beyond the Missouri river, and in 1864 another expedition was sent forward and a final settlement of the Sioux outbreak was accomplished, by a confiscation and surrender of all the ponies and arms of most of the hostiles to the government.

The several tribes of Sioux Indians were alone engaged in this massacre; and were the representatives of the tribes that had made the cession of lands in 1851, under the first and second treaties of that year. Under these treaties the government had set aside a trust fund of several millions of dollars, from which there was paid annually the sum of $150,000. Settlers who had lost property urged their claims for indemnity, and Congress promptly established a commission to receive all claims, and investigate the facts. The commission was duly organized and established headquarters in the city of St. Paul, and carefully examined all the claims presented. The total number filed was 2,040, with damages amounting to $2,458,795.16. The commission allowed 2,635 claims, and cut down the damages to $1,370,374. By act of Congress these claims were paid, and the annuities and all further payments to the tribes were stopped. The State was also reimbursed for extraordinary expenses incurred during the period of insurrection.

On the third of October, 1863, a treaty was concluded at the old crossing of Red Lake river, about twelve miles east of the present city of Crookston, by Alexander Ramsey and Ashley C. Morrill, and the chiefs and head men of the Red Lake and of the Pembina bands of Chippewa Indians, for the cession of a large tract of country, being the same land embraced in one of the treaties of 1851, but not ratified at that time, of which the boundaries are as follows: Commencing at the intersection of the national boundary with the Lake of the Woods; thence in a southwest direction to the head of Thieving river; thence following that stream to its mouth; thence in a direct line to the head of Wild Rice river; thence following the boundary of the Pillager cession of 1856 to the mouth of said river; thence up the channel of the Red river to the mouth of the Cheyenne; thence up said river to Lake Chicott. near the eastern extremity of Devil's lake; thence north to the international boundary; thence east on said boundary to the place of beginning; embracing all the American valley of the Red river, except a small portion previously ceded, and estimated to embrace 11,000,000 acres. This treaty was signed by the chiefs and head men of these Chippewa bands and by the commission on the third day of October, 1863, advised and consented to by the Senate, with amendments, March 1, 1864. The Indians, on the 12th of April, 1864. ratified the amendments, and President Lincoln, by his proclamation of the 5th of May, 1864, ratified and confirmed the treaty.

The close of the Civil war in the spring of 1865, and the return of the soldiers, and the assurance of no further depredations from the Sloux Indians, started a new era of prosperity and rapid growth. The legislature, in the meantime, had granted charters on the foreclosed roadbeds and lands to new railroad companies, and the construction of roads was furnishing abundant labor to all who were coming to the State. The population at this time was 250,009, and in 1870 the population had increased to 439.706, nearly doubling in five years. The railroad companies had within the same period constructed nearly 1,000 miles of railroad, and continued their building with even greater vigor until the financial crisis of 1873 brought all public enterprises again to a stand, and produced stagnation in all the growing towns. The farmers had been active in developing the country, and were adding largely to the productions of the State when the grasshopper raids, for the time being, destroyed the growing crops, and caused great financial distress for two or three years.

The census of 1875 gave the State a population of 595,407, still showing a fair increase, but small in comparison with the five years following the close of the rebellion. By 1878 the State had fairly recovered from the financial crash of 1873, but speculation has at no time since 1878 been so reckless as in the two periods of the State ending in 1857 and 1873.

Along with the prosperity of the State, caused so largely by the rapid railroad building, the State pride began to assert itself with more force, and the prominent citizens continued to urge an adjustment of the dishonored railroad bonds. In 1877 a proposition setting aside the proceeds of 500,000 acres for internal improvement lands in settlement was by act of the legislature submitted to a vote at a special election called for the 12th of June, 1877, and voted down by the decisive vote of 59,176 against to 17,324 votes for the proposition. This vote was largely owing to the fact that the State at that time had almost an entire new population that had come into the State long after the bonds were issued and had no definite knowledge of the history of the original indebtedness.

In 1881 the legislature enacted a law providing for the adjustment of these bonds, and designating the judges of the supreme court as a commission to make the settlement. The constitutionality of this law was questioned, and a writ of injunction served, and the final determination of the supreme bench was that the law was unconstitutional, as was also the amendment of 1860, prohibiting any settlement without a vote of the people. This latter act had previously been determined unconstitutional by the supreme court of the United States. An extra session of the legislature was called in October of the same year, when the final adjustment was authorized by act of the legislature, on a basis of fifty per cent of the amount nominally due, and, after a careful examination of all the claims presented, the bond question was forever set at rest by the issue of adjustment bonds, to the amount of $4,282,000, to parties entitled to receive them. For the payment of these bonds the proposition of setting aside the proceeds of the 500,000 acres of internal improvement lands was again submitted at the general election in 1881, and, by a vote of 82,435 votes in favor and 24,526 votes against, the action of the legislature was ratified and the stigma of repudiation removed, which had been fastened upon the State by the popular vote of 1877.

In 1880 the national census gave us a population of 780,773, and the state census of 1885 swelled these figures to 1,117,798, indicating the extraordinary growth of forty-three per cent; but an examination of the figures shows us that the growth was mainly confined to the cities, being nearly eighty per cent of increase, while in the farming community and small towns the percentage of increase was only twenty per cent.

During the ten years between 1880 and 1890 there was a period of great activity in railroad building, and 2,310 miles of road were put in operation. This alone gave great energy to the business of the State, and caused a large increase in the population of the cities, and gradually culminated in a most extravagant real estate boom, and an era of the wildest speculation. In the country the growth was normal over the entire State, although large numbers of farmers in the southern half of the State were attracted to the plains of Dakota, where great activity was being developed by the pushing of railroads into different sections of the territory.

The settlement of the Dakotas and the consequent breaking up of the virgin land, after the year 1885, almost doubled the wheat yield of the north-western states, so that the farmers of Minnesota were soon confronted with the question whether wheat should continue to be their leading staple. In the southern part of the State the wheat return was not enough per acre to yield any profit to the farmer at the reduced prices; and gradually methods have changed, so that the leading agricultural industries are dairying, stock raising, and a general diversified farming. It seems safe to predict that in the near future Minnesota will yield her place as the greatest wheat-producing state, but will have earned a greater reputation as the best all-around farming state in the Union.

The national census of 1890 gave us a population of 1,301,826, an increase of 184,028 in five years, of which amount about 70,000 increase went to the cities and 114,000 to the country districts, showing eighteen per cent increase in the cities and fifteen per cent increase in the country. The state census of 1895 showed an increase of 272,793, or 21.95 per cent, in the preceding five years, giving a total population of 1,574,619.

Minnesota was the first state of the Union to respond to the call of the president for volunteers at the beginning of the war with Spain, in April, 1898. Three regiments, designated as the Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Regiments of Minnesota Volunteers, were mobilized at St. Paul April 29, and were mustered into the United States service May 7 and 8. The Fifteenth Regiment was mustered into service July 18. In total this State furnished 5,313 officers and enlisted men for the volunteer army. At the close of the war the Twelfth and Fourteenth Regiments returned to Minnesota, and were mustered out of service in November. The Thirteenth and Fifteenth Regiments continue in service, the former being stationed at Manila, P. I., and the latter at Augusta, Ga.

Since the year 1893 the reaction from the great inflation of prices for the four or five years previous has had a depressing effect upon the growth of our larger cities; but the widespread depression in business has been felt less severely in the country. Financially the State is in good condition, and business in all departments of industry throughout the State and nation is resuming its normal prosperity.

DESCRIPTIVE.

NAME.

Minnesota derives its name from the river which was named "Minisota" by the Dakotas, pronounced "Min-nee-sotah," applied to the stream, in its natural state in the summer season, after the waters were cleared from the roiling caused by the spring floods. Mini, water; sotah, sky-colored. Apparently, to secure the correct pronunciation in English letters, the convention called at Stillwater, in 1848, for the purpose of procuring a territorial organization, instructed their delegates to see that the name of the Territory should be written Min-ne-so-ta.

GEOGRAPHY.

Geographically, Minnesota occupies the exact center of the continent of North America, midway between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and also midway between Hudson's Bay and the Gulf of Mexico. This State is bounded on the south by Iowa, on the west by South and North Dakota, on the north by Manitoba and Ontario, and on the east by Wisconsin. It extends from latitude 43 degrees 50 minutes to 49 degrees, and from 89 degrees 29 minutes to 97 degrees 5 minutes west longitude. From its southern boundary to the northern is about 400 miles, and from its most eastern to the extreme western point about 354 miles. In article 2 of the State constitution the boundaries are fully defined, including a history of the projecting point beyond the forty-ninth parallel, shown upon the map.

AREA.

Minnesota is, in area, the tenth state of the Union. It contains 84,287 square miles, or about 53,943,379 acres, of which 3,608,012 acres are water. In altitude it appears to be one of the highest portions of the continent, as the headwaters of the three great river systems are found in its limits, those of streams flowing northward to Hudson's bay, eastward to the Atlantic ocean, and southward to the Gulf of Mexico.

Three-quarters of this surface consists of rolling prairie, interspersed with frequent groves, oak openings and belts of hardwood timber, watered by numberless lakes and streams, and covered with a warm, dark soil of great fertility. The rest, embracing the elevated district, immediately west of Lake Superior, consists mainly of the rich mineral ranges on its shores, and of the pine forests which clothe the headwaters of the Mississippi, affording very extensive supplies of lumber. There is but a very small percentage of broken, rocky or worthless land in the State. Nearly all is arable.

RIVERS.

Numerous rivers and watercourses give it excellent drainage. But few states are so well watered as Minnesota. Its navigable rivers are the Mississippi, Minnesota, the St. Croix, the St. Louis, the Red River of the North, and the Red Lake river, all of which, near their sources, have extensive water powers; while a number of smaller streams, such as Rum river and Snake river, both valuable for lumbering; the Cannon and Zumbro rivers, the Vermilion, Crow, Blue Earth, Des Moines, Cottonwood, Chippewa, Le Sueur, Root, Elk and Sauk rivers, etc., also furnish fine water powers. These, with their tributaries and a host of lesser streams, penetrate every portion of the State. Some of the water powers furnished by these streams are among the finest in America, and many of them have been utilized for manufacturing purposes.

LAKES.

The lakes of Minnesota are more numerous and varied in form than in any other state in the Union. Bordering on the northeast corner of the State for two hundred miles, the waters of the great Lake Superior wash its shores. Within the State there are about eight thousand lakes, the largest of which is Red lake, in the extreme central northern part of the State, surrounded by dense pine forests, with its overflow through Red Lake river, by a devious course, into the Red River of the North. On the same northern slope, in St. Louis county, is the beautiful Vermilion lake, with its tributaries, at the edge of the great iron range, and flowing into Rainy lake, on the northern boundary, and then through Rainy Lake river into Lake of the Woods, and thence into Lake Winnipeg, and finally into Hudson's bay. On the southern divide of the State we have Itasca lake, as the source of the Mississippi, with Cass lake, Lake Winnibigoshish, Leech lake, and other innumerable lakes, all adding volume to the waters of the Mississippi, eventually flowing into the Gulf of Mexico. Then we have Mille Lacs, the source of Rum river, and the picturesque Lake Minnetonka. These are the largest lakes in the State. Of these, however, only Minnetonka, besides White Bear and Chisago lakes, have so far been utilized as summer resorts. The incomparable park region, traversed by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads, is the paradise of summer idlers, of hunters and fishermen; but it is not in this portion alone that all the beautiful lakes are to be found. The northeastern and the southwestern sections each have numerous lakes to attract the summer visitor.

There is an undoubted modification of the climate of the State, caused by these numerous bodies of water, giving a most delightful summer temperature.

Fine varieties of fish are abundant in all these lakes; and the State expends annually several thousand dollars, through a game and fish commission, to improve the varieties, and to prevent their wanton destruction.

ELEVATION.

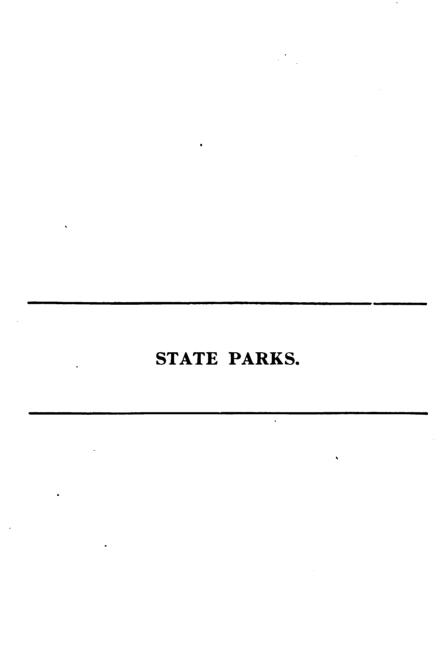

The geological surveys give Duluth as the lowest point in the State, 602 feet above sea level. And the waters of the northeastern part of the State south of the Mesabi range flow into Lake Superior, and are carried to the Atlantic ocean. The Mississippi river, starting at Elk lake, near Lake Itasca, about 1,600 feet elevation, runs in a southerly direction, leaving the State at 620 feet above sea level.

The Red River of the North, rising in the north, near Itasca lake, at a height of 1,600 feet above the ocean, after a circuitous route south and west to Breckenridge, in Wilkin county, and then north to Winnipeg, leaves the State at an elevation of 767 feet. The average elevation of the State is given at about 1,275 feet. The highest elevation is in the Mesabi range, 2,200 feet.

CLIMATE.

The elevation of Minnesota above the sea, its fine drainage, and the dryness of the atmosphere, gives it a climate of unusual salubrity and pleasantness. It has an annual mean temperature of 44 degrees 6 minutes, while its mean summer temperature is 70 degrees 6 minutes, the same as that of Middle Illinois and Ohio, southern Pennsylvania, etc. The excessive heats of summer often felt in other states are here tempered by the cooling breezes. Its high latitude gives it correspondingly longer days in summer than states further south, and during the growing season there are two and one-half hours more sunshine than in the latitude of Cincinnati. This, taken in connection with the abundant rainfall of early summer, accounts for the rapid and vigorous growth of crops in Minnesota, and their early maturity. The cool breezes and cool nights in summer prevent the debilitating effects of heat on the system often felt in low latitudes. The winter climate is one of the attractive features of the State. Its uniformity, freedom from thaws and excessive spells of cold, severe weather or heavy snow storms and dryness, together with the bright sunshine and electrical condition of the air, all tend to enhance the personal comfort of the resident, and make outdoor life and labor a pleasure.

These features tend to make this climate the healthiest in the Union. It gives life and briskness to those performing manual labor, enabling them to do more work than in a damper or duller climate. Even live stock enjoy this feature, and are easily wintered in good condition.

ITASCA STATE PARK.

STATE PARKS.

ITASCA STATE PARK.

A mound-building nation of men, in ancient times and at an unknown date, ascended the Mississippi river to its source, locating one of their villages at the outlet of Itasca lake, where they made clay vessels, chipped implements and stone axes, burying their dead in mounds of earth.

This archælogic discovery was made by Mr. J. V. Brower, in 1894, and the stone objects are preserved, in part, with the State Historical Society, in the capitol building at St. Paul.

For some as yet unascertained reason, these ancient men retired from the locality, and when, in 1659, Radisson, a French explorer, reached and crossed the Mississippi, above the Falls of St. Anthony of Padua, he found the Sioux Indians in possession of the upper waters of the Mississippi.

It is related in history that when the Ojibway Indians came into the possession of firearms they gradually drove out the Sloux and assumed possession of the country to and beyond the headwater branches of the Mississippi. The vicissitudes of time and the fortunes of war made one-half of the source of the river a federal possession and the other half a French possession as a part of Louisiana.

By purchase, at a fraction more than two cents per acre, Louisiana came into possession of the United States, in 1803, and the title of the Ojibway people at Itasca lake was subsequently extinguished by formal treaty.

In 1875 the official survey, made under direction of Gen. J. H. Baker, brought the land about Itasca lake under the operation of the public land laws, and a portion of them were entered, odd sections to a given limit inured to the grant to the Northern Pacific railroad, swamp land selections were made, and the school sections were set apart for school purposes.

Such were the conditions when, on the 20th of April, 1891, an act of the legislature was approved setting apart thirty-five sections (19,702 acres) as a public State park, to be forever dedicated to public use.

This dedication by legislative enactment is in the nature of a reservation of that part of the area of the State which immediately surrounds the ultimate basin of the Mississippi. The object of the reservation is to maintain intact, forever, a limited area of the domain of this commonwealth, seven miles long and five in width, in a state of nature. A dense forest of pine, oak, maple, basswood, aspen, balsam fir, cedar and spruce covers the heights of land which separate the headwaters of the Mississippi from those of the Red River of the North, and the certainty of the ultimate destruction of the entire pine forest of the State, at no distant day, for commercial purposes, makes this park reservation, notwithstanding its limited area, particularly valuable as maintaining a forest of pine, for all future time, in a natural condition, as a public resort for the whole people of the State. It entirely surrounds Itasca lake, and is distant from the north boundary of Minnesota 125 miles, from the south boundary 252 miles, from the west boundary 75 miles, from Lake Superior 150 miles, and from the State capital 140 miles by the ordinary traveled route. Its altitude above the sea level is from 1,457 feet at the surface of the water in Itasca lake, to 1,750 feet at the summit of the heights of land near the south end of the park. The distance from the State capital by the channel of the Mississippi to the north end of the park is 560 miles. The territory set apart is a picturesque locality, containing numerous lakes and streams, and is of historical interest throughout the civilized world, attention having been directed toward it during the Spanish, French, English and American occupancy of the Western hemisphere. It has been more widely discussed throughout the world than any other historical locality of the State, on account of the interest centered in the ultimate source of the Mississippi river, which originates from secular aerial precipitation forming a greater ultimate reservoir at the heights of land within the park, 2,553 miles from the Gulf of Mexico by the channel of the river.

On the third day of August, 1892, the United States granted to this State all the unappropriated public lands within the park, with the following proviso:

"Provided, That the land hereby granted shall revert to the United States, together with all improvements thereon, if at any time it shall cease to be exclusively used for a public State park, or if the State shall not pass a law or laws to protect the timber thereon."

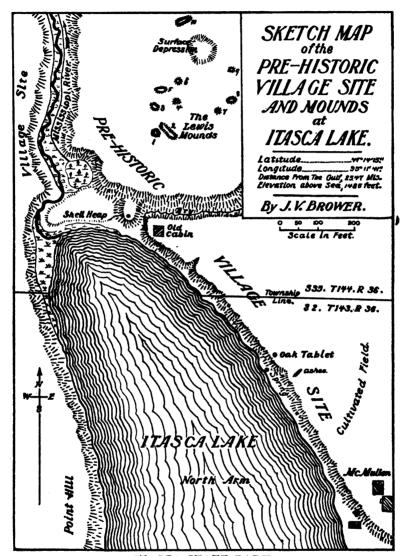

At the session of the legislature for 1893 the State accepted the grant, but has not made provision for the extinguishment of the title to that portion of the park held by individual owners, so that the separate parcels under State control and held as private property are as follows:

Under State control and ownership
	10.702

This divided ownership of the park area leaves the whole region open to despoilation and destruction by lumbering operations within the limits of the park and consequent destructive forest fires after the timber is cut. The State has a State house near the shore of Itasca lake, and a resident commissioner is in charge of the park.

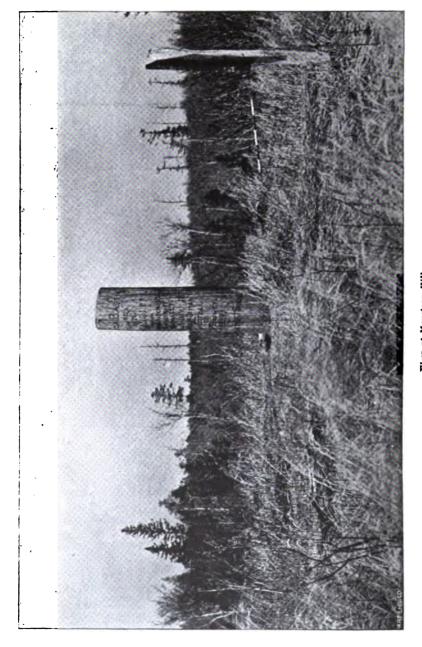

As one of the results of the park law, which prohibits hunting within park limits, game animals and birds have rapidly increased in number at this limited but safe retreat for animals and fowls.

No appropriation has as yet been made for the final extinguishment of the title of private ownership, and as the lands cannot be converted from private to public use without compensation, the interests of the State are subject to irretrievable injury and great damage. His excellency the governor has recommended an enlarged park area, and there is some probability that one native virgin forest of the State may be forever preserved in a state of nature.

The name—Itasca—is derived from the sentence, veritas caput, its significance meaning the true head of the river. The formulation was by Henry R. Schoolcraft and Rev. W. T. Boutwell, in 1832, when they journeyed, under the guidance of Yellow-head, an Ojibway Indian, to Bemedji and Itasca lakes.

THE INTER-STATE PARK.

THE DALLES OF THE ST. CROIX.

The Inter-State Park, embracing what has been commonly known as "The Dalles of the St. Croix River," is the second of state parks. The beautiful tracts of land on either side of the St. Croix river at Taylors Falls, on the Minnesota side, and St. Croix Falls, on the Wisconsin side, were acquired by the respective states in 1895. In the beginning of that year Mr. G. H. Hazzard of St. Paul called public attention to the desirability of securing these lands for a public preserve. The proposition to establish such a park met with so general approval that the result was the enactment of chapter 169, General Laws of Minnesota for 1895, and of chapter 315, General Laws of Wisconsin for 1895. A commission was appointed by Gov. Clough, consisting of Messrs. Benj. Clayton of Taylors Falls, John Zelch of Cottage Grove and G. H. Hazzard of St. Paul, to secure title to the land. Mr. Hazzard was afterwards appointed park commissioner.

The plant life in and about the Dalles is said to be the most varied of any one place known. The moss-covered rocks and logs are likened unto beautiful mats, so varied are their colors. All the different vines of the northern climes are found here. Among her trees are the pine (white, Norway and jack), cedar (red and white), spruce, fir, birch, willow, butternut, linden, poplar, the maple family, ash, walnut, mountain ash, elm, oak, ironwood, cherry, hickory, and the junipers, the larch and Canadian yew. Among her thousand plants is found the moccasin flower ("Our State's Own"), the golden rod, blue harebells, roses, bluebells, jacks-in-the-pulpit, columbine, honeysuckle, blue gentian, anemones, asters and lilies. Among her very exceptionally large family of ferns, the most choice and rare are found, including the walking and bulb fern; and among her mosses and lichens is found the prickly pear cactus. The "Glacier Gardens" are among her most noted features—the footprints in the rocks, the many pot-holes or wells, made by the whirling, surging water keeping the boulders or cobblestones in motion. Large numbers of these have been taken out, some among a yellow drift, as from Red River valley, and some a dark red drift, as from Lake Superior. Many of the stones are worn very round and smooth. The names of many of the places are: Old St. Croix Fireplace (the coloring of this is remarkable), the Devil's Chair, the Kitchen, Bake-oven, Sitting Room, Pulpit, the Cross, Old Man of the Dalles or Sentinel, the Cave, the Gopher, the Hammer-head or Two-faced Man, the Pulpit, Desk Rock, Echo Rock, Eagle Nest Point. For geology, see Chamberlin-Strong, 1880, "Geology of Wisconsin," vol. III., chap. 6, pp. 365-428; Winchell-Upham, 1888, Minn. Survey, final rept., vol. II., pp. 399-425; Warren Upham lecture, 1896; "Lectures, Laws, Papers, Pictures, Pointers, Inter-State Park, Dalles of the St. Croix."

The American Park and Outdoor Art Association held their national convention in Minneapolis last summer. Many of them visited the Dalles, and after a careful inspection by Warren H. Manning, secretary, Boston, adopted the following resolutions, indorsing the move to acquire 1,100 acres in Wisconsin and 500 in Minnesota on lines surveyed and recommended by Frank H. Nutter, so as to control the unit of scenery, embracing the land-scape from the upper to the lower Dalles:

Resolved, That we place upon the records of this American Park and Outdoor Art Association an expression of our appreciation of the work that has already been accomplished toward securing the Dalles of the St. Croix as a forest reserve for the benefit of the citizens of Minnesota and Wisconsin, where native plants and animals that are fast being exterminated may be perpetuated and where they and the remarkably varied and interesting geological conditions may be readily accessible to students, and we urge that these two states take early action to acquire the additional land that is necessary to preserve the reservation and the views in it from being marred by the destruction of any part of the forest growth and rock formations or by the introduction of any inharmonious objects.

We further direct our secretary to send to the executive officers of the States of Minnesota and Wisconsin a copy of this resolution.

The land embracing the springs on the St. Croix Falls side, near the grist mill, with the shore line of the river on both sides, from the bridge up to the old dam, should also be secured.

The following letter was received by the commissioner from John H. Renshawe, Geologist, United States Geological Survey, Department of Interior, dated at Washington, D. C., Oct. 3, 1898:

"Under separate cover, I mail you a photograph of the St. Croix Falls sheet. The photograph, being all black, you will not be able to form a correct idea of the work as it will appear in the final engraved proof. When engraved, the houses, roads, etc., will be printed in black, the contours in brown, and the water in blue. It will be one of the most beautiful and interesting sheets we have surveyed, and will be valuable for the use of students, with its varied contour and rich geological and pictorial features. The States of Minnesota and Wisconsin are to be congratulated that you took up the matter of making a reservation of the Dalles of the St. Croix.

TAYLORS FALLS.

"Having visited and inspected the park before you commenced your extensive improvements, I have to congratulate you upon the good effect you have been able to produce with so little money at your disposal, with which to clear up and make accessible the picturesque parts of the Dalles."

This survey was secured by Senator Davis, Dean Hall of the University of Minnesota, and Professor Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, joining with the Park-Commission in the request. The map includes a territory of 12x17 miles. The St. Croix river at the Dalles is near 700 feet above sea level. The bluffs on the Minnesota side are 1,120 feet above sea level, while on the Wisconsin side they rise to 1,400 feet.

The elevation of points in neighboring territory is as follows: At Duluth—lake, 600 feet; bluffs, 1,000 to 1,400 feet. At St. Paul—river, 700 feet; bluffs, 900 to 1,000. At Minneapolis—water above falls, nearly 800 feet and knolls at Lake Harriet, 900 feet. The low land south of the State Fair Grounds is 900 feet.

This park move should have a good effect on our state, and no doubt has stimulated sentiment in the line of having the general government preserve the Leech Lake region, and should set the friends in the different parts of the state to work to secure the shore line and prominent points on many of our lakes and streams for park purposes.

The editor of the Garden and Forest, published in New York, in speaking of the move to secure the Dalles of the St. Croix as an interstate park, names them in the following class:

"It is not only such marvels as Niagara, the Palisades, the Dalles of the St. Croix, the Yosemite valley, and the great gorge of the Colorado which ought to appeal to us as a special charge for which our civilization is responsible."

The editor of the Grocer's Criterion, Chicago, who has a collection of over three thousand photographs of American beauty spots, pens a column article for his paper, of which the following is a sample:

"Fancy a massive mountain split from summit to base by some mighty convulsion of nature, and through this great gorge a deep, black river rushing, and you have a slight conception of this interesting place. In its way it is as remarkable as Niagara, and its picturesque features are more attractive and beautiful."

MINES AND MINING.

Minnesota has now arisen to a prominent place at the top of the column of mining states. Contrary to other states, the valuable ore-bearing lands in this State are not owned exclusively by private parties. The State owns most valuable mining lands, which are leased. The terms of such leases require an advance payment into the state treasury and another payment on the execution of the contract. The rapid development of the mining interests of the State was apparently unchecked during the recent financial depression, and to-day is attracting the attention of the country at large.

To July 31, 1898, the State had issued 2,520 mineral prospecting leases, twenty-six of which were in force. There had also been made 346 mining contracts, of which eighty-five were in force. Compared with the past years but few new leases or contracts for mining are being made, the iron mines at present in operation on state and private lands being apparently fully capable of supplying the demand for the grades of ore found on the iron ranges in Minnesota.

Many changes, of course, have taken place affecting the ownership of the mining properties and in the actual prices at which the ores have been sold, but the ore shipped from the State has increased its total tonnage every year since the opening of the first mine at Tower. This is expressed in the following table:

Inasmuch as several of the mines on the Mesabi range are owned by the State, and are operated on leases executed under a general law, it is evident that the State has a monied interest in this development. The royalties paid from such mines into the treasury of the State, in 1897 and 1898, at the legal rate of twenty-five cents per ton, amount to $51,446.89.

The following is a statement of the quantity of iron ore mined and removed from state lands, with amount of royalty accruing to the state (chapter 22, 1889), as reported to State Auditor within the period ending July 31, 1898:

AGRICULTURE.

As an agricultural state Minnesota, with its favorable climate, rich soil, and abundant water supply, cannot be surpassed by any state in the West for successful diversified farming. The statistics of 1896 indicate that there is in the State a cultivated area of 6,833,858 acres, and in addition thereto natural meadows which yield an abundance of wild hay. The wheat crop of 1896 amounted to 39,479,158 bushels from 3,065,332 acres, being an average of 12.8 bushels to an acre.

The following table indicates the agricultural resources of the State for 1806:

Oats, bushels	42,635,405
Corn, bushels	29,863,441
Barley, bushels	12,119,800
Potatoes, bushels	8,001,800
Flax seed, bushels	4,276,758
Rye, bushels	1,716,816

Figures given in above table are as reported by assessors. Owing to the failure of a few counties to make any report, and reports from some counties being only partial reports, it is undoubtedly safe to add ten per cent to figures given in above table.

The following table shows the number of animals in the State reported for taxation in 1898:

Horses, one year old and under	30,166
Horses, two years old	35,769
Horses, three years old and over	485,275
		551,210
Cows	578,259
Working oxen	1,545
All other cattle	398,028
		977,832
Sheep		291,359
Hogs		403,921

Within the past years the butter and cheese industry of the State has had a wonderful growth. In October, 1898, there were 664 creameries and 90 cheese factories. Minnesota butter to-day commands the highest price in the butter market. Its value is known and recognized not only throughout this entire country, but is in great demand in the British markets. At the Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha last year Minnesota butter captured four of the five prizes offered.

State lands suitable for agricultural purposes are for sale on terms and conditions as follows: Are first appraised. No sale can be made for less than the appraised valuation, and in no event for less than five dollars per acre; may be higher. Four weeks' notice of sale must be given by publication; lands are then sold at the county seats, at public auction to the highest bidder. No bid can be received for less than five dollars per acre. Fifteen per cent of the purchase price and interest on the unpaid balance of the principal from date of sale to June 1st following must be paid at time of sale.

The balance can run for forty years on interest at five per cent per annum, payable annually in advance, June 1st of each year. The principal can be paid at any time—all at once, or in partial payments, at the pleasure of the purchaser. The State issues certificates of purchase which are assignable and may be recorded.

Swamp lands on even-numbered sections may be selected for state institutions fund and disposed of in the same manner as other state lands.

Odd-numbered sections are held in trust for railroad companies having grants from the State, and may be purchased through them.

Pine lands are not sold by the acre, unless the timber has been removed. Stumpage is estimated and appraised, and then offered for sale to the highest bidder at public sale at this office, notice of sale having been given for at least sixty days. No bid can be received for a less price per thousand than the appraisal. Duplicate permits are issued by the State. Twenty-five per cent of the purchase money must be paid at the time of sale, and bonds are required from the purchaser. This sale is made subject to a scale to be made by the surveyor of logs and lumber of the proper district after the cutting is done. Final payments for stumpage then fall due. Stumpage for ties, cedar and tamarack poles are subject to the same conditions.

RAILROADS.

On the 30th of June, 1898, there were 6,062.69 miles of railroad in operation. The general government has granted to railroads within this State 17,621,952 acres of land, and the State has granted 3,548,719.93 acres of swamp and other lands, making a total of 21,170,671.93 acres of land within the State given to railroads. Of the congressional lands there have been patented to the railroads by the State 8,139,448.77 acres (exclusive of Northern Pacific lands), and of swamp and other lands patented by the State, 2,095,342.90 acres, making a total of 10,234,598.05 acres actually patented by the State to railroads.

Amount of taxes received from the railroads in Minnesota for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1898, was $1,154,737.77.

The capital stock and bonds of all the railroads in the State June 30, 1898, amounted to $1,157,061,160; the proportion of same for Minnesota on a road mileage basis was $264,326,776. The total gross earnings of all the roads for the year ending December 31, 1898, were $43,903,818.22, on which the tax amounted to $1,261,271.77.

MONETARY.

The banks and banking institutions represent the commercial interests of the State. On December 1, 1898, the total invested capital in the 157 state and 69 national banks amounted to $19,296,800.

The total receipts into the state treasury from all sources were $5,429,-240.32 for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1898, and the disbursements were $5,298,942.05.

STATE DEBT.

The total funded debt on August 1, 1896, was as follows:

Minnesota funding bonds (1892), three and one-half per cent	$1,659,000.00
Minnesota revenue and building bonds (1889), four per cent	300,000.00
Total	$1,959 000 00

The legislature of 1895 (chapter 362, General Laws 1895) appropriated $250,000 from the revenue fund towards paying the revenue and building bonds. This sum, with the amount in the redemption fund, was sufficient to pay the $300,000 outstanding. The bonds were accordingly paid and destroyed. This leaves the state debt, on July 31, 1898:

$1,419,000.00	Ainnesota funding bonds
56,647.22	Deduct cash in funding tax fund
$1,475,647,22	Actual state debt

Of the outstanding funding bonds the permanent school fund holds $162,000, the permanent university fund $256,000, and $1,001,000 are held by private parties; a total of $1,419,000.

TIMBER.

While sometimes regarded as a prairie state, Minnesota is well supplied with timber, and a large proportion of it is covered with heavy forests. The "big woods," as they are termed, is a body of hard wood timber, containing about 5,000 square miles, while all that portion of the State between the Mississippi and St. Croix rivers is well wooded, the upper portion of it being extensive pineries. The strictly prairie portion of the State is about twentyfive counties in the southwestern and western parts. For instance, Nobles county, with 460,000 acres of land, had but forty acres of timber. The hard wood forests of the State are of great value for manufacturing purposes, and much capital is used in that way. The pine forests, however, are one of the chief sources of wealth to the State. For two years, ending July 31, 1898, there has been paid into the treasury from stumpage the magnificent sum of $214,066.56. For the purpose of encouraging forest culture in the prairie portions of the State, as early as 1873 a bounty of $2 an acre was authorized by the legislature for each acre planted and successively cultivated for three years, and also the same amount for the planting and cultivation of trees for each one-half mile in extent along any highway, and said bounties were to be paid for ten years thereafter, if kept in growing condition. This law made no provision for the number of trees to an acre, and in 1883 the law was changed, fixing the number of trees and increasing the bounty. The law was again amended in 1885, in 1889, and also in 1895, so that at the present time the law is that the full term for which the State agrees to pay bounty is for six years, and there is appropriated annually the amount of $20,000. For the years 1897 and 1898 there was paid out the sums of $19,856.17 and $18,984.02, respectively, for tree culture, at the rate of $2.25 and $2.10 per acre, showing 8,824 24-25 acres for 1897 and 9,049.01 acres for 1898 in cultivation and entitled to bounties. Under the operation of the law, however, it appears that about 67,000 acres of forest trees have been planted and kept in a good and healthy growing condition in the prairie regions of the state.

MANUFACTURES.

While the leading industry of the State is agricultural, the manufacture of flour and lumber, being almost entirely the production of the State, are worthy of particular note for their great extent, that of flour alone being nearly equal to the entire output of all other portions of the United States. The daily capacity of the merchant flouring mills in Minneapolis alone is equal to 75,000 barrels. The total output for the year ending December 31. 1898, amounted to the magnificent showing of nearly twenty-five millions of barrels, of which amount the city of Minneapolis is credited with 14,232,595 barrels. The lumber statistics for 1808 cannot be given with any degree of accuracy, as the surveyor general of the Second District only has reported. The statistics for this district are as follows: The total number of logs cut was 5,444.736 and the number of feet scaled, 501,161,600. The lumber cut was: Lumber, 671,938,740; shingles, 146,542,750; lath, 121,440,800. Manufacturers of agricultural machinery, wagons, barrels, firkins and furniture, largely supplied by material from our hardwood forests, are scattered in different sections of the State.

The experiments made in the manufacture of flax fiber and its products are highly promising, and the culture of flax and hemp in this State is destined to become one of the sources of wealth to the agricultural communities and cities as well. This can also be said of the sugar beet and grass twine industry.

EDUCATION.

By the organic act of Minnesota, two sections of land in each township were set aside by the general government for the support of popular education in the State; and the state constitution provides that the proceeds of this land shall remain a perpetual school fund for the State, only the income of which shall be used to pay for the schooling of its children. This fund for the school year ending July 31, 1898, was $11,822,145.58. In accordance with a law passed by the legislature in 1887, a tax of one mill is annually levied on the property of the State for the support of common schools. The total receipts from interest on the permanent fund and the one mill tax for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1898, amounted to $1,085.210.56, and the number of scholars entitled to the apportionment was 309,586, giving the sum of $3,30 for each scholar.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

The people of Minnesota may be congratulated upon the number and character of the state institutions, which in money value represent an expenditure of over seven millions of dollars for building and improvements alone. The expenditures for betterments for the two years ending July 31, 1898, amounted to $888,265.83. The entire expenditure for the support of the institutions since their establishment amounts to $17,982,399.99, of which $2,785,325.75 were for the fiscal years 1897 and 1898. Interesting details relating to the several charitable, educational and reformatory institutions will be found under distinctive heads in another portion of the manual.

THE FUTURE GROWTH.

The future of Minnesota must be one of steady growth. With the productions of our farms, and timber and minerals, aggregating one hundred and seventy millions of dollars annually, taken from the soil, with a cultivated area of less than seven millions of acres, and a reserve of uncultivated land of forty-five millions of acres awaiting the hands of the husbandman, we can say to struggling laborers in the overcrowded cities that Minnesota offers a productive soil, a healthful climate and happy homes to hundreds of thousands of families without overcrowding her population or overtaxing the productiveness of her soil.

PRESENT STATE CAPITOL.

THE STATE CAPITOL.

By the organic act of Minnesota Territory, $20,000 were appropriated for a capitol building. At the time the Territory was organized, however, (June 1, 1849), the permanent seat of government had not been determined on, and the money was therefore not available. The "Central House" in St. Paul, a log tavern, weather-boarded, situated at the corner of Bench and Minnesota streets, was rented for the public offices and legislative assembly. It was for some months known as "The Capitol." On the lower floor was the secretary of state's office and the house of representatives' chamber. On the second floor was the council chamber and the territorial library. Neither of these legislative halls was over sixteen or eighteen feet square. The rest of the building was used as an inn. The Union colors floating from a flag-staff on the bank in front of the building was the only mark of its rank. During his entire term of office Governor Ramsey kept the executive office in his private residence, and the supreme court met in rented chambers here and there.

Sept. 3, 1849, the first session of the legislature assembled at the above temporary capitol. Governor Ramsey delivered his message to the two houses, in joint convention assembled, in the hotel dining-room. The whole fitting of the assembly rooms was of the plainest description.

Considerable discussion ensued during the session on the subject as to whether the Territory had a right to expend the $20,000 appropriated in the organic act for a capitol building. The question having been submitted to Hon. W. M. Meredith, secretary of the treasury, he replied that the "department can not doubt that the public buildings in question can only be erected at the permanent seat of government, located as described. Of course, the reply to your inquiry must be, that nothing can be expended from this appropriation until after the location shall be duly made."

So the permanent location was not definitely settled this session, however, but at the close of the legislature it was a drawn battle, St. Paul remained the temporary seat of government, and the governor was authorized to rent buildings to carry on the public business meantime. Ex-Governor Marshall, in his address before the old settlers of Hennepin county, Feb. 22, 1871, says, regarding the contest for the seat of government:

"The organic act made St. Paul the temporary capital, but provided that the legislature might determine the permanent capital. A bill was introduced by the St. Paul delegation to fix the permanent capital there. I opposed it, *endeavoring to have St. Anthony made the seat of government. We succeeded in defeating the bill which sought to make St. Paul the permanent capital, but we could not get through the bill fixing it at St. Anthony. So the question remained open in regard to a permanent capital until the next session, in 1851, when a compromise was effected, by which the capital was to be at St. Paul, the state university at St. Anthony, and the penitentiary at Stillwater."

The second session assembled Jan. 2, 1851, in a brick building, since burned, which occupied the site of the Third street front of the Metropolitan Hotel. At this session, the seat of government was fixed at St. Paul as above noted. D. F. Brawley, Jonathan McKusick, Louis Robert and E. A. C. Hatch were elected building commissioners. Charles Bazille, a pioneer resident and large property owner of St. Paul, donated to the government the block of ground since known as "Capitol square," and plans, drawn by N. C. Prentiss, were adopted. The contract was let to Joseph Daniels for $33,000, but the building finally cost over $40,000. It was commenced at once, but not completed until the summer of 1853. The third and fourth sessions of the legislature were compelled, therefore, to meet in rented buildings. That of 1852 assembled in "Goodrich block" on Third street below Jackson, and that of 1853, in a two-story brick row, on Third street, near corner of Minnesota street.

On July 21, 1853, the governor (W. A. Gorman) first occupied the executive chamber of the new capitol. The original building was in the form of a T, and so many were the alterations and repairs, that but little of it, except the walls, remained when it was burned in 1881. For some years it amply accommodated all the State business, and its interior furnishing and equipments were as plain as the exterior. Up to 1866, when gas was put in, the legislative halls were lighted during night sessions with candles, and up to 1871 the building was heated with wood stoves, and all the water used in it was supplied by carts. That year the steam-heating apparatus and water supply were ordered by the legislature, and the building "began to have some of the comforts of civilized life," as a witty member expressed it in one of his speeches; but it had meantime grown too limited for the rapidly extending business of a state which had increased in population eight-fold since the building was erected. After the increased representation commencing in 1872, more room was imperative. Next session, the wing fronting on Exchange street was ordered, costing $8,000, while the changes in the assembly rooms, roof, cupola, etc., cost $6,000 more. This gave relief for several years; but at every session of the legislature the members of the house suffered from the crowded condition of their hall, bad air, etc., so much, that a larger hall was absolutely demanded. The session of 1878, therefore, ordered the erection of a new wing fronting on Wabasha street, capable of accommodating the House of Representatives properly, and giving more space to other departments. That wing was completed in December, 1878, at a cost of $14,000, and for over two years was used. The representatives' hall was 96x48 feet in the clear. The building, with these additions, was not of very symmetrical shape, but was commodious and comfortable, having an extreme length of 204 feet and a width of 150, and contained about fifty apartments. Its total cost, from first to last, was $108,000.

At 9 o'clock in the evening of March 1, 1881, while both houses of the legislature were in session, and all the halls and apartments crowded with visitors, the dome of the building was found to be on fire. The flames spread with too great rapidity to be checked, and all that could be done was to save the contents of the building. The most valuable records and papers of various offices, and of the legislature, with some of the furniture, were carried out, but the greater part of the contents of the building, including the valuable law library, the supply of State laws, documents and reports, and all the stationery in the secretary of state's store-rooms, etc., were a total loss. The Historical Society's library was mostly saved. The entire loss to the State was fully $200,000.

Fortunately the city of St. Paul had just completed a fine and spacious market house, which was still unoccupied, and its use was at once tendered to the State by the city authorities, and, while the flames were still ascending, the furniture and effects saved from the old capitol were removed thither. At 9 o'clock next morning the State departments and both houses of the legislature were again at work in their new quarters. But two days of the session yet remained. Gov. Pillsbury immediately secured estimates for rebuilding the burned edifice, using the old walls, and an act appropriating $75,000 for that purpose was passed. Work was commenced at once. It was then found that the old walls were too unsafe to use, and at the extra session in September, 1881, also held in the market house, the further sum of $100,000 was appropriated for the completion of the building. Its total cost was about $275,000.

By the assembling of the legislature of 1883, the new building was completed sufficiently to use. It is in the form of a Greek cross, three stories in height, with a high basement. The latter is built of cut stone, and the superstructure of red brick with Dresbach stone trimmings. The roof is slate. The boilers for supplying the steam heat are in a building detached from the main edifice. The form of the building naturally furnishes good light to the offices, but no modern methods of ventilation have been used. Halls lead to every portion of the building. In the center of the main hall, on the first floor, a glass cabinet has been erected, in which are displayed the battle flags of the State, including the flags captured by Minnesota troops in the civil war. The dome of the building is 200 feet above the ground, giving a noble view to the visitor who ascends it. The exterior of the edifice is neat and tasty, considering its comparative small cost.

THE NEW CAPITOL.

The legislature of 1893 passed an act to provide for the appointment of seven suitable persons, one from each congressional district in the State, to act and be known as the "Board of State Capitol Commissioners," whose duty should be to secure the erection of a new state capitol, according to the provisions of the law. The governor appointed the following, who were confirmed by the Senate, duly qualified, and have since been acting as the said board, viz:

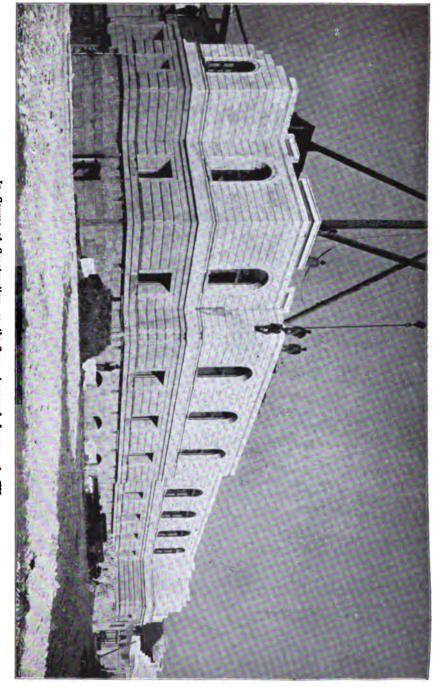

H. W. Lamberton of Winona, from the First congressional district. James McHench of Fairmont, from the Second congressional district. George A. Du Toit of Chaska, from the Third congressional district. Channing Seabury of St. Paul, from the Fourth congressional district. John De Laittre of Minneapolis, from the Fifth congressional district. Charles H. Graves of Duluth, from the Sixth congressional district. E. E. Corliss of Fergus Falls, from the Seventh congressional district.

Mr. McHench died April 27, 1895, and Daniel Shell of Worthington was appointed September 3, 1895, in his stead. The latter served until January 16, 1896, when he resigned, and Ed Weaver of Mankato was appointed.

By the terms of this act the governor is made a non-voting member of the board, and a total appropriation of $2,000,000 was made, to be provided by a tax levy of two-tenths of a mill upon the assessed valuation of the State each year, not exceeding ten years, commencing in 1895.

The board met and organized May 13, 1893, and have since been diligently engaged in the prosecution of their duties. They have purchased a commanding site for the new building, payable out of the appropriation available during 1895, 1896, 1897 and 1898, at a total cost, including a lot for boiler house, in an adjoining block, of $228,825. It is situated at the head of Wabasha street, in St. Paul, about four blocks from the site of the present capitol. The new site is bounded by University avenue on the north, Park avenue on the west, Wabasha street and Central avenue on the south, and Cedar street on the east, and contains about 335,750 square feet, or 7 8-10 acres. It is on a commanding elevation, is easy of approach, and fronts upon one of the principal thoroughfares, being upon the direct line of travel between St. Paul and Minneapolis.

October 30, 1895, Cass Gilbert of St. Paul was appointed architect of the new capitol, and a design for the same, submitted by him, was adopted, of which a reproduction is shown herein. The board proceeded with the construction of the new building as rapidly as the funds available would allow, and the stonework of the basement story and the foundation walls and piers and area walls were built during the year 1896 by Geo. J. Grant, and the steel girders for the basement floors were put in place the same year by the Universal Construction Company. The legislature of 1897 passed an act authorizing the Board of State Capitol Commissioners to issue certificates of indebtedness, at not to exceed four per cent interest per annum, payable out of the funds appropriated by the act of 1893, in equal installments, during the years 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903 and 1904. During the years 1897 and 1898 $350,000 of such certificates were issued and sold at a premium reducing the net rate of interest to about three and one-third per cent, and the board was thus enabled to proceed with the work and let further contracts.

During the year of 1897 the concreting of the sub-basement floor and the drainage and the system for the same was completed by Messrs. Lauer Bros. & Miller. August 31, 1897, the contract for the general construction, which includes erection of the main walls, the roof, the interior cross walls and vaults, the steel floor beams, and the dome pieces (but not the dome itself) was awarded to the Butler-Ryan Company of St. Paul, the facings of the basement exterior walls to be of St. Cloud granite, the remaining facings of the exterior walls of Georgia marble, the interior walls, the vaults and the backing of exterior walls of best hard-burned Minnesota brick, and the dome pieces of Kettle River (Minnesota) sandstone.

The work of construction has gone forward rapidly during the building season of 1898, and the contractors have fully demonstrated their ability to complete their contract within the time agreed upon (July 1, 1900). The brick walls and vaults are all laid in domestic cement, the quality of which is constantly tested, and the exterior facings are laid in the best known quality of imported non-staining cement. The basement walls (in granite, from the quarries of Wm. C. Baxter, near St. Cloud,) are completed, and the first story (in marble) has also been erected, with exception of the four entrances. The cross walls, vaults and dome piers have likewise been carried up to the second story floor line.

July 27, 1898, the corner stone of the new capitol was laid, with imposing ceremonies and in the presence of many thousands of our citizens, by Hon. Alexander Ramsey, the first territorial governor of Minnesota. It was an unusually fitting and pleasant circumstance that the man who has watched the growth of our State for fifty years, from a paltry handful of frontier settlers to its present proud rank in the sisterhood of states, should still be with us, in the full possession of all his faculties, and able to round up his long history of service to our people by the performance of this ceremony. In loving testimony of his services to Minnesota, a beautiful silver trowel was presented to him by his fellow citizens on that occasion, and this was used by him in spreading the mortar under the corner stone.

Senator Cushman K. Davis delivered a powerful oration. Hon. C. H. Graves of Duluth made an address in behalf of the Board of State Capitol Commissioners. The prayer was made by Right Rev. Archbishop John Ireland.

After Gov. D. M. Clough had announced the corner stone properly set, the benediction was pronounced by Bishop M. H. Gilbert.

A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF BUILDING.

The general plan of building is an oblong, with a wing in the center of the north side.

The dimensions are as follows:

	Feet.
Length over all, not including entrance steps	433
Average width of main portion	120
Width, through central portion, not including steps	228
Height to top of ball on dome from base of steps on south front
elevation	220
Average height of cutside walls from grade of terrace	69
Average depth of outside walls from grade of terrace to bottom

The basement, which is at the level of the grade, and has convenient entrances on each facade, in addition to the carriage entrance under steps on south facade, will contain the rooms of the State Historical Society, occupying the entire east wing. In this floor will also be located the offices of the Board of Health, the Dairy Commissioner, etc. The elevators, two on either side of the main entrance, start from this floor and run to the roof of the building.

The first floor has entrances in the center of each facade, opening into the large vestibules and corridors leading to the rotunda, which is centered on the main axes of the building. This story is occupied by the administrative offices, and the most important of these, so far as practicable, have been placed on the south side, and so grouped as to best accommodate the business of the State officers.

On the second floor are placed the Senate, a domed room fifty-five feet square, in the center of the west wing, and the supreme court room, with domed and vaulted ceiling, somewhat smaller than the Senate, and cruciform in plan, in the center of the east wing.

The House of Representatives will occupy a semicircular room in the north wing, the ceiling of this room being domed and penetrated by arches opening into the galleries at the third floor level. These three rooms are lighted from above by great skylights, designed to conform to the domed ceiling, this being the most approved method of lighting rooms of this character.

The retiring rooms, postoffice, principal committee rooms, judges' rooms, clerk of the supreme court, consultation room, the working part of the law library, and librarian's room are also located on this floor. The east end of the building used for the supreme court, library and judges' rooms.

The third floor contains additional committee rooms, meeting room for the State boards, and main part of law library, which has direct connection with library, and with judges' rooms on the second floor. The galleries for the Senate and House of Representatives are also in this story, and are supplied with special stairways.

Each floor is amply provided with general and special toilet rooms and lavatories, janitors' closets, etc.

The building is designed in the renaissance style of architecture, as the perspective view shows, in a manner that expresses the dignity of its purpose, and the exterior is a true expression of the internal arrangements of the plan, the basement and first story having a simple rustication, form a base for the great order, of Corinthian proportions, comprising the second and third or legislative stories. The terrace walls, balustrades and general features of the approaches are designed to harmonize with the building, and will aid in the general composition, and, in fact, one regarded as essential to form a suitable setting for the great structure.

At the foot of the main entrance there are four pedestals, to be surmounted by couchant lions, of heroic scale. On the west side of the main south entrance is a group symbolizing labor, and on the opposite side of this entrance, toward the supreme court, a group symbolizing law.

On the pedestals above the main cornice line, over this entrance, are placed the quadriga in the center, and on either side appropriate groups of heroic scale. Over entrance to supreme court wing are seated figures of Moses and Justinian, symbolic of ancient and modern law; and over Senate end are figures symbolizing probity and wisdom.

The design of the interior will be in harmony with the style of architecture on the exterior, and it is believed that a fine effect will be obtained in the rotunda and grand stairways, which rise on either side with gentle ascent, and are inclosed in marble colonnades of monumental proportions, supporting marble entablatures, from which spring the metal and glass vaulted skylights that will light that portion of the building to the basement floor. The walls of the corridors and rotunda will be faced with stone and marble, if the funds at the disposal of the Board of Capitol Commissioners will permit; otherwise they will be plastered and finished in a simple and inexpensive manner. The same may be said of the rotunda and corridor floors, which will be finished with stone flagging and marble if possible; otherwise of hardwood, using encaustic tile at the entrances. It is the intention to use local stones in such floors and the corridor wall facings in conjunction with marble wherever they can be arranged in harmony with the design, provided the funds are available. Several of the G. A. R. organizations have requested the privilege of having bronze tablets, recording historical events in which they took part, erected in the building, and space will be arranged for such tablets as may be suitable, provided they are in conformity to the general design and in harmony with their surroundings as approved by the Board of State Capitol Commissioners.

The Senate, the House of Representatives and supreme court, together with their lobbies, have been designed with special care and are of ample size.

In the question of special interior decorations, the architect, Mr. Gilbert, desires that the example of the Boston public library and the congressional library at Washington be followed, by employing artists of the first rank to do the mural painting in the great pendentives of the dome, and in other wall surfaces of the more important rooms.

Sufficient vault space is provided for each office, and the vaults will be equipped with metal shelving and special fittings and safety devices as may be needed for the business of the several departments.

Numerous ducts and chases in the walls and large flues and hot air chambers are provided for the heating and exhaust ventilation system, which is intended to be as complete as possible. The building will be fitted with thoroughly modern sanitary apparatus and have a complete mechanical equipment of the most modern character. Speaking tubes and local telephones will connect the principal departments, local dynamos providing electric light and power, rapid running elevators, and the most approved form of apparatus in each department will be provided.

THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

Article 5 of the State constitution provides that the executive department shall consist of a governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, and attorney general, who shall be chosen by the electors of the State.

OFFICERS FOR 1899.

Governor—John Lind, Brown county.

Lieutenant Governor—Lyndon A. Smith, Chippewa county.

Secretary of State—Albert Berg, Chisago county.

Auditor—Robert C. Dunn, Mille Lacs county.

Treasurer—August T. Koerner, Meeker county.

Attorney General—Wallace B. Douglas, Clay county.

The constitution of the State provides that these officers shall be elected for two years, except the state auditor, whose term of office is for four years. The duties of the governor are so well-known that it is not necessary to recapitulate them in this work. His office assistants are a private secretary, executive clerk, executive stenographer and executive messenger. Connected with the executive office is the appointment of notaries public.

The lieutenant governor is ex officio president of the Senate, and has no other duties to perform, except in a protracted absence of the governor from the State he may be called to act, and in case of vacancy in the office he becomes governor during said vacancy.

The secretary of state is the recording officer of the State, and the official custodian of official papers. The duties of this officer are of the most voluminous character. All the private and public corporations of the State are recorded, and the official bonds of all county officers are filed in this office. He is the custodian of all the volumes of laws and journals and all the legislative records of whatever nature. The whole machinery of state elections, the preparation of registers and poll lists and blanks for returns of elections, the reception and opening of state election returns, and the final canvassing of votes, is carried forward in his office. The preparation of the volumes of law for publication is no inconsiderable part of his duty. The additional burdens upon the secretary are the purchase and disposition of all printing paper and stationery to the state printer and state officers, and the superintending of all printing, besides having the care and disposition of all printed executive documents of the State. For the general purposes of the office, the clerical force is an assistant secretary, who in addition to his duties as assistant is also commissioner of statistics; a chief clerk, one record clerk and an assistant clerk.

The state auditor has the charge really of two departments of the government, the auditing department and the land department. The auditing department is to keep a record of all public accounts, audit all claims presented, and issue warrants in payment. These accounts are not only those of the State departments, but include the pay rolls of State institutions. He has charge of the tax law and prescribes the tax blanks, prepares the abstracts of taxes for the state board of equalization, makes all the drafts for state taxes, and keeps an account of the same, and a multitudinous amount of other duties, and is required to make a detailed and exhaustive report of the affairs of his office to the legislature, and for the performance of these duties he has a deputy and six clerks.

In the land department, of which the auditor is chief, he has the assistance of four clerks specially detailed. The duties of this department are the care and sale of school, university, agricultural, college and swamp lands, and the sale of grass, cranberries and maple sugar; and the leasing of mineral lands; and the making out and record of all deeds and conveyances for the disposition of lands, besides keeping a classified account of all money transactions connected with these lands.

The treasurer is the receiving and disbursing officer of the State, and has the assistance of a deputy treasurer and three clerks to aid in the duties of the office. His duties are defined by law to keep an accurate account of the receipts and disbursements of the treasury, specifying the names of persons from whom received, to whom paid, on what account the same is received and paid out, and the time of such receipt and payment. And for all payments into the State treasury by county treasurers he issues two receipts, one to the treasurer and the other to the county auditor. There are many other duties relating to the finances of the State devolving upon this officer.

The attorney general is the legal adviser of all the departments of state, and counsel for the State or departments in all suits at law; prosecutes all official bonds of delinquent officers; prepares all forms of contracts; receives reports of criminal actions in all the counties of the State from the county attorneys, and makes a biennial report to the legislature. The additional force in the office is an assistant attorney general, a clerk and stenographer.

THE MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Commander-in-Chief,

His Excellency, JOHN LIND, Governor.

Brig. Gen. GEORGE C. LAMBERT, Adjutant General.

The active military forces of the State are officially known as the National Guard of the State of Minnesota. In time of peace, the National Guard is composed of three regiments of infantry and one battalion of artillery formed into one brigade under the command of a brigadier general, and one medical corps under the direction of the surgeon general. The commander-in-chief is authorized to increase this force in time of war, and under this power a fourth regiment of infantry has been organized. The volunteers furnished by Minnesota during the war with Spain were chiefly recruited from the ranks of the National Guard.

The adjutant general is the executive officer of the department and the custodian of all records relating to the National Guard or to the Civil war. Under the commander-in-chief, he has general supervision and control of the military forces of the State and of all military property.

It is also the duty of the adjutant general to act as claim agent, without pay or compensation, for all persons having claims against the government of the United States for pensions, bounty or back pay, arising out of the Civil war. The applications of widows, children and dependent ones, and the applications for increase naturally following old age, have largely taken the place of original applications for pensions. The demand for evidence in old as well as in new cases and the requests for information and copies of the records or of discharges, together with the growing number of applications for pensions by soldiers of the Spanish war, occupies all the clerical force of the office.

The military storekeeper is the armorer and ordnance officer of the State, and keeps in order the arms and other public property necessarily connected with the ordnance department

THE JUDICIARY DEPARTMENT.

THE SUPREME COURT.

The constitution provides that the judicial power shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, courts of probate, justices of the peace, and such other courts inferior to the supreme court as the legislature may from time to time establish. This latter prerogative the legislature has exercised in the establishment of municipal courts in the larger cities of the State.

The supreme court consists of one chief justice and four associate justices, elected by the people, and holding office for six years, and until successors are elected and qualified. Two terms of court are held in each year, commencing on the first Tuesdays of April and October, at the capitol, in St. Paul. This court has original jurisdiction in such remedial cases as may be prescribed by law, and appellate jurisdiction in all cases, both in law and equity.

The clerk of the supreme court is an elective officer, the term of office being four years. He may appoint a deputy.

The reporter of the supreme court is an officer appointed by the supreme court to prepare the adjudicated cases for publication in official volumes, entitled "Minnesota Reports," of which seventy volumes have been published. The reports are now accumulating at the rate of four volumes annually. The present law regarding their publication limits them to a special size, and was passed in territorial times, when one volume was large enough for the opinions of two years. A modification of the law would be of advantage to the State and to attorneys.

Originally the reporter owned the exclusive copyright, and the reports were printed and bound at his expense, the State buying of him 200 copies of each volume at six dollars a volume. In 1881 an act was passed providing that the reporter should have no pecuniary interest in the reports, but that they should be published by contract under his supervision, the publisher to agree to sell the volumes at two dollars a volume and the State to agree to buy 200 copics at that price. By this act the copyright of the volumes already published was to vest in the secretary of state for the benefit of the people of the State, but the publisher was permitted to continue the publication and sale of such volumes so long as he complied with the requirements of the act as to character and price of volumes. The publisher at that time was the West Publishing Company. In 1897 an act was passed authorizing the secretary of state to enter into a contract with F. P. Duíresne for the publication of the reports at the price of one dollar fifty cents a volume. Such a contract was entered into, and the State now buys 425 copies of each volume at the price last named. Under the contract thus authorized he has published volumes 68, 69 and 70.

The secretary of state is charged with the distribution of the volumes, one copy to each of the several departments of state, to each judge of the supreme court, and of the several district and probate courts, and to the clerk of each district court, while the University of Minnesota receives 100 copies for the law department, and the state library receives a sufficient number for exchanges with other states and for the use of the library. The remaining copies stay in the custody of the secretary of state for future distribution by law.

THE LOWER COURTS.

The district courts are created by the legislature, the State being divided into eighteen judicial districts, with one or more judges in a district, as the exigencies of business may require, and the judges are elected for six years. The district courts have original jurisdiction in all civil cases, both in law and equity, where the amount exceeds $100, or the punishment shall exceed three months' imprisonment or a fine of more than $100. Also, in criminal cases where presentments are made by grand juries.

The municipal courts generally have the power of disposing of all criminal cases for infraction of city laws, and for hearing and committing for trial on arrests for violation of state laws. Chap. 146, G. L. 1891, "An act relating to villages of over 3,000 inhabitants, and providing for municipal courts therein." By the provisions of this act a municipal court has jurisdiction in civil actions where amount does not exceed $500; also, in all cases where a justice court has jurisdiction, and over certain criminal actions. Its jurisdiction is co-extensive with the limits of the county where located.

The probate courts are created by authority of the constitution, one for each county, and the judges to be elected by the people, for two years. The courts are now governed by a code adopted by the legislature in 1889. The probate court has jurisdiction over the estates of deceased persons and persons under guardianship, and the examination and commitment of insane persons to the asylums. The salaries to probate judges are fixed by special law, or in lieu thereof a salary of $100 for the first 1,000 inhabitants and $50 for each additional 1,000 inhabitants, limiting the compensation, where by reason of population the sum would be larger, to $4,000 per annum.

THE STATE SCHOOL SYSTEMS.

The following scheme shows the elements of the school systems of the State:

DISTRICTS. { Common.... Independent Special..... } Schools graded and ungraded.

STATE RURAL SCHOOLS.

STATE GRADED SCHOOLS.

STATE HIGH SCHOOLS.

NORMAL SCHOOLS.

UNIVERSITY.

A common school district is controlled by a board of three members; independent by one of six members; a special by a board of six or more members.

Common schools are supervised by a county superintendent; independent and special districts have their own superintendents, and in the main are not subject to the county superintendents.

The state high schools and state graded schools are subject to a board of three members acting ex officio; namely, the governor of the State, the superintendent of public instruction, and the president of the university.

The normal schools are at present controlled by a board of nine members. Four of these are resident directors, four are appointed for the State at large, and one, the superintendent of public instruction, is an ex officio member.

The university is controlled by a board of regents, now composed of three ex officio members and nine appointed by the governor. The three ex officio are the same officers mentioned above as constituting the high school board.

At date there are 6,415 common schools, 151 independent, 25 special and 97 state high and 110 state graded schools.

The following figures are taken from the report of the state superintendent of schools for the biennial period ending July 31, 1898:

State aid to the amount of $400 annually is given to each state high school, $200 to each state graded school, and $50 to each rural school maintaining a high grade. There are many high and graded schools besides those under the supervision of the high school board.

There are now four normal schools, located as elsewhere shown in this manual. They enrolled 3,052 pupils in the year ending July 31, 1898.

The university now has the following colleges and departments: Science, literature and arts; metallurgy and mechanic arts; agriculture, law, medicine and surgery; medicine and surgery (homeopathic); dentistry; pharmacy, and graduate department.

In 1898 there were 2,890 pupils enrolled.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA.

The University of Minnesota is at Minneapolis, established by the constitution of the State and endowed by the general government, being a part of the state system of public instruction. It is open to both sexes, and tuition is absolutely free except to the professional departments.

DEPARTMENTS AND COURSES OF STUDY.

The university is divided into seven distinct departments: A College of Science, Literature and Arts, a College of Mechanic Arts, a School of Mines, a College of Agriculture, a College of Law, and a Department of Medicine, the latter consisting of four separate colleges, and Graduate Department.

In the College of Science, Literature and the Arts there are three courses of study, the Classical, Scientific and Literary. The Classical course offers for its leading studies the Greek and Latin languages; the Scientific course, the natural and physical sciences; the Literary course, the modern languages; the Civic course, history and philosophy. The regular courses are of four years' duration. The completion of the courses lead respectively to the degrees, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Literature, and Bachelor of Philosophy.

The College of Engineering and the Mechanic Arts offers courses of study of four years each, in Civil, Mechanical, Electrical Engineering, leading to the degrees of Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineer.

The School of Mines offers a four years' course in mining and metallurgy; upon completion of the course the degree of Engineer of Mines is conferred.

The College of Agriculture offers a regular course in agriculture of four years of college work; the degree of Bachelor of Agriculture is conferred upon completion of the course.

The School of Agriculture is a training school for practical farm life, and for the College of Agriculture, if the student desires to pursue the subject further.

The College of Law offers a three years' course of instruction, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws. There is in addition an evening course (of three years) in this college, leading to the same degree. Graduate work is offered in this college, leading to the degree of Master of Laws and Doctor of Civil Laws.

The College of Medicine and Surgery and the College of Homeopathic Medicine and Surgery each offer a four years' course of study, of eight months each; upon completion of the prescribed course the degree of Doctor of Medicine is conferred.

The College of Dentistry offers a three years' course of study, of eight months each; upon completion of the prescribed course the degree of Doctor of Dental Medicine is conferred.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Obscreatory.

The College of Pharmacy offers a two years' course of study, leading to the degree of Pharmaceutical Chemistry; also graduate work, leading to the degrees of Master of Pharmacy and Doctor of Pharmacy.

The Graduate Department. In each of the colleges, except that of medicine, there are advanced courses of study, leading to second degrees. These courses are open to graduates of any reputable college upon presentation of diploma.

Special Courses. In each of the colleges students of an advanced age are permitted to pursue, under the direction of the faculty, one or two distinct lines of study.

During the years 1896-97 and 1897-98 the university has been in a prosperous condition; all the colleges have made progress in the extent and methods of work, and nearly all have had more students than ever before. In a few of the departments it has been difficult to meet the wants of the students, on account of the overcrowding of laboratories, but the best has been done under the circumstances, and the readiness of professors and instructors to adapt themselves to the situation and to make any reasonable sacrifice of convenience in order to accommodate the students has been very helpful. As a result it is believed that the work of instruction has not suffered materially in any department, though in one, at least, it has been carried forward with undesirable difficulties.

The number of students enrolled in the year 1896-97 was 2,467; in 1897-98, 2,890. This is an increase in the two years of 423. The increase of the two preceding years was 639. The wise regulations governing the admission of "unclassed students," and demanding on their part as much preparation as is required of the regular students, and the reduction in the number of conditions allowed, have tended to diminish the number of applicants as well as of admissions, and the result has been very wholesome. Very few students can now be found in the university who have not come here with serious purpose of study, and the standard of scholarship in the institution, both theoretical and natural, has in consequence been raised. In all departments at the present time the number of students who, by reason either of lack of ability or lack of industry, require the special discipline of the faculty as an incitement to better work is smaller than it has been before in recent years.

The faculty has been strengthened by a number of additions, and I think it has not been weakened by any of the changes which have occurred. The courses of study have been increased, and in most of the departments it is possible now for students to pursue a much wider range of investigation than ever before.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT, UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA.

Since the university established the State Agricultural Experiment Station in the spring of 1888 and the School of Agriculture in the fall of the same year, agricultural education in Minnesota has made rapid strides. The most apparent and gratifying results have come from the School of Agriculture. The importance of agriculture in Minnesota demands not only that the discoveries of science shall be made known and applied to its needs, but demands also that young men with ability and energy may be trained to assume the duty of improving and increasing the agricultural wealth and possibilities of the State. It is gratifying to note the increasing number of young men who seek this education and with intelligent enthusiasm return to their farm homes. The college course in agriculture was reorganized in 1800 to be a thorough collegiate course—post-graduate to students in the School of Agriculture, which in grade is an agricultural high school. In 1892 a dairy school was organized to give instruction to factory makers of butter and cheese and to others wanting a course of lectures and practice work in dairy manufacturing. This school has met with very great success.

In October, 1897, young women were admitted into the regular course of study in the School of Agriculture. In the sciences their class-room work is with the young men, but instead of the special work of carpentry, blacksmithing, field work and athletics given to the young men, the young women have sewing, cooking, laundering and physical culture. They also have instruction in home management, home economy, social culture, household art and domestic hygiene. The enrollment for the second year is about sixty, and mostly young women from farm homes. It is believed that the work being done for the farm home in the School of Agriculture is very advanced, and that its results will be direct and helpful. The building devoted to the use of the young women is very attractive, and is itself an object lesson showing that good taste rather than money is needed to embellish the home. The social life of the school is under close supervision and is intended to develop the social nature, thereby supplementing what is done in the class room for the physical and mental natures. The trend of the instruction given in the school is to show the reason for the doing and thereby remove from farm and household work the element of drudgery.

THE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE.

The College of Agriculture has grown in the number of its students beyond expectation. Thirty courses of study are now offered by the faculty at the farm, of which twelve must be selected by the students. A demand is arising for graduate work in special subjects, and the professors are ready to meet this demand. Some of the graduates are filling responsible positions in this and in other states. It is now generally recognized that the course in agriculture is as scientific and as valuable as are the courses offered without special relation to agriculture. The seven years' work required in the two courses well equips the students for professional lines of work in agriculture and does not disqualify them for farmers. The two courses are not surpassed in their thoroughness nor extent by any course offered in any agricultural college in America.

The School of Agriculture prepares farmers' sons and daughters for practical, scientific and economical farming and home economics. The instruction is confined to strictly practical and applicable lines. Students who are prepared for high school by the completion of their studies in rural district schools can complete the course in the School of Agriculture in three winters of six months each. The curriculum includes in the first year accounts, agriculture, algebra, blacksmithing, botany, carpentry, drawing, study of breeds, military drill, physiology, music, language, sewing, cooking, social culture, home management and physical culture. In the second year, agricultural chemistry, algebra, breeding animals, dairy chemistry, dairy husbandry, field crops, fruit growing, military drill, poultry, physics, vegetable gardening, zoology, entomology, cooking, household art, sewing, home economy and physical culture. In the third year, agricultural chemistry, civics, dressing and curing meats, feeding, forestry, geometry, handling grain and machinery, plant propagation, soils and fertilizers, veterinary science, cooking, sewing, domestic chemistry and domestic hygiene.

Chemistry is studied with special reference to the analysis of soils, water, fertilizers, plant food and food products; physics to heat, light, drainage, evaporation, capillarity, osmosis and mechanics; botany is given practical application to agriculture and horticulture; physiology to animal industry; carpentry and drawing are studied and practiced in reference to repair work, the construction of implements and the erection of farm buildings; blacksmithing to welding, shaping, tempering, drilling and ordinary repair work; zoology and entomology to the proper knowledge and treatment of insects and small animals, both friends and foes; dairy husbandry to testing and analyzing milk, separating and ripening cream, churning, washing, salting. working, packing and scoring butter, and the manufacture of both common and fancy brands of cheese; animal industry deals with selecting, breeding and feeding domestic animals; agriculture with cultivation of soils, seed selection, planting, cultivating, harvesting, storing grain, fodders and roots; horticulture to the choice of varieties of fruits and vegetables and methods of propagation and cultivation; accounts treat of the double entry form of ledger and balance sheets, showing losses and gains in different lines of farming; veterinary science with treatment of ordinary diseases and injuries and remedies against contagious or infectious diseases; dressing and curing meats of the most economical ways of cutting, curing and disposing of meats; poultry of raising and keeping poultry for meat and eggs.

A very thorough and practical course of instruction has been added since the school has been made co-educational. The course in cooking extends through four terms. It takes in kitchen management, care of utensils, cooking vegetables, cereals, breads, canning, pickling, soups, meats, marketing, equipment, rations, bills of fare, invalid cooking, desserts, food economics; that in sewing includes plain sewing, mending, cutting and making plain garments, and finally dressmaking, cutting, fitting and designing, extending through four terms. In domestic chemistry instruction is given in chemistry and economy of human foods and the detection of adulteration. Home economy treats of household finances, home management of the social, intelligent and moral side of home life. Household art teaches the power of bringing beauty and harmony from the inexpensive and common surroundings. Hygiene considers the health of the individual and the family. In laundering instruction is given in washing, ironing, starching, polishing, cleaning and pressing clothing. Physical culture takes the place of military drill. Social culture seeks to develop ease and tact.

Success of the school has exceeded all expectations. It started in 1888-80 with an attendance of forty-seven, which has increased each successive year, and at the present we have now in all the departments of agriculture four hundred and thirteen students. The number of graduates is one hundred and eighty-six. A class of thirty-four will graduate the coming spring. A number of the graduates of the School of Agriculture have also graduated from the four-year agricultural college course in the university. Three of these graduates have been entrusted with responsible positions as superintendents of subexperiment farms in different portions of the State—T. A. Hoverstad, superintendent of the Northwest Experiment Farm at Crookston; Herman H. Chapman, of the Northeast Experiment Farm at Grand Rapids, and Wm. G. Smith, of the Coteau Farm, in Lyon county. There are twenty-three graduates of the School of Agriculture who are now taking the agricultural college course in the university.

Nearly all the graduates of the School of Agriculture are engaged at the present time in farming. From the encouraging reports received of the success of these scientifically trained young farmers, there is good reason to hope for great improvement in the methods and conditions of the farmers as the result of the School of Agriculture.

The Dairy School is designed to furnish special instruction to persons who are engaged in the manufacture of butter or cheese on the factory plan. Special attention is given to the demands of the domestic and foreign markets; the economical production of milk; the chemistry of milk; factory accounts; care and management of meadows; creamery work, including the care of milk, creaming, ripening cream, churning and packing for market; pasteurizing milk; bacteria in the dairy; care and management of engines, boilers and other machinery; construction of silos, barns and other dairy buildings; and the diseases common to the dairy cow and their treatment. Daily practice work and training are given in operating creamery and cheese factory, scoring dairy products, making butter and cheese of various popular brands, such as cheddar, Swiss, brick, Gouda and Edam; and laboratory practice in testing milk, cream and whey.

The Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station is a part of the departs ment of agriculture of the University of Minnesota, and was organized in 1888. During the eleven years of its existence many valuable experiments have been conducted, and fifty-nine bulletins have been issued; thirteen have been published during the last two years, twenty thousand copies of each issue (excepting 53 and 55, the former seventeen thousand, the latter fourteen thousand), making over nineteen million two hundred thousand pages, giving the results of investigations and observations made by the station staff.

The experiment station has made great progress since the last biennial report, and is recognized as a most useful institution. Our farmers have learned to look to it for advice on many subjects of vital interest. The station makes new varieties of wheat, corn and of other crops, which yield better than those heretofore used. The increased yield per acre of wheat, as our experiments are showing, means a great deal to our farmers.

Our agricultural department teaches how to increase the profits of the farm by a proper rotation of crops. It has done much valuable work in the growing of sugar beets, how to plant, cultivate, and cost of cultivation.

The entomologist is engaged in different lines of work. Like all members of the station staff, he instructs during the winter classes in the college and school of agriculture. He also aids in the control of plant diseases and

The line of work which has been most productive of good results in the division of horticulture and forestry has been in connection with the experiments and studies made in the growing of apples in Minnesota and in the introduction of hardy timber and ornamental trees and shrubs.

In the division of agricultural chemistry the main features of the work have been soils and human food investigations. Particular attention is being paid to the question of soil fertility and the various natural ways by which the fertility may be maintained. In human food work the actual values of our common food products are considered and numerous digestion experiments made to determine the amount of work capable of being performed by different foods.

In the division of dairy husbandry, the first series of the work of the cost of production has been completed so far as it has reference to the commercial aspect, but further investigation is needed for a better understanding of animal nutrition. To this end experiments are being continued in the line of food maintenance for the dairy cow and the nutriments available in the different kinds of grain and forage at different stages of growth. A series of experiments in breeding dairy stock, with a view of establishing a uniformity of type and adaptability for economical dairy work, has been in progress, and promises gratifying results.

In the division of animal husbandry experiments have been conducted on growing and fattening cattle, sheep and swine, and in growing pastures other than grass for sheep in summer and fodders other than grass to provide food for winter. Other important experiments have been instituted, notably an extensive one relating to the growing of bacon from various breeds and grades of swine.

The veterinarian has paid his special attention to hog cholera, which has been the most serious disease among the farm stock. The presence of this disease has been continuously diminishing the past two years, and it is believed that much good has been accomplished. The work in bovine tuberculosis has been continued, and a bulletin (51) of seventy-four pages, "Bovine Tuberculosis," has been issued. This bulletin was given a flattering reception by the veterinary profession and medical journals of America.

The substations established by an act of the legislature in 1895 are beginning to be useful, and the farmers in the respective portions of the State are taking a great interest in the experiments and work done.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS.

The normal school system of the State was inaugurated by the legislature of 1858, making provision for the organization of three schools, upon donations from localities desiring the schools of five thousand dollars from each locality. Under this law schools were established at Winona, Mankato and St. Cloud; and in 1885 a fourth school was located at Moorhead, conditioned upon a donation of an appropriate site therefor.

The total enrollment in normal classes for 1898 was 1,825. Fully fifty per cent of this number were children of farmers and two-thirds of the remainder were children of mechanics and laborers.

The normal schools stand in relations of closest contact and sympathy with the rural schools. The majority of the students enter direct from the rural schools and a large proportion support themselves by alternately teaching in the rural schools and attending the normal schools as means and circumstances permit. Thus they bring from their experience as actual teachers a devotion and zeal for professional studies which few other students possess, and in turn carry back to their teaching in rural schools a better preparation, newer methods, higher ideals and greater skill in their chosen work.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL AT WINONA.

This school was opened in September, 1860, with John Ogden as principal, in a building furnished free of cost by the city. The appropriation for that year was $1,500. The school was full, and continued a year and a half; but, the war coming on, it was closed, and its principal went into the army.

In 1864 the legislature appropriated $3,000 for the current expenses of that year, and $5,000 for 1865; and the same sum annually thereafter.

In November, 1864, the school was reopened in the building at first furnished by the city, W. F. Phelps being its able and efficient principal. The building was very unsuitable for a school constantly growing in popularity and increasing in numbers, and work on the state edifice was commenced, and finally so far completed that the school was removed into it in September, 1869. It was finished in 1870.

Professor Phelps resigned in 1876, and was succeeded by Charles A. Morey, who served until 1879, when he resigned to enter upon the practice of the law. Under his administration the course of study was very much advanced and the professional course for graduates of high schools inaugurated. In June of the same year Prof. Irwin Shepard began his long and successful career as executive head of the institution. His term of service, which was coincident with the latter half of the school's history, closed on the acceptance of his resignation October 1, 1898. The entire period of Dr. Shepard's administration was marked by steady numerical growth, by inauguration and development of many important educational enterprises, and by a general elevation of the academic and professional standards of the school. Jesse F. Millspaugh assumed the presidency January 1, 1899.

PLAN OF THE SCHOOL.

The school is organized into two departments: First, the normal department or place of academic and professional instruction; second, the training department or place of application and practice. The latter comprises five model schools, whose courses of study correspond to those of a well ordered graded school. These model schools are under the charge of skillful critic teachers, who carefully direct the work of the pupil teachers belonging to the normal department.

There is, moreover, a kindergarten thoroughly equipped and conducted upon scientific principles. It serves to supplement fully the work of the training department proper by furnishing ample opportunities for the study of the earliest phases of primary instruction.

The normal department embraces the following courses of study:

- (a) An Elementary Course of Three Years, designed to fit teachers for work in common and lower grade schools.
- (b) An Advanced Course of Five Years, which gives the preparation needed by teachers of higher grades.
- (c) A Professional Course of One or Two Years, for students who have already completed the required academic work of the above named courses.

In the last named course students devote nearly or quite their entire time to professional work and graduate in one or two years, receiving the diploma of the elementary or the advanced course, according to the extent of entrance preparation and the time spent in the school.

In 1897 the legislature made provision for holding continuous sessions at the school. Under this plan, which became operative in July, 1897, the academic year is divided into four quarters of twelve weeks each. Classes are so arranged that a student may enter at the beginning of any quarter and continue his work one or more quarters; then, if necessary, he may discontinue his course for one or more terms of teaching; after that he may again take up his work in the school at the point where the interruption occurred and pursue it to completion. Continuous sessions also make it possible, first, for teachers whose schools are discontinued through the summer months to avail themselves of the opportunities offered in the special vacation term of six weeks; and, second, for graduates of the elementary course under the same circumstances to complete the studies of the advanced course without loss of time from their school work.

The success of the innovation is highly satisfactory, and seems fully to have justified the hope of its promoters that it would result in greatly enlarging the usefulness of the school at small relative cost.

STATE APPROPRIATIONS FOR CURRENT EXPENSES.

The State donated $5,000 under the act of 1858. The first annual appropriation in 1860 was $1,500. The appropriation for current expenses was made permanent at $12,000 per annum in 1877. In 1885 it was increased to $18,000, with the provision that an institute conductor should be employed who, when not engaged in holding institutes under the direction of the superintendent of public instruction, should serve as instructor in the school. This sum was supplemented in 1889 by a deficiency appropriation of $1,000, and the annual appropriation was increased to the amount of $2,000; and in 1891 an additional appropriation of $2,000, in 1893, $2,000, and in 1895, $2,000; so that the present annual appropriations for current expenses amount to $26,000. In 1897 $8,000 per year for the maintenance of continuous sessions was appropriated for two years.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL AT MANKATO.

In 1866 the city of Mankato offered the State the donation specified in the act of 1858, and the legislature appropriated the sum of $5,000, as provided in that act.

The school was opened in the basement of the M. E. church, September 1, 1868, with Geo. M. Gage as principal. In October it was moved to the second story of a store, corner of Front and Main streets, but the state building was so nearly completed that the school began to occupy it in April, 1870—about one month before the first class was graduated. Mr. Gage resigned in June, 1872, and was succeeded by Miss J. A. Sears, who served as principal one year. D. C. John became principal in July, 1873, and faithfully and successfully served until the spring of 1880, when he resigned to become president of the Hamline University. In May of the same year, Prof. Edward Searing became his successor, and continued as its president with flattering success until his death, October 22, 1898. He was succeeded, January 1, 1899, by Prof. Chas. H. Cooper.

In the school there are six training courses:

An Advanced Latin Course of five years.

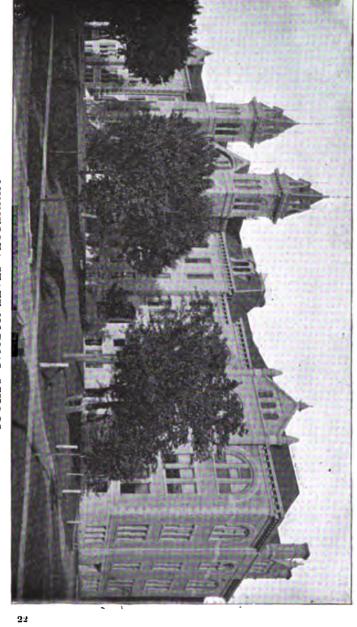

An Advanced English Course of five years.

An Elementary Course of three years.

An Advanced Course for high school graduates of one year.

An Elementary Course for high school graduates of two years.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.
MANKATO.

The large model department of about 350 pupils is maintained exclusively as a school of observation and practice for students in the normal department who are near the end of their respective courses.

The enrollment the past year in the normal department was 677, and in the practice department 503, making a total of 1,180.

Under the act of 1858 the State donated $5,000. The special annual appropriations for current expenses for the first eleven years were from $5,000, the smallest, to $10,000, the largest. The annual average was $7,363. In 1877 the appropriation for current expenses was made permanent at $9,000 per annum. In 1885 it was increased to $15,000, with the provision that an institute instructor should be employed by the school who should work in institutes during part of the year under the direction of the superintendent of public instruction. In 1887 an addition of $1,000 was made; in 1889, $2,000; in 1891, $4,000; in 1893, $2,000; in 1895, $2,000. In 1897 $3,000 was added to the regular appropriation, and $8,000 for the summer session, making the amount available for current expenses $37,000.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL AT ST. CLOUD.

After the legislature in 1866 offered the third normal school to St. Cloud, the citizens started a subscription, which in 1869 amounted to $5,000 in cash. The Stearns House, built for a hotel, was purchased, with six acres of land, for $3,000. The site is on the west bank of the Mississippi, seventy-five feet above the river; it is level and adorned with primitive oaks. The grounds are enlarged by the donation of one lot and the purchase of several, paid for by the citizens, adding to the value of the property about $350. The building was repaired and furnished at a cost of $3,281, and the school was opened in September, 1869, with Ira Moore as principal. The enrollment the first year was 125, and the appropriation for current expenses was $3,000. Mr. Moore resigned in 1875 and D. L. Kiehle was appointed to the principalship. In August, 1881, upon his appointment as superintendent of public instruction, Mr. Kiehle resigned, and the vacancy was filled by the appointment of Jerome Allen, who was succeeded, upon his resignation in 1884, by Thomas J. Gray, who closed his connection with the school in 1890. Joseph Carhart became president in 1890, and was succeeded in 1895 by Geo. R. Kleeberger, the present incumbent.

The new building was commenced in 1870, and occupied by the school the last term of Mr. Moore's work, in 1875. As regards arrangements for heating, ventilation and general convenience, it is not surpassed by any structure of the kind in the State. In 1891 there was appropriated the sum of $3,000 for repairs and $15,000 to construct a south wing to the original building; and the sum of $16,000 to complete and furnish this wing was provided by the legislature of 1893. In 1895 an additional appropriation of $25,000 was made, with which a north wing was erected, for the completion of which a further appropriation of $25,000 was made in 1897.

The total number graduated from the school up to 1898 is 864. The total enrollment in the normal department for the year ending July 31, 1898, was 405, which is more than the number the school can properly accommodate.

PLAN OF THE SCHOOL.

There are two departments in the school. First, the normal, or department for academic and professional instruction; second, the training department, or place of application and practice.

COURSES OF STUDY.

There are six courses of study:

- 1. An Advanced English Course, extending through five years.
- 2. An Advanced Latin Course, extending through five years.
- 3. An Advanced Course, for graduates of high schools and colleges, extending through two years.
- 4. An Elementary Course, for graduates of high schools and colleges, extending through one year.
 - 5. An Elementary Course, extending through three years.
 - 6. A Kindergarten Training Course, extending through two years.

The several courses recognize the necessity of a broad culture in the teacher, and accordingly extend the work over as large a field in science, literature and art as time and thoroughness of work will allow. It is the settled policy of the school to raise the standard of admission from year to year, until the time shall come in which all students can devote themselves wholly to professional work.

The elementary course amply qualifies teachers of primary and grammar grades; the advanced is designed to fit its graduates for the duties of high school grades, and for the superintendency of schools.

THE LADIES' HOME.

The ladies' home, finished during the early fall of 1885, is an invaluable adjunct to the school. A member of the faculty discharges the duties of preceptress, and it affords the best accommodations to young ladies attending the school.

STATE APPROPRIATION FOR CURRENT EXPENSES.

The first appropriation for 1869 was $3,000; the average for ten years was $6,000. The appropriation for current expenses was made permanent at $9,000 per annum in 1877. The permanent annual appropriation is now $22,000, which in 1897 was temporarily increased to $26,000, for the years ending July 31, 1898 and 1899.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL AT MOORHEAD.

The first three normal schools of Minnesota were located in the southeastern quarter of the State; hence the legislature of 1885 located a fourth normal school at Moorhead, provided that the citizens of the town would donate a suitable location for the building. The site, a beautiful tract of six acres, is the gift of Hon. S. G. Comstock.

The legislature of 1887 appropriated $60,000 for a building and $5,000 for running expenses. The building was commenced in the summer of 1887 and completed in the early autumn of 1888. It is one hundred and eighty feet in length by seventy feet in width, built of brick and stone, heated, ventilated and lighted by the most approved methods, and is the most commodious and handsome structure in the Northwest. The legislature of 1889 appropriated $9,500 additional for improving the grounds, and heating plant. A further appropriation of $3,000 was made in 1891 for repairs, furnishings and library. The appropriation of $25,000 in 1893 for a "home," and the erection of this building in 1894, have greatly increased the facilities of the school.

The school was opened August 29, 1888, with a membership of forty-two, of whom thirty-two were enrolled the second year. The total enrollment for 1898 was 378, of whom twenty-four were graduated at the close of the school year.

In addition to the original appropriation of $5,000 for running expenses, an additional appropriation in 1893 of $1,000 increased the annual appropriation to $16,000, and in 1895 this was again increased to $18,000.

PLAN OF THE SCHOOL.

There are three departments in the school. First, the normal department; second, the preparatory department; and, third, the practice school.

THE STATE HIGH SCHOOLS.

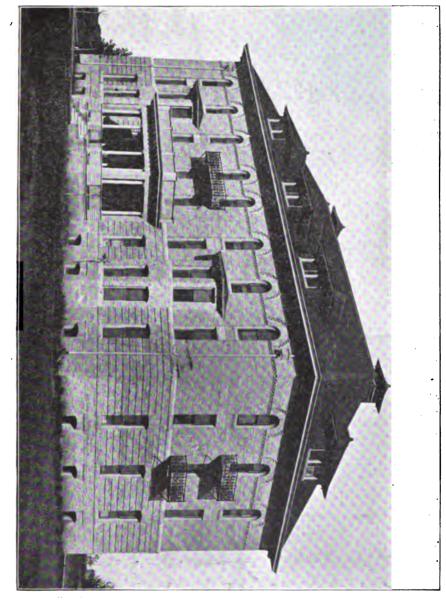

THE BOARD.

His Excellency, Gov. John Lind.

President, Cyrus Northrop, Minneapolis.

Hon. J. H. LEWIS, St. Paul, Secretary.

This board is constituted by virtue of chapter 144 of the General Laws of 1881. The object of the board is to formulate a system for public high and graded schools, requiring of them that there be regular and orderly courses of study, embracing all the branches prescribed as prerequisite for admission to the collegiate departments of the University of Minnesota, and upon compliance with these regulations by any such high school district, that they receive the sum of $400 annually toward defraying the expenses of the school.

MINNESOTA STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

MOORHEAD.

These schools sustain varied and important relations to the State. They are free to all the youth of the State.

They complete the preparation of many young men and women for various callings, business, teaching and social duties. They are preparatory to the normal schools, colleges, and to the university in its several literary and professional departments.

From the report of the state superintendent of schools we learn that they are yearly increasing in numbers and improving in quality. The number of high schools under the supervision of the state board during the past year has been ninety-seven. Total enrolled, 12,914.

Many of these high schools sustain full preparatory courses to the classical, scientific, and literary courses of the state university. They provide adequate supervision for all departments and have full equipments of libraries and apparatus, chemical and physical.

Others rank as substantial and complete in organization and instruction, although lacking in one or more of the requirements for the first class.

A few do not meet all the conditions of a well equipped high school. They give fair promise, in the number of students and in the interest and ability of the people, of growing into prosperous high schools. Schools of this class must make reasonable progress in improved scholarship, teachers and teaching facilities, or be discontinued.

THE STATE GRADED SCHOOLS.

The state graded schools are next below the state high schools in rank, and are under the supervision of the same board. Each state graded school is aided by the State to the amount of $200 annually. There are now 110 schools receiving this aid. The regulations of the board require that in order to receive state aid (1) school shall be held at least nine months during the year; (2) there shall be at least three rooms, with three teachers; (3) the school shall pursue the state course of study; (4) there must be a proper supply of dictionaries, library books, apparatus, etc.; (5) the principal must give satisfactory evidence of scholarship skill and successful experience.

In addition to the schools above described there are about fifty other graded schools in the State having from three to ten departments, not including those in places which have state high schools. The state graded schools are preparatory to the state high schools.

STATE CORRECTIONAL AND CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

STATE BOARD OF CORRECTIONS AND CHARITIES.

Office of the board in the capitol building, St. Paul. Jas. F. Jackson, secretary.

This board was created by act of the legislature, approved March 2, 1883. Its duties are defined as follows:

"To investigate the whole system of public charities and correctional institutions of the State, examine into the condition and management thereof, especially of prisons, jails, infirmaries, public hospitals and asylums; and to secure accuracy, uniformity and completeness in statistics of such institutions, the board may prescribe such forms of report and registration as they may deem essential, and all plans of new jails, lock-ups and infirmaries (i. e., poorhouses) shall, before the adoption of the same by the county authorities, be submitted to said board for suggestion and criticism. The governor, in his discretion, may, at any time, order an investigation by the board, or by a committee of its members, of the management of any penal, reformatory or charitable institution of the State." The board is required to report biennially to the legislature, making "a full report of all their doings, stating in detail all expenses incurred, and showing the actual condition of all the state and county institutions, and making such suggestions as they may deem advisable."

The law is carefully constructed to prevent this board from becoming a political instrument or an agent of corruption. It is provided that the board shall consist of "six persons, not more than three of whom shall belong to the same political party;" they shall "serve without compensation, their traveling expenses only being defrayed by the State."

The principal improvements made during the biennial period ending July 31, 1898, in the field supervised by the state board of corrections and charities are as follows:

A cottage for the superintendent at the St. Peter Hospital for Insane was built, releasing room for thirty-six patients.

The Fergus Falls Hospital for Insane has been enlarged by the addition of a ward having a capacity of 200 patients.

At the School for the Deaf, at Faribault, an industrial building is nearly completed.

At the School for the Feeble-Minded, at Faribault, a new building for epileptic girls has fifty occupants.

At the School for Dependent Children, at Owatonna, a new eight-room schoolhouse is under cover.

A new six-room schoolhouse and a wing to the shop building have been added to the State Training School, at Red Wing.

The new cell building has been completed for the State Reformatory, at St. Cloud. All of the labor was done by the inmates.

The subjoined statement exhibits the growth of the state correctional and charitable institutions. When the State was organized, in 1860, there were but sixteen inmates in the state institutions.

In 1870, there were 426; in 1880, 1,257; in 1890, 3,425; in 1896, 5,051; in 1898, 5,671. In 1870 the state institutions had one inmate for every 1,033 inhabitants; 1880, one for every 626; in 1890, one for every 423; in 1896, one for every 321; in 1898, one for every 306.

The expenditures in behalf of these institutions were $11,000 for the two years from 1860 to 1862; $305,000 from 1868 to 1870; $606,000 from 1878 to 1880; $1.850,000 from 1888 to 1890, and $2,829,723 from 1896 to 1898.

THE STATE HOSPITALS FOR INSANE.

The board has the care of all the insane asylums. They examine into the condition of the institutions, their needs in the way of buildings and improvements, and regulate the expenditures. A great responsibility rests upon the members of the board, in superintending the erection of buildings, and carefully watching the large expenditures of money required in providing and caring for the insane under their charge. They have been faithful servants, and the people of the State can point with pride to the fact that the unfortunate insane have all the care and comforts that the most enlightened philanthropy can suggest. The three institutions under this board, January 1, 1899, had a census of 3.357 unfortunates under their care. The total current expenses of the three asylums for the two fiscal years ending July 31, 1898, were $1,003,563.34. Training schools for nurses have been conducted at the hospitals with marked success. The aim of these schools is to prepare a body of men and women trained for the work of caring for the sick at the hospitals and to give to the medical staff intelligent aid. By an act approved April 15, 1899 (chapter 230, G. L. 1899), the First State Asylum for Insane is to be located at Anoka, and the Second at Hastings. Additional matters of interest relating to these asylums are placed under the appropriate headings for each asylum.

ST. PETER STATE HOSPITAL.

RESIDENT OFFICERS.

The state legislature, at its session in 1866, passed an act establishing the Minnesota Hospital for Insane, and appointed commissioners to locate the same. It was located at St. Peter, the citizens generously presenting the State with a fine farm of two hundred and ten acres, one mile south of the city. An appropriation of fifteen thousand dollars was made for temporary provision and support of the insane.

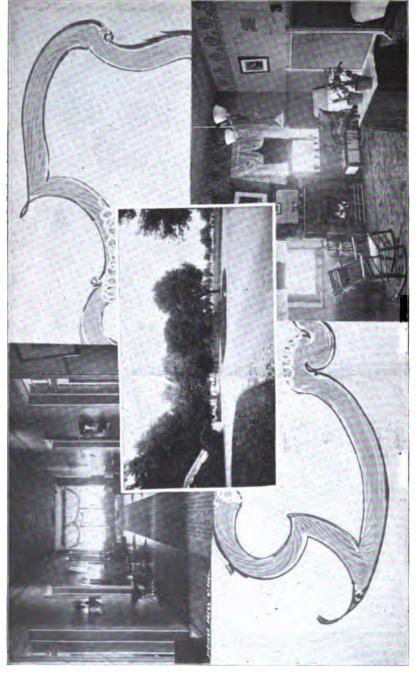

At the session of the legislature in 1867 forty thousand dollars were appropriated for a permanent building on the farm acquired. Plans were obtained and the building commenced. Temporary quarters had been provided and opened for the reception of patients in October, 1866, to which the patients, previously boarded at the hospital in Iowa, were brought. Dr. Samuel E. Shantz of Utica, N. Y., was elected, by the trustees, superintendent and physician. Under Dr. Shantz the temporary hospital was organized and directed until his death, in August, 1868, when he was succeeded by Dr. C. K. Bartlett of Northampton, Mass.

Ladies' Ward.

Appropriations were made from year to year for building purposes, until the plans were completed in 1876. The admission of patients, and gradual increase, kept the rooms constantly full, and since 1877 the accommodations have been crowded.

The hospital building is of hammered limestone, the walls are lined with brick and the roof slated. It contains a center building of four stories, with offices and chapel, and two wings, three stories each, containing nine separate halls for distinct classification of patients, with comfortable accommodations for five hundred persons and the necessary attendants. The additional buildings are a laundry, boiler and engine house, gas house, carpenter shop, ice house, barn, root cellar, granary, carriage house, slaughter house and pump house.

On the fifteenth of November, 1880, about seven o'clock in the evening, fire was discovered in the basement of the north wing, occupied by male patients, and appeared to have several points of origin at the same time. The progress of the flames was so rapid, and the halls so quickly filled with a dense smoke, that the patients were removed with great difficulty, and several attendants and citizens nearly lost their lives in their heroic efforts to save the unfortunate inmates. The whole north wing, except the stone and some of the brick walls, was destroyed, with all the bedding and furniture and most of the clothing.

The next morning forty-four male patients were missing, but during that and the following day several were returned from the neighborhood; the whole number being finally reduced to twenty-four missing, the remains of whom were believed to have been found in the ruins. Some died after the fire, mostly on account of injuries and exposure at that time.

The legislature of 1881 promptly made an appropriation of $90,000 to repair the burned wing, which amount was subsequently increased $15,000 at the extra session, when the outer walls of the building were found to be more damaged than at first supposed, a part of which had to be taken down. The wing, rebuilt in a fire-proof manner, with iron joists and brick arches, has been occupied since 1882, and the basement floors of the south wing, center building and laundry have been made fire-proof.

An appropriation of $1,500 was promptly made by the legislature after the fire of 1880 for waterworks for better protection, and expended for that purpose, giving a steam pump of 450 gallons capacity per minute, and a reservoir containing 135,000 gallons of water, 160 feet above the basement floor of the buildings, and from which water is carried in an eight-inch pipe to all parts of the hospital, having fifteen hydrants at convenient points always ready for immediate use.

Two detached wards, each two-story, and one with an attic, have been built for the quiet class of patients, at a cost of $100,000, each accommodating 230 persons. They are of brick, the basement story with iron beams and brick arches, and the whole practically fire-proof. These wards are located within sixty feet of the extreme ends of the main building, and it is contemplated to connect both with corridors one story high, to facilitate communication with all parts of the hospital.

The expenditures for the last two years for betterments have been about $40,000. The State has acquired title to 682 acres of land in connection with this hospital.

The total inventory of the hospital property foots up to $827,398.18.

The plan has been adopted in this hospital of setting apart one flat, consisting of three wards, for the reception, classification and treatment of new cases, in the same way that patients are treated in a general hospital, each case having individual care and treatment by skilled nurses, under direction of the medical officers. In connection with this ward is a sick diet kitchen, and a bath room where all kinds of medical baths can be given. The effect of this plan has been to eliminate the sense of dread and mistrust with which the patient's mind is filled after having been sent to the hospital by legal process under care of officers of the law. The patient recognizes the fact of his illness, shows no disposition toward resentful violence, and, when he has sufficient intelligence, submits cheerfully to the necessary discipline of the institution; consequently there is no occasion to use mechanical restraint of any kind or any other means suggestive of arbitrary restraint and detention.

The overcrowding of this institution has grown more and more serious during the past three years, and has been especially conspicuous since the failure of the legislature two years ago to make provision for the increase of the insane population in the State; so that now, with a capacity of 700 and a population, on January 1, 1899, of 559 men and 486 women, total 1,045, the condition of the hospital is deplorable.

This institution is located at Rochester, Olmsted county, and the history of its organization is as follows:

By a special law passed by the legislature of 1873, and amended in 1874, a tax of $10 on all liquor dealers was assessed to raise a fund for the establishment of a state inebriate asylum, and when completed it was to be maintained by a continuation of the same tax. As soon as a sufficient fund was accumulated the inebriate asylum board purchased a farm of 160 acres, within a mile and a half of the city of Rochester, for $9,000. They secured plans and began building in 1877. Strong opposition was raised by the liquor dealers against this tax as discriminating and unjust. Test cases were tried in the courts and the constitutionality of the law was sustained. But at the same time it became apparent and was admitted generally that room was much more urgently needed for the care of the rapidly increasing insane of the State than for inebriates. The legislature of 1878, considering this point, and in view of the determined opposition to the inebriate asylum to be built and maintained on this plan, repealed the act levying the tax, and changed it to the second Minnesota hospital for insane, with the proviso, however, that inebriates should be admitted into the institution, and cared for and treated at the expense of the State on the same basis as the insane.

The building was in an unfinished condition, consisting of a center and small east wing, which were only under roof, without inside finish, and without any outbuildings, such as laundry and engine house.

The trustees examined the property and recognized the unsuitableness of the structure for the purposes of an insane hospital, and the fact that it would necessarily require many changes to adapt it to this new object. Owing to these objections the hospital trustees hesitated to accept the transfer; but the urgency for room was so great that they reluctantly accepted it, to do the best they could with it. An appropriation of $15,000 accompanied the transfer as a fund to be used in preparing the building for the accommodation of patients. This was done in the summer of 1878.

Dr. J. E. Bowers, with over ten years' experience as first assistant physician at St. Peter, was elected superintendent, and the Rev. A. H. Kerr, who had been a trustee from the beginning of the hospital, was chosen steward. On January 1, 1879, the institution was opened for the reception of patients. Transfers were made from St. Peter and new cases were admitted, and the accommodations for 100 men were soon filled.

The legislature of 1880 granted $20,000 for the erection of a wing on the west side for women. This was put up in the summer of 1880, and was just ready for the furniture and heating apparatus when the terrible fire occurred at St. Peter. The means for furnishing and heating was immediately provided. The building was hastily completed, and furnished room for over 100 women, who were transferred to relieve the crowded condition of the first hospital. In 1882 a large extension was built on the men's side, making room for 200, and costing when furnished $76,000. In 1883 and 1884 a similar wing was built on the west side for women, costing when furnished $83,000, thus completing the design of the main structure, with a capacity for 600 patients. The building of the detached ward for women, authorized by the legislature of 1887, was completed and accepted for occupancy on the 12th of February, 1890.

In addition to the main buildings there have been erected an engine house and chimney, coal house, electric light plant, ice house, cold storage, laundry, carpenter shop, greenhouse and storehouse. The hospital is provided with a system of waterworks, consisting of four well strainers and a 900-foot well, capable of affording 200,000 gallons per day, with two Worthington duplex pumps to force the water into a reservoir on the bluff, holding 250,000 gallons.

A cave cellar has been excavated in the sandrock bluff, with bins capable of holding thousands of bushels of vegetables. Aside from being a curiosity, it is unexcelled for usefulness.

Expenditures for betterments the last two years have been $35,000, for electric light plant, new plumbing and new boilers, being special appropriations for that purpose.

The hospital farm contains 515 acres, and the trustees report that a larger amount of land could profitably be used in furnishing employment to inmates.

The total inventory of all property, independent of food, on July 31, 1898, was about $608,000.

The total number of inmates July 31, 1898-692 men and 504 women.

In 1885 the legislature established a commission to locate a third hospital in the northern section of the State. The commission received several propositions from important towns in the section designated, and finally accepted the proposal from Fergus Falls. The State secured the title to 636 acres of land, and in 1887 the legislature formally located the hospital and established the same at Fergus Falls, and appropriated $04,280 therefor, of which amount $24,280 was designated as payment for the land, $50,000 for building and furnishing a detached ward, and $20,000 for boiler house and engine, laundry, shops and stables, and for sewerage and water connections. The appropriation for buildings contemplated the erection of so much as would be necessary to accommodate 300 persons. In 1889 an additional appropriation of $65,000 was made. The total amount of appropriations since 1889, excluding those for current expenses and extraordinary repairs, is $716,500. The expenditures on building account to July 31, 1898, amount to $780,359.94. The ward buildings are now completed, with the exception of the east detached wing.

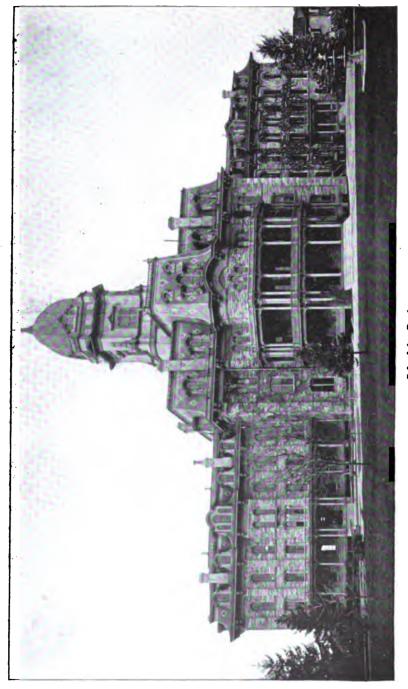

The hospital was opened July 29, 1890, at which time eighty insane patients were transferred from the first hospital, and three were admitted from adjacent counties, showing a population of eighty-three at the close of the fiscal year. The number of inmates at hospital July 31, 1898, was 1,061. Current expenses for the year ending July 31, 1898, $160,258.07. Total value of hospital property is $915,925.30.

The legislature of 1887 reorganized the "Minnesota Deaf, Dumb and Blind Institute," which was originally established at Faribault in 1858, and changed the name to "Minnesota Institute for Defectives," to consist of three schools, to-wit: The School for the Deaf, the School for the Blind and the School for the Feeble-Minded, to be controlled by a board of five directors appointed by the governor, and to include the governor and superintendent of public instruction as ex-officio members.

PROF. J. N. TATE, Superintendent.

The state legislature, at its first session in 1858, passed an act establishing the Minnesota State Institute for the education of the deaf and dumb, to be located in the town of Faribault, on condition that the citizens give forty acres of land for the use and benefit of the institution. The land was donated, but the school was not opened till 1863. The school occupied Major Fowler's store, on Front street.

In March, 1866, the legislature made the first appropriation for building purposes. In the spring of 1868 the north wing was completed, furnished and occupied. This wing was planned to accommodate fifty pupils, and in five years it contained sixty-five deaf children.

In 1863, by an act of the legislature, the board of directors was authorized to receive and educate the blind children of the State with the deaf; consequently, in 1866, a department for the blind was opened, with three pupils in attendance, under the direction of the same board and the same management with the deaf. But soon the quarters became too strait for the admission of the children seeking an education, and the legislature appropriated funds for the erection and furnishing of the south wing.

It soon became evident that there were great embarrassments and inconsistencies arising from educating the deaf and the blind together in the same building. The admissions to both departments continued to increase until more room was needed. Just at this time an effort was made to provide accommodations for the blind children in buildings separate and apart from the deaf. In doing this, the old Faribault place was purchased and fitted up for a school for the blind. This removed the blind children about one mile from the deaf and greatly relieved both classes, and added to the enjoyment and advantages of each.

From year to year children were brought to the school for the deaf who were not properly deaf, but feeble-minded, and in due time it became evident to both the directors and the superintendent of the schools that an effort should be made to start a school for the care and training of feeble-minded children. An effort was made and it resulted in an act of the legislature authorizing the establishment of an "experimental school" in 1879, and in a short time developed into a permanent department of the Minnesota Institute for Defectives.

This, in brief, is the genesis and order of the three state schools located at Faribault.

The first superintendent of this state school was Prof. R. H. Kinney. After serving three years, in July, 1866, he resigned, and J. L. Noyes was appointed his successor, and during his administration the other two departments were established and organized. In May, 1881, the internal government of the institution was modified and reorganized. Superintendent Noyes retired from all official connection with the other departments, and thereafter devoted himself exclusively to the interests of the deaf and dumb. In June, 1896, Superintendent Noyes retired on account of impaired health, and James N. Tate, superintendent of the Missouri school, was elected to fill the vacancy.

During the last two years there have been enrolled 275 deaf children. This school has already been instrumental in preparing hundreds of deaf youth to be useful and intelligent citizens in the State, and year by year a few are graduated, well prepared to take their places beside the hearing and speaking youth who leave our public schools.

The schools and industrial classes are well organized, and the pupils are under the care and instruction of experienced and competent officers and teachers. About one-third of the time is devoted to manual training and the rest to intellectual work in the school room. Speech, lip-reading and drawing are taught by special teachers. Every deaf child is given instruction in articulation, and none are excused from these classes until the teacher is satisfied that permanent improvement is impossible.

The duties of each day are agreeably divided between school exercises, industrial work and recreation.

The school is free to all deaf children whose parents or guardians are citizens of the State.

The proper age for admission is between eight and twenty-five years. The regular school period is seven years, to which a special course of three years may be added by a vote of the board of directors.

The trades taught are boot and shoe making, printing, carpentry and cabinet making, for the boys, and dressmaking and plain sewing for the girls. None are excused from the industrial work, and, as a rule, none desire to be.

The school has seventy acres of excellent land, well located, well watered, admirably situated for drainage, water supply and health.

THE SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND.

J. J. Dow, Superintendent.

The work for the blind in Minnesota began at Faribault, in 1866, when three pupils were placed under the charge of a teacher in a rented building. This embryo school was under the management of the board of directors of the Minnesota institute for the deaf and dumb and the blind, and was under the same superintendency with the department for the deaf.

After a separate existence of two years the school work was carried on in the same building with the deaf until 1874, when a growing feeling of the incompatibility of the two classes led to the erection of new buildings for the blind, about a mile south of the school for the deaf, and their permanent separation.

The blind were immediately under the charge of a resident principal, and remained under the general supervision of the superintendent of the institute.

In 1882 a complete separation of the internal administration of the two schools was made, and James J. Dow, who had been principal since 1875, was appointed superintendent of this school.

In 1887 a reorganization of the departments of the institute was made, and this department was termed by law the school for the blind. The super-intendency and internal administration remained unchanged.

The school is equipped with all the appliances of a modern special school of this class, and makes a specialty of musical instruction and industrial training, such as broom making, hammock weaving and bead work and sewing.

The course of study embraces a period of seven years, beginning with the kindergarten and ending with the ordinary studies of English classes in the high schools.

The school is free to all blind children and youth in the State of Minnesota, between the ages of eight and twenty-six, to whom board, care and tuition are furnished.

There has been in this school an enrollment of seventy-seven pupils for the year ending July 31, 1898. During the preceding biennial period there have been eighty-eight different pupils enrolled.

THE SCHOOL FOR FEEBLE-MINDED.

A. C. RODGERS, M. D., Superintendent.

In 1868 the attention of the board of directors of the institutions for deaf, dumb and blind was called to the fact that there were children finding their way into the school for deaf who were not bright enough to remain, and in 1877 Professor Noyes emphasized the necessity for special provision for this class. The state board of health took the same position, and the officers of the hospital for insane announced that many idiotic and feeble-minded persons were constantly being sent to them for the want of a more suitable place.

The concurrent movements caused the legislative committee on hospitals for insane, during the session of 1879, to take the matter of provision for idiots and imbeciles under advisement. The legislature, by an act "relating to the removal of insane and inebriate persons," created a commission, whose first members were Dr. Geo. W. Wood of Faribault, Dr. H. A. Boardman of St. Paul, and Dr. W. H. Leonard of Minneapolis, and who were authorized to select from the patients at the hospital for insane such children as were feeble-minded or idiotic, and not properly belonging with the insane, and assign them to the care of the directors of the Faribault institution.

A large frame building situated about one-half mile south of the school for deaf was rented by the board for the "experimental" school, and a veteran specialist, Dr. H. M. Knight of Connecticut, was employed to organize the work, and his son, Dr. Geo. H. Knight, was placed in charge under the title of "acting superintendent," the nominal supervision resting with the superintendent of the school for the deaf till 1882, when a separation was made in name, as it had formerly existed in practice.

Dr. Knight resigned in 1885, and Dr. A. C. Rogers, formerly assistant physician to the Iowa institution for feeble-minded, at Glenwood, was appointed in his place.

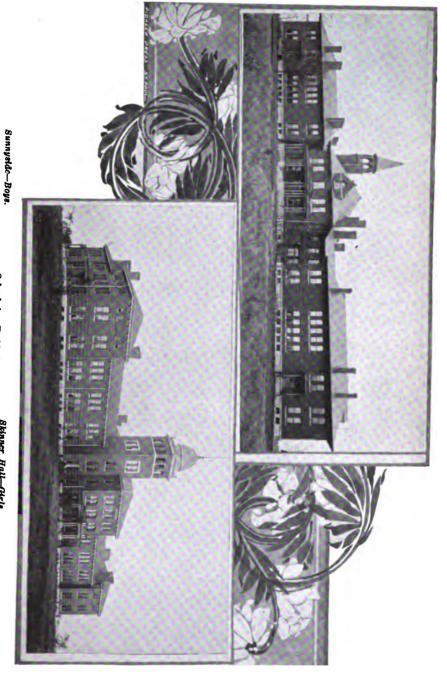

The present main buildings were begun in 1881; are of blue limestone; have cost about $200,000, and will accommodate 300 persons. There are two wings and a transverse center, the south being occupied by boys and the north by girls, while the center contains administration rooms, a hospital, an assembly hall, school and industrial rooms, dining room, kitchen, storeroom, etc.

There are two custodial buildings of brick—"Sunnyside," providing a home for 150 boys, and "Skinner Hall,"* which accommodates 160 girls.

The attendance on September 1, 1898, was 638—341 males and 297 females—distributed as follows: In training department, 102 males, 109 females; in custodial department, 155 males, 155 females; in epileptic department, 60 males, 33 females, and on farm 24 males.

A large percentage of those in the training department—whose mental incapacities prevent their receiving benefit from public schools—become self-sustaining under proper training.

This building was named in memory of the late Hon. Geo. E. Skinner, for many years a member of the board of directors, and always a devoted friend of the institution.

The most of those in the custodial department are not susceptible to material improvement, and must be cared for during life, though many become more or less useful. Some of the adult feeble-minded boys and girls live with them and assist in their care.

A colony of boys has been organized upon a well equipped farm, where dairying and gardening are the principal features.

There is a department organized for epileptic boys and another for epileptic girls. The former, called the "Retreat," is in the south wing of the center building, and the latter occupies the new dormitory building for girls, known as the "Annex."

The school is in reality an institution performing the functions of a school, a home and a hospital. It therefore consists of three departments, quite distinct in their nature, and yet mutually connected, viz.: (1) School and Training Department, (2) Custodia or Home, and (3) Epileptic Hospital.

The Minnesota State Public School, for dependent and neglected children, at Owatonna, Steele county, was established by legislative enactment in 1885, and opened for the reception of children in December, 1886.

The premises consist of 240 acres of good farm land in two tracts, one containing 160 acres, denated to the State by the citizens of Owatonna, and the other containing eighty acres, lying half a mile distant, purchased by the State in 1897. The site of the buildings is elevated, overlooking the city and the beautiful valley of the Straight river.

The permanent buildings are eleven in number, and comprise an administration building, a schoolhouse, a laundry and heating plant, seven cottages and a hospital, all irregularly though attractively placed on an undulating plat. The administration building, which occupies a central position in the group, contains, in the central section, the superintendent's residence and office, public reception room, library, children's and employes' dining rooms, and rooms for other officers and employes; in the south wing, rooms for the accommodation of a family of children, and in the north wing, an assembly hall, matron's room and office, and a sewing room. Besides the buildings described, there are two barns and two tool sheds of sufficient capacity to accommodate the needs of the farm, an ice house, a greenhouse, and a hennery.

The cost of the property, including land, buildings, and all improvements, was $203,743.73.

The plan of construction and organization is designed to embody, as far as possible, the distinctive features of home life. The children are divided into families numbering from twenty-five to thirty members, and each family occupies a separate cottage. The cottages are the homes, and are in charge of intelligent women who care for the children as mothers. All of the children take their meals in a central dining hall, each family having a table and eating by itself, and all attend school in a central building.

The object of the institution is to provide a temporary home and school for the dependent and neglected children of the State. No child in Minnesota to-day need go without a home if the officers of the counties do their duty. The process of admission is simple, and is divested of every feature resembling a criminal proceeding. Under the law, it is the duty of every county commissioner, when he finds in his district a child dependent, or in manifest danger, to take steps at once for its examination by the judge of probate, who is the officer designated to decide upon its eligibility; so that through the plan arranged for sending them here from every county, the benevolent purpose of the State is effectively carried out. The process of admission wisely guards against the unnecessary separation of parent and child, but keeps in view the ultimate good of the latter. Once admitted, it is the child of the State, the authority of the parents, if any are living, being canceled.

While in the school the bodily wants of the children are provided for, and they are instructed morally and in the common school branches. The farm, garden, greenhouse, engineering and electrical departments and office offer opportunities for those who are old enough to be taught in these special lines, while the training of the girls is designed to help them to become useful in the arts of housekeeping. Every child old enough to work has some daily task suited to its years and condition; but the average time of detention in the school, about ten months, is not long enough to complete an education or teach a definite trade for life occupation, the work being especially preparatory to their going into family homes where their education and training for useful citizenship will be carried on and completed by the families taking them.

A very important part of the work of the institution is carried on by the state agency. Through it the children in families are visited and the homes of families that apply for them are personally investigated.

January 1, 1899, there had been received into the school from seventy-two counties 1,824 children, of whom 1,131 were boys and 693 were girls. Of these, 233 were then in the school, the others, with few exceptions, having been placed in family homes. Of those placed in homes, 1,030 still remained under the supervision of the school and were subject to visitation. Three hundred and four were past eighteen years of age. Information gained by visits to these young people showed that eighty-three per cent of them had developed into young men and women of good character.

The average daily attendance at the school in 1898 was 256, and the largest number present at any time was 273. There are always many present, ranging in age from infancy to fourteen or fifteen years, available for families that desire to take children. Applications for them should be made to the superintendent, who will have the home investigated, and, if approved, will arrange for the selection of the children. To be approved, the home must be comfortable and must offer good advantages to the children, and the people must be moral, upright citizens. In 1898, about one-half of the applications received were approved after investigation. An average of twenty-six children per month were placed in homes during the year.

The total cost of the work, including the state agency, was, for the year, $41,157.45. The average number of children who received care and supervision was 1,228; cost per capita, $33.52.

The buildings now completed are the administration building, or main building, with dining hall and kitchen attached; three cottages for boys, a school building, a power house, work shop, cold storage, barn, greenhouses and a building for the girls' department. The building for the girls is a beautiful structure, large enough to accommodate seventy-five girls, and contains everything necessary to make it a complete home as well as a school. All the buildings are constructed in the most substantial manner, on what is known as the slow-burning principle, finished in oak, with hard oil finish, and in plan are probably the best adapted for the purpose for which they are constructed of any buildings in the country. The main building is a substantial structure of stone, with enough pressed brick in the second and third stories to give a pleasing effect. It is 172 feet long by 70 feet deep. The cost of the buildings so far constructed has been $307,037.11; of the land, $17,377.25.

The school is organized on what is known as the "open family plan," the school being divided into families, graded according to the age of the children, with from fifty to seventy-five in each family. Each family is in charge of a family manager, teacher and housekeeper.

So far as possible the boys are afforded facilities for learning trades as well as acquiring a common school education; cabinet making, carpenter work, tailoring, shoemaking, printing, farming and gardening, floriculture, blacksmithing and sloyd are carried on.

Total number of children that have been admitted to the institution up to the first of August, 1898, is 2,101, of whom 1,879 were boys and 222 girls.

Two hundred and seventy-nine boys and forty-five girls remained in the school July 31, 1808.

Expenditures for the year ending July 31, 1898, were $57,612.10, or an annual per capita expense for each child maintained of $165.

The legislature of 1895 changed the name from "Minnesota State Reform School" to that of "The Minnesota State Training School for Boys and Girls," and authorized the appointment of a state agent, who has the care of the boys and girls out on furlough, provides homes for the homeless, and employment for those who need help.

MINNESOTA STATE REFORMATORY.

W. H. HOULTON, Superintendent.

This institution was established by the legislature of 1887 as an intermediate correctional institution between the training school and the state prison—the object being to provide a place for young men and boys from sixteen to thirty years of age never before convicted of crime, where they might, under as favorable circumstances as possible, by discipline and education best adapted to that end, form such habits and character as would prevent their continuing in crime, fit them for self-support and accomplish their reformation.

The law provides for the indeterminate sentence, allowing of parole when earned by continuous good conduct, and final release when reformation is strongly probable—all under control of a non-partisan board of six men, serving without pay, one appointed each year by the governor. The board elects a superintendent, who appoints his subordinates.

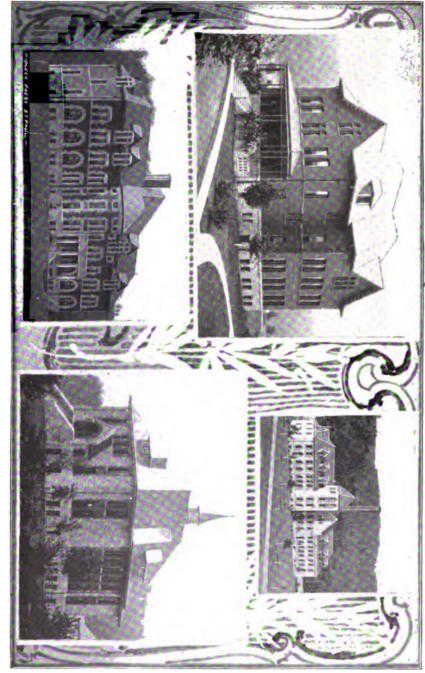

The total number of inmates to the end of 1898 has been 1,001; the number in the institution same date, 172, of whom two were women. There have been 176 paroles granted in the two fiscal years ending July 31, 1898; of this number 150, or eighty-five per cent, kept the conditions of parole, 13 broke parole by absenting themselves without leave, 5 by drinking and 8 for all other causes.

The site of the reformatory was selected to include a granite quarry near St. Cloud, hoping this would furnish work for a part of the inmates in preparing this stone for building, and it has worked well.

Honest labor is required every day of each inmate, unless excused for sickness. Almost every occupation and employment usual in a live community is carried on in a practical way in the reformatory, and each inmate is learning to fill some necessary place and do some useful work.

They learn fairly well one of the following trades: Quarrying and dressing stone, blacksmithing, carpentering, steam and electrical engineering, plumbing and pipe fitting, stone and brick laying, cooking, laundrying, shoemaking; also, to be waiters, clerks, florists and farmers, the caring for stock and the raising of fruit and garden truck.

Besides twenty acres inclosed with a sixteen-foot wall, 650 acres of wild brush land have, by the inmates, been made into a well cultivated, productive farm. This year there were 100 acres of corn, 40 of oats, 25 of potatoes, 5 of sugar beets, 15 of vegetables, 15 of beans, 15 of turnips, 20 of small fruit and orchard, and 350 tons of hay. There are 175 head of cattle, of all ages, including 50 milch cows, which furnish milk and butter for the institution. There are raised, mostly on tame pasture, 300 hogs, which supply the institution with abundant, healthy, fresh pork, besides bacon, hams and lard.

Only one inmate has died in the last three years, and only one a year has been in the hospital.

Eighty per cent of the inmates are growing boys, sixteen to twenty-four years old, hearty eaters and hard on clothes, and, as they come without trades and are mostly undisciplined to labor or otherwise, and as soon as fitted go out for themselves again, their cost to the State is much more in proportion than their earning capacity. The object is reformation, and if that is accomplished and due economy is exercised, the State is well served.

The effect, in the reformation of inmates, of honest labor, good school instruction, ethical lectures and religious teaching, all under firm but kindly discipline, intended to cultivate self control, fully justifies the hopes of the friends of prison reform.

It is not a favorable commentary on the enlightenment of organized communities that, immediately upon the organization of the government, the citizens thereof must protect themselves against the violation of the law. Minnesota offers no exception to the rule, and therefore the state prison at Stillwater was the second institution located in the State. Stillwater was selected in consequence of an agreement by which the capitol was to remain at St. Paul and the state university to go to St. Anthony Falls. This agreement was entered into immediately after the organization of the Territory, and in 1851 the state prison was organized and building operations commenced. Although crude and wholly of wood then, surrounded by a light wooden fence, there now stands on the site then selected massive stone buildings, surrounded on four sides by high stone walls of an average thickness of two and one-half feet and an average height of thirty feet, inclosing an area of nine and one-half acres.

The administration building faces the east, and entrance to same is from the main street of the city. On the first floor is found the warden's offices, reception rooms, quarters for the board of managers, dining rooms and officers' kitchen. The second floor contains female prison, matron's quarters, spare parlor, dining rooms for first and second grade prisoners. The third floor contains officers' sleeping quarters and chapel. The cell house stands immediately in the rear, to the west of the administration building, and is built entirely of stone, with steel roofs, having steel rafters; all cell floors are of sheet steel, and all gallery landings and all gallery walks of the same material. The main portion runs east and west. Two cross sections were built in 1884, running north and south. The cell house now contains 562 cells. In 1889 there was built a commodious hospital building, at the extreme west center of the prison yard. The first floor of this building is now used for the deputy warden's office and punishment cells, the second floor for hospital purposes and office of the prison physician.

The shops of the institution are seven in number, all built of stone and brick, three stories high, with steel roofs. The labor of the prisoners is now devoted to three industries, the manufacture of binding twine and high school scientific apparatus, on state account, and the manufacture of boots and shoes on the piece-price plan. The total amount of twine manufactured during the fiscal year 1898 was 5,000,000 pounds, all of which was sold within the borders of the State, about 1,000,000 pounds being shipped from the institution direct to the farmers of the State.

The discipline and management of the prison is equal to the best in the country; every feature of advanced penal management is in full operation, the state laws allowing diminution of sentence term for good conduct. An evening school is conducted for the benefit of the immates eight months in the year, a Chautauqua circle is well attended by the inmates, and a well organized choir of inmates furnishes music for Sunday services and holiday entertainments. The Prison Mirror, a weekly newspaper, is published and edited by the inmates, who have full control. The prison has a well selected library, containing nearly 5,000 volumes, which are freely circulated among the prisoners. The parole and grading systems, which have been in operation for the past seven years, continue to give most excellent satisfaction, and have fully evidenced that they are both movements in the right direction. Since the introduction of the parole system there have been 297 prisoners released under the rules and regulations governing the system. Of this number, thirty-one have violated the privileges and have been returned to the prison. The paroled prisoner is looked after by a state agent, whose duty it is to assist the discharged prisoner in securing employment and to have a watchful care that the conditions of parole are not violated.

The population of the prison at the close of the last fiscal year was 501, of whom eight were women. The number on parole was forty-seven.

The legislature for 1889 passed a reorganization act providing for the appointment of a board of managers, one from each congressional district, and enlarging the reward for good conduct. After entering the prison, five days are deducted during the first year, seven days for each month during the second year, nine days for each month during the third year, and for each month thereafter ten days. The legislature of 1897 passed a law providing for the sum of twenty-five dollars to be paid each inmate at the time of discharge, and repealing the law of 1889 allowing per diem earnings.

The industries of the institution for the biennial period ending on July 31, 1898, show net earnings of $244,768.48 and expenses amounting to $201,-121.08, thus having paid into the state treasury the sum of $43,647.40 over and above all expenses. There is no state institution in the country which makes so flattering a financial showing.

The legislature of 1895 passed a law repealing chapter 205 of the General Laws of 1889, providing that no contract for the leasing of the labor of prisoners confined in this institution, at a certain rate per diem, giving the contractor full control of the labor of the prisoners, shall hereafter be made, but that all prisoners shall be employed by the warden, under rules and regulations established by the board of managers; further providing that the number of prisoners employed in a single industry at the same time shall not exceed ten per cent of the total number of persons engaged in such industry in this State. As soon as lawful after the passage of the above act a contract was entered into by and between the board of managers and the Union Shoe and Leather Co., whereby the Union Shoe and Leather Co. agreed to purchase the product of a certain number of prisoners engaged in the manufacture of boots and shoes, at a fixed price per pair, the price being regulated by the quality of the work performed. There has also been established a department for the manufacture of high school scientific apparatus, which is giving employment to a large number of prisoners and furnishing the schools of the State a superior line of apparatus at a minimum cost.

The Minnesota Soldiers' Home is located at Minnehaha Falls, on a tract of wooded land donated to the State for the purpose by the city of Minneapolis. The law providing for its establishment constitutes chapter 148, General Laws of Minnesota for 1887.

The object of the soldiers' home is to provide a home for all honorably discharged ex-soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the army or navy of the United States during the War of the Rebellion or the Mexican war, who now are or who may hereafter become citizens of the State of Minnesota, who by reason of wounds, disease, old age or infirmities are unable to earn their living and who have no adequate means of support. Its management is vested in a board of seven trustees, appointed by the governor, not more than four of whom can be members of the same political party.

Of the fifty-one acres comprising the home grounds, about ten acres are cultivated as a garden. This plat lies on the highest of three terraces, and at the northerly extremity of the tract. On this ground are raised each year large quantities of vegetables for the use of the institution, wholly by the labor of members. On the borders of the garden have been built the barn, ice house, carpenter shop and other minor buildings. On the second or middle terrace have been built all the permanent structures except the hospital and the morgue. These latter occupy the lowest terrace at the extreme point of the bluff.

The permanent buildings of the soldiers' home have been erected in pursuance of a systematic plan adopted by the board in the beginning, and carried out as successive appropriations have become available. They are of generally uniform architectural design, though pleasantly varied in details. The materials are pressed brick, with brown stone trimmings, slate roofs and metal cornices. The woodwork is of oak, with maple floors; the windows are single panes. The construction of all is solid and substantial. They will be habitable and attractive for a century after their present use has been served, and when they have been transferred to some other needed and appropriate public purpose. Gen. W. W. Averell, U. S. A. (retired), national inspector of soldiers' homes, says of them: "I think Minnesota has in many respects the finest home in all the twenty states. In point of location and construction it cannot be excelled. The buildings are harmonious in design, and in convenience, material, and economy, they are admirable. The administration building is especially notable. It cost $35,000, and if built in New York would have cost at least $100,000, exclusive of the ground."

These permanent buildings consist of:

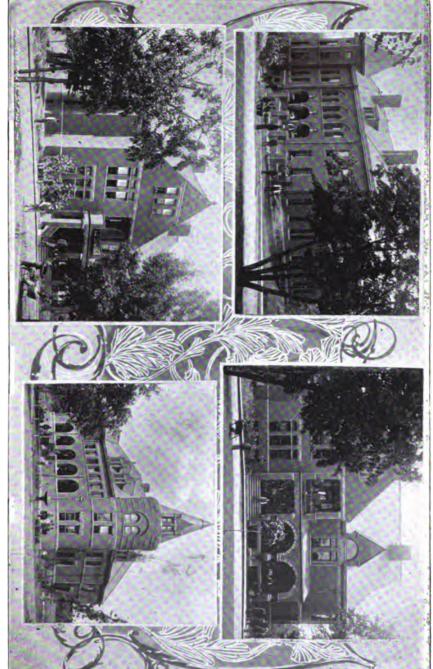

One administration building, one hospital, one domestic building, four cottages, one laundry and heating plant, and one pavilion.

The administration building contains the offices of the institution; the library and reading room, also used for a chapel; the residence of the commandant, and (in the basement) storage room for clothing before issue to members.

The hospital contains, in four large wards and many smaller rooms, the quarters of the sick, residence of the surgeon, quarters of nurses and attendants, operating rooms, surgeon's office and dispensary, kitchen and dining room for the building, etc.

The domestic building contains the general kitchen and dining room of the home, residence of adjutant and quartermaster, storage for provisions and quarters for forty members of the home.

The cottages each contain quarters for about fifty members, mostly divided into rooms accommodating six to eight individuals. They are all furnished with bath rooms and all modern conveniences. In each cottage it is intended to have one general sitting room, but in winter it sometimes becomes necessary to fill these rooms with beds. There is additional room in the attics and in the high basements, which at times are utilized for sleeping apartments when the home is overcrowded.

All of the above buildings are thoroughly heated by steam radiators, and plentifully lighted with incandescent electric lamps.

The laundry and heating plant, as its name implies, contains the battery of four large steam boilers; the laundry machinery, where is done all this class of work for the entire institution; the engines which furnish power; the electric dynamos which supply light for the buildings and grounds, and the pumps which keep the reservoir near by at all times filled with water.

The pavilion is intended for religious services, concerts, camp fires, and all public exercises and assemblages during the summer season. It is a large, light, cool, ornamental structure, from whose broad exterior promenade, overhanging the brink of the cliff, a magnificent view up and down the Mississippi river can be had, and within which all manner of diversions interesting to the veterans and their throngs of visitors can be comfortably conducted.

Fourteen members of the home were commissioned officers of volunteers during the War of the Rebellion. Every branch of the service, every department and nearly every army corps is represented in the home. Its members participated in all the decisive campaigns and battles of the Rebellion.

All the expenses of maintaining the soldiers' home, including not only food, clothing, fuel and medicine, but also salaries, furniture, fixtures, books, nursing, burials, and all repairs in excess of $2,000 a year, are paid from the "home support fund" in the state treasury. This fund consists (1) of moneys transferred from the soldiers' relief fund; (2) of the per capita allowance from the United States government of $100 a year for each inmate (average attendance), received quarterly, and (3) payments by pensioned members of all received by them in excess of four dollars a month, less amounts refunded to dependent families. Disbursements are made from this fund by state auditor's warrants, an itemized bill, approved by the executive committee, being filed with the auditor as his voucher for each warrant. Thus every dollar paid for the support of the home from the beginning is represented by receipted invoices now on file in the state auditor's office, signed by the persons who performed service or furnished supplies.

THE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

The general insurance law of this state was enacted in 1872, and provision made for the organization of a department, and the appointment of a commissioner to see that all the laws of the state respecting insurance companies were faithfully executed.

The state supervision was to prevent the organization of irresponsible companies within the state, and to prohibit any companies from doing business except by complying with all the laws of the state with respect to security for the payment of losses. Certain fees were to be paid for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the department. The growth of insurance business in the state is noted from year to year by the amounts paid into the state treasury from the department:

1881	37,914.24	1891	131,948,92
1882	45,182.78	1892	142,874.25
1883	53,994,45	1893	166,180.77
1884	67.167.38	1894	157.828.91
1885	64,705,76	1895	157.315.65
1886	75.089.57	1896	163,300.00
1887	98,364.87	1807	170,774.86
1888	105,255,04	1898	174,386,24
1889	114,857.21
Total, seventeen years			$2,076,349.08

The receipts of the office have grown very rapidly, showing only a temporary falling off during the depression.

The department is a source of large revenue to the state, as the entire expense of the department, including printing, averages only about $7,000 per annum. The department is hampered by inadequate appropriations for its maintenance, and it would be an advantage to the state to make a more liberal allowance in order that the work of the department could be extended.

The entire receipts of the department are turned over to the state treasurer, and remain to the credit of the general fund except one-half of the tax collected from fire premiums in towns having fire departments. In these towns one-half of this tax goes to the support and relief of injured or disabled firemen or their families, or for the maintenance of the fire departments.

The reports of insurance companies made to the department end with the calendar year, and usually are not all received until late in the month of January, and it requires at least two months of active clerical work to get the tabulated result, and for the purposes of this manual, therefore, we have to use the figures of 1897 for statistical information.

The fire premiums paid during the year 1897 amounted to $3,948,727, and the losses incurred were $1,788,438.

The regular life premiums paid for the year 1897 amounted to $2,676,276 and the losses paid amounted to $845,790.

The assessment life, fraternal societies and accident associations received during the year $1,544,810 and paid out in losses $851,725.

Besides the classes of companies named, there are companies doing accident, employers' liability, fidelity, plate glass, steam boiler and burglary insurance. In 1897 these companies took in $507,909 in premiums and incurred losses of $264,045.

There are several fraternal societies that do not report to the insurance commissioner, whose collections aggregate $350,000 annually, and whose death losses paid amount to about $300,000 annually.

The total number of companies doing business in the state in 1898 was 516, comprised as follows:

American fire and marine companies	122
Foreign fire and marine companies	42
Mutual fire companies and Lloyds	20
Township mutual companies	122
Life insurance companies, old line	87
Assessment life companies	48
Fraternal societies
Assessment accident companies	40
Accident and casualty companies, stock
Title insurance companies
Mutual hail and cyclone companies	19

OFFICE OF PUBLIC EXAMINER.

The office of public examiner was created in 1878 (General Laws of 1878, chapter 83), by the appointment, to be made by the governor for the term of three years, of a person competent as a skillful accountant, and well versed as an expert in the theory and practice of book-keeping, and who is not an incumbent of any public office under the state, or any county, municipality or public institution therein, and who, is not a stockholder, officer, trustee, assignee or employe of any banking, moneyed or savings institution or corporation created under the laws thereof. The duties of this officer, being of a fiduciary character, his bonds were fixed at $50,000 for their faithful discharge. The law gives him almost unlimited power in the examination of the accounts of public officers, state and county. He prescribes and enforces correct methods for keeping the financial accounts of state institutions, visits them twice annually, and makes an exhaustive inspection of their books and the detailed items of expenditure. With reference to county officers, it is his duty to enforce a correct and uniform system of book-keeping, by auditors and treasurers, so as to insure the thorough supervision and safety of the public funds. By chapter 53, act of 1891, the jurisdiction of the public examiner is made to embrace the financial officers of the city of St. Paul.

When complaint is made by firemen's relief associations, it is his duty to examine as to expenditures of such associations.

The public examiner has authority, without prior notice, to visit each of the banking, savings and other moneyed corporations created under the laws of this state, and thoroughly examine into their affairs and ascertain their financial condition at least once in each year. It shall be his duty to carefully inspect and verify the validity and amount of securities and assets held by such institutions, examine into the validity of the mortgages held by savings banks, and see that the same are duly recorded, and ascertain the nature and amount of any discount or other banking transactions which he may deem foreign to the legitimate and lawful purposes of savings institutions.

He is made ex-officio superintendent of banks (chapter 183, Gen. Laws, 1887), and all reports required to be made by banks to the state auditor are transferred from the auditor's office to the examiner's office, and all future reports are to be made to the examiner.

The legislature of 1891 (chapters 27 and 131, Gen. Laws, 1891) imposed additional duties upon this officer in the examination of building and loan associations, giving the same power and authority conferred upon him as over banks and other moneyed corporations.

DAIRY AND FOOD COMMISSION.

This branch of the administrative functions of the state had its origin in the invasion of the dairy field by oleomargarine, that product of the chemist's art directed to the discovery of the utilities of by-products, a food product that betrayed its inferiority by assuming the name of butter. Minnesota took early stand against this enemy of her dairies in the act of 1885, creating this department and giving to it the execution of laws enacted, not alone to bar the introduction or manufacture and sale of oleomargarine, but to protect dairy interests in other directions. It was found that the same unscrupulous dishonesty that sought to palm off oleaginous compounds as butter was putting upon the markets of the state as "pure cream cheese" a variously prepared compound that was given the name of "filled cheese," while (in a less degree of offense, but none the less fraudulent in spirit) cheese made from skim milk was made and sold as full cream. Acts were passed requiring all these substitutes to be sold under names that would truly designate their quality, and the execution of the laws devolved upon this Commission. While the imitation butter acts have not been wholly effective, owing to the "original package" decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, they have been effective in preventing manufacture within the state. In the same spirit, for the purpose of assisting in the creation of a state reputation for dairy products, dairymen were prohibited from keeping cows in a manner, either as to stabling or feeding, that would result in the production of unhealthful milk, and, to protect the creameries and cheese factories, dairymen were prohibited from selling milk to them or to consumers that was adulterated with water, or that was unclean, impure, unhealthful or unwholesome. Under the influence of these laws, supported by inspection of this department, the dairy interests of the state have increased in extent and its dairy products have attained a reputation excelled by those of no other state in the Union. The creameries now number 665, an increase of 49.2 per cent in two years, and ninety factories make cheese. Some statistics, compiled from the report of the commission, are worthy of special note. Four hundred and twenty-three of the creameries and forty-seven of the factories are operated by farmers on cooperative methods. Taking the state as a whole, 50,740 of the 171,076 returned by the state census of 1895 as "farmers, gardeners, etc.," were patrons of creameries in 1898. The dairy map of the state shows in its successive annuals the increasing spread of creameries and cheese factories to the northern portions of the state, the preponderance being in the southern portions, where exclusive grain raising first gave way to dairying and stock. The proportion of patrons of creameries to farmers in several of the counties is not only interesting in itself, but valuable as showing the great importance of this branch of agricultural industry.

County.	Creamery Patrons.	Total Farmers.	Per Cent.
Blue Earth	1,282	4.268	80
Carver	1,400	2,066	68
Dodge	1.374	2.142	64

Meeker		2.833	47
Mower	1.388	3,194	43
Rice	1.545	8.057	50

Briefly summarized, the laws relating to this branch of the department prohibit the sale of oleomargarine or butterine, unless colored "a bright pink," and of filled cheese, and regulate the manufacture and sale of "full cream" and of "skim-milk" cheese.

The effect of these joint efforts of the commission and the creameries of the state was exhibited at the Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition at Omaha in 1898, where four of the five first premiums awarded were given to the product of Minnesota creameries. The first premium was also bestowed upon Minnesota butter at the National Creamery Buttermakers' Convention held in Topeka, Kan., in 1898, and a more recent victory was scored by our creameries at the meeting of the same convention in Sioux Falls, S. D., in January, 1899, where their butter competed, among others, with that of New York, Ohio and Illinois, scoring the highest average. This triumph was the more decisive, owing to the large number of entries from this state and the small number and choice selections from those famous dairy states.

The added value to butter bearing a label indicating that it was up to the prescribed state standard would not be the only benefit. A further good effect would be in the stimulus given to all creameries to bring their product up to standard and keep it there.

The food inspection side of the department was added in 1889, as a result of the discovery that manufactured food products were being extensively adulterated and sold as the pure article. Nowhere else is the "seamy side" of competition and its baleful effects seen in clearer light than in these adulterations of food, and in no way is the evidence of the extent more clearly established than by the many and increasing laws and efforts made in every state to prevent or regulate them. The unscrupulous adulterator of any food product, was able, by the cheapness of his imitation, either to drive the honest producer out of business, or, as too frequently happened, to compel him to resort to the same methods in order to maintain his footing in trade. Society, represented by the state, owes it as much to the cause of morals and common honesty as to the health of its members to take every possible step either to prevent this adulteration or to compel the degraded product to be sold under its fit designation. To meet these frauds as they came to light the legislature enacted, at successive sessions, a number of laws prohibiting or regulating their manufacture and sale, and charged the commission with their execution. Various standards of purity were established. Milk must have at least 3½ per cent of butter fat; cream must contain at least 20 per cent, and cheese must have 45 per cent of fats in its total solids. All vinegars must contain 4½ per cent of acetic acid and not be artificially colored; if baking powder contains alum, that fact must be printed plainly on the label; if lard is adulterated, its package must announce the fact. The brewing, distilling or selling of any spirituous, fermented or malt liquors, containing any substance not normal or healthful, is prohibited. Honey, compounded of or mixed with glucose or any substance not the product of bees, must be sold under labels announcing its adulteration. Similar laws guard the consumption of candy, food jellies, spices and condiments, while linseed oil, though hardly a food product, is protected from fraudulent practices and put under the guardianship of the commission.

All these various acts, relative either to dairy interests or food products, have been enacted to meet conditions as they rose, and in their execution imperfections have been discovered which the commissioner is endeavoring to have remedied by legislation. The conflicts of laws and courts, too, have made inoperative some of the regulations. The laws do not cover all the adulterations of articles offered for sale as food, and need simplification in the direction of latitude more than further specification of objects.

BUREAU OF LABOR.

The legislature of 1887, by chapter 115 of the General Laws of that year, established the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the duties of which were to be the gathering, compiling and publishing of statistics relating to wages, the condition of labor, and other social, economic, educational and financial subjects. The immediate cause, which, in Minnesota, as in other states, led to the establishment of this bureau, was the urgent demand on the part of organized labor.

The efforts put forth by the bureau thus created resulted in revealing to the public mind the important place occupied by labor in the realm of state economics. It was therefore deemed advisable to widen the scope of the bureau, increase its working force and otherwise add to its facilities for carrying out a work which had proven of great public benefit. Hence, the legislature of 1893 by new enactments added to the duties of gathering, compiling and publishing statistics those of factory inspection and enforcement of laws regarding labor and sanitary conditions in factories and workshops, and laws concerning railroads, child labor and workingmen's interests in general. The name of the bureau was changed from Bureau of Labor Statistics to Bureau of Labor.

Thereafter the work of the department naturally separated itself into two divisions,—one under the head of statistics, the other under that of inspection and labor law enforcement, the one continually reaching out for new facts, the other operating the instruments formed out of the knowledge thus ascertained.

The Bureau of Labor is unlike any other state department, in so far as its work does not consist in a series of routine duties to be performed according to established precedents. While its duties are in a measure outlined by the law which created it, the bureau must evolve its own plans and devise its own means for attaining the results aimed at by the law. It therefore follows that a very large latitude is left for the commissioner in charge in which to exercise his discretionary powers, and upon his wisdom and honesty of purpose in exercising this discretion depends the efficiency and utility of the work of the bureau.

Among the subjects taken up for investigation during the past years of the bureau are mortgage foreclosures and taxation, chattel mortgages and pawnbrokers' loans, the apprentice system, real estate mortgage indebtedness, redemption of mortgage foreclosures, and other subjects having more or less bearing on the labor interests of the state, as well as on the economic status of the citizens in general.

Undoubtedly the most valuable service of the bureau up to the present time has been its systematic inspection of factories and workshops with a view to look after the safety and comfort of employes, and for the purpose of checking, as far as practicable, the pernicious custom of employing child labor. These inspections have been the means of reducing to a marked degree the number of accidents and fatalities due to improperly guarded machinery, faulty apparatus, lack of fire escapes, etc., and have, besides, contributed largely to the health and comfort of employes by the enforcing of sanitary regulations. The number of inspections of this kind made by this department during the year 1898 alone numbered 1,607, and the beneficent results therefrom accruing to the employes of these establishments cannot be computed in dollars and cents.

As to child labor, it must be admitted that too much of it still exists, notwithstanding the efforts made by the Labor Bureau to minimize the evil. One gratifying result of the labors of this department in this direction is the almost total elimination of children under fourteen (14) years of age from workshops of every description; and the number of children employed between their fourteenth and sixteenth birthdays has been greatly reduced. As it is, scarcely any child under sixteen years of age is now employed in any establishment, unless an investigation, either on the part of the local school authorities or by the inspectors of the Labor Bureau, has revealed such justifying causes as are contemplated by the law for such employment.

Taken as a whole, the bureau has proved itself a great power for good, even throughout its experimental and developing stages, and there are grounds for believing that it can become still more potent for good by a strict and faithful adherence to the principles embodied in the law which created it.

RAILROAD DEPARTMENT.

On March 4, 1871, "An act to provide for the appointment of a railroad commissioner, and prescribing his duties," was approved by the governor, Horace Austin, who had advocated such measure in his message to the legislature. The powers of the commissioner, however, were very limited. The term of office was fixed at two years and the salary of the commissioner was placed at $3,000 per annum. A. J. Edgerton was the first railroad commissioner in this state, and he served as such until March, 1875.

By act of the legislature of March 6, 1874, a board of railroad commissioners was created, to consist of three members, appointed by the governor for a term of two years.

Among other powers conferred upon this board was the power "to make for each railroad corporation doing business in this state, on or before the 1st of August, 1874, a schedule of reasonable maximum rates." "Schedules so made or revised are to be deemed and taken in all courts of this state as prima facie evidence that the rates therein fixed are reasonable maximum rates of charges." A. J. Edgerton, W. R. Marshall and J. J. Randall were appointed commissioners under this act. In 1875 the legislature repealed the act of March 6, 1874, last above referred to, and provided for the election of a railroad commissioner with limited powers. W. R. Marshall was elected and served from Jan. 6, 1876, till Jan. 10, 1882, when he was succeeded by J. H. Baker.

The legislature of 1885 again created a board of railroad and warehouse commissioners to be appointed by the governor for a term of two years, one commissioner to be of the opposite political party to the governor. J. H. Baker, who had been reelected for a term of two years in 1884, was, by virtue of that fact, made one member of the new board, and George L. Becker and S. S. Murdock were appointed as the other two members. The powers and duties of the board in relation to the control of railroads were enlarged, and their duties were also increased by placing in their charge the supervision of the grain business at the terminal points,—St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth,—the establishment of "Minnesota grades" of grain, and the appointment of grain inspectors and weighers at the above named terminal points.

R. C. Burdick was appointed as the first chief grain inspector in August, 1885, and served till he resigned in November, 1886, when he was succeeded by J. A. James, whose term expired in April, 1889. The present incumbent, A. C. Clausen, was then appointed chief grain inspector.

The board of railroad and warehouse commissioners, appointed by Governor McGill in January, 1887, consisted of Horace Austin, John L. Gibbs and George L. Becker.

The legislature of 1887 passed an act for the regulation of common carriers, being chapter 10 of General Laws of 1887, which is now in force. By the terms of this act it is provided that the governor shall appoint in January, 1889, three commissioners (only two of whom shall be of the same political party), one for three years, one for two years and one for one year, and thereafter one commissioner shall be appointed annually for the term of three years. Salary is fixed at $3,000 per annum.

The railroad and warehouse commissioners appointed by Governor Merriam in January, 1889, were George L. Becker for three years, John L. Gibbs for two years, and John P. Williams for one year. In 1890 Mr. Williams was reappointed for a term of three years; Wm. M. Liggett, appointed in 1891, was reappointed in 1894; Ira B. Mills, was appointed in 1893 and reappointed in January, 1896; George L. Becker was reappointed in 1892 and 1895. On Nov. 16, 1896, Nathan Kingsley of Austin was appointed to succeed W. M. Liggett, resigned, and reappointed January, 1897. On Nov.

26, 1898, Nathan Kingsley resigned to accept appointment as judge of the district court in the Tenth judicial district. Ira B. Mills, whose term would have expired in January, 1899, was appointed to fill the vacancy, so that Mills' term will expire in January, 1900. P. M. Ringdal of Crookston was appointed commissioner in January, 1899, for the full term of three years.

For the same period there were inspected "on arrival" 167,104 cars of wheat, 14,123 cars of corn, 15,781 cars of oats, 4,746 cars of rye, 6,573 cars of barley and 11,414 cars of flaxseed, making a total of 219,741 carloads of all kinds.

There were inspected "out of store" for the same period as follows: Wheat, 60,899 cars and 29,939,352 bushels into vessels; coarse grain (including corn, oats, rye and barley), 11,542 cars and 11,984,044 bushels into vessels; flagseed, 198 cars and 4,823,874 bushels into vessels; a grand total "out of store" of 69,925 cars and 47,039,366 bushels into vessels. This indicates a gain in receipts over previous season of 9,130 carloads of wheat, 10,630 carloads of corn and 74 cars of rye. On the other hand, there was a decrease of 7,220 cars of barley, 4,178 cars of oats and 3,699 cars of flaxseed, resulting in a net gain in receipts of all kinds of grain amounting to 4,757 carloads.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The Minnesota Historical Society was organized under an act passed by the first session of the territorial legislature, in 1849, and is therefore the oldest institution in the state. Its objects are the collection, preservation, and publication of materials relating to the history of this state and the development of its resources; to collect biographic sketches and portraits of its pioneers and prominent citizens; to record their work in settling the state and building up its towns, cities, and institutions; to preserve an account of its Indian tribes; to gather a museum of articles illustrative of the conditions of the settlement and later history of Minnesota, of the aboriginal people who built the thousands of prehistoric mounds in this state, and of the tribes who were living here when the first white men reached this region; to collect and maintain, for the use of the public, a reference library of books, pamphlets, maps, and manuscripts, on the local and general history, resources, and development of Minnesota, of the United States, and the world; and to promote the knowledge of these subjects among the citizens of the state.

During the early years of the territory and state the society made little progress, beyond collecting a small library and publishing some pamphlets on historical subjects. In 1864 pecuniary aid from the state placed it on a more prosperous footing, and since that time it has steadily advanced, fulfilling important duties to the state. Its rooms are in the western half of the basement of the Capitol, and are open daily to the public from 8:30 A. M. to 5 P. M.

The library is now one of the largest and most valuable in the Northwest, and deserves a visit from every citizen interested in the diffusion of knowledge. It contains 30,238 bound and 32,208 unbound volumes, in total 62,446, all of which have been carefully selected and are practically valuable, some being very rare. American history and biography, and documents and records furnishing material for them, are the specialties of the library, but it has good works on almost every subject. Its department on Minnesota (and the Northwest generally) is almost complete; and it also comprises many books and pamphlets on the history of each state in the Union. It has the full series of the United States government publications, one of these series that is much consulted being the reports of the Patent Office, which fill six cases.

In the newspaper department, the society has complete files of all papers that have been and are being published in Minnesota, excepting a few unimportant ones. The number of our state newspapers, daily, weekly, and monthly, regularly received at the beginning of this year (1899), is 421, these being donated by the editors and publishers, who appreciate the importance of having them placed where they will be preserved for all coming time. On January 1, 1899, the library had 3,889 bound newspaper volumes, a priceless treasury of materials for future historians, showing the development of the state, and of its separate counties and townships, from their beginning to the present date. The newspaper collection is kept in an extensive fire-proof vault, which is a part of the society's rooms in the capitol. It is accessible to all who wish to consult it, and is so arranged that any paper of any date can be readily found.

Many portraits, historical pictures and framed documents, and the museum collections, are in the library rooms, and are of great interest to visitors. All the collections are free to the public for use and consultation, although books are not loaned away from the library.

The society has published eight volumes of Historical Collections, relating chiefly to Minnesota and the Northwest, which can be obtained at cost. It solicits written contributions from early settlers and others who can furnish valuable facts worthy of publication.

Membership in the society is open to any citizen interested in its objects. The executive council comprises thirty who are chosen from this membership, and, according to a statute of the state, the governor, lieutenant governor, and the four other elective officers of the executive departments of the state government, who are ex-officio councilors. The officers of the society are elected by the council for three years.

The society respectfully solicits contributions of everything relating to the history of the state and its people; books, pamphlets, files of newspapers, pictures, maps, manuscripts, articles for the museum; portraits of old settlers and their biographies; accounts of the settlement of every county and township of the state, etc. They should be addressed to the secretary.

BOARD OF GAME AND FISH COMMISSIONERS.

This board was created pursuant to an act of legislature approved April 20, 1891. "An act for the preservation, propagation and protection of the game and fish of the state." The board is known by the name of "The Board of Game and Fish Commissioners of the State of Minnesota," composed of five members, who are appointed by the governor, for the term of two years each. They serve without compensation.

The game department was added in the interests of those who were specially interested in that line. That the game—both fur and feather—of Minnesota is of such variety and quantity as to attract the attention of sportsmen and scientific men from all sections of the United States and Canada, is a well-known and authenticated fact. It was therefore deemed wise to thus early endeavor to provide, as far as possible, for its protection and preservation from a large and increasing class of lawless "pot hunters" from all the large cities of the country; who, knowing the quantity and variety of the game, birds and animals, to be obtained in the state, would flock here, in season and out, ruthlessly slaughtering them in immense quantities and shipping them to the Eastern markets. The traffic had grown to such enormous proportions that our legislature deemed it prudent to place such restraint and control over them as would preserve to its citizens the wealth that was thus being taken out of the state.

With this end in view, a new board, composed of representative sportsmen and business men, was created, and a game code enacted to enable them to accomplish the end desired. The duties of the old fish commission were made to devolve upon the new organization, and by it have since been performed. By the infusion of new ideas, many reforms have been instituted in the propagation and distribution of food fishes.

During the legislative session of 1893 the original law was so amended as to practically make a new game code. This was found necessary in consequence of the many impractical conditions of the old law. The new code was an entirely new departure in the matter of practical game protection, and it encountered great criticism and opposition in many quarters, but the board, through its executive agent and legal counsel, secured test cases on the most vital portions of the law and carried them to the supreme court of the state, and the law in its entirety was by that court sustained and declared constitutional, reasonable and good in every case presented to it, thus establishing for the state what it never before had had, a real game and fish law. But such a law, without efficient and zealous officials to enforce the same would be of no avail, and in the personnel of the board as at present constituted was found the material to make the good law effective, as is evidenced by the work accomplished by it since its organization.

The transportation companies doing business in the state had been advised by their legal departments that the law was one which could and would be enforced, and they consequently promptly recognized the justice of the requests made by this board, and gracefully and willingly aided the officials in the application of the law pertaining to the transportation and shipment of game and fish obtained in the state. The county officials of all degrees have also recognized their duty under this law, and have in most cases cheerfully assisted the wardens in the prosecution of their duties.

The worth of the work of this board is abundantly manifested when it is stated that during the year 1896 the shipments of game have been reduced at least fifty per cent from those of 1895, affording a saving to the state of some $50,000. These figures are from statistics secured from those engaged in the handling of game alone—demonstrating the wisdom in adding to the old board of fish commissioners the game department and placing in their care the game interests of the state, for, without the protection of the state, it will be but a short time ere the game will have entirely disappeared.

The fish hatcheries are situated on "Willowbrook," a beautiful stream which has its head in a series of clear and bountiful springs. The hatchery (Willowbrook) takes its name from this stream, and is located within the limits of the city of St. Paul.

The well chosen site is upon a terrace, secure above high-water mark of the Mississippi, and safe from danger of washout from any stream. The many large and copious springs upon the ground are utilized in the process of fish culture.

The abundant and pure sparkling water which gushes from a hundred fountains, cold and clear, is led by conduits to the various hatcheries and ponds, to the troughs and tanks, receptacles, jars and aquaria—in short, wherever needed, and is so controlled and managed by gates and shut-offs that superfluous streams are run down spawning races, forming little cascades and rivulets which lead sparkling over pebbly beds and gravelly reaches into ponds fashioned to simulate the natural trout pools of the country. The ponds, though all communicating, are springs so screened with wooden gratings as to separate the different kinds of fish, while permitting the free flow and continuous current of water to move everywhere throughout their length. The ponds are divided and subdivided into compartments, and in each may be seen fish of different species, different in size and age, from the newly hatched embryo to the patriarchal progenitor of many generations.

In the different pools may be seen fish of the following varieties: Native brook trout, California and rainbow trout, Loch Leven trout, Lake Superior trout, hybrid-salmi-brook trout, land locked salmon, California salmon, walleyed pike, white and yellow perch, black bass, King Lake trout, German scale, mirror, and leather carp, blue carp, tench, golden ide, gold carp, saibling, European brown trout, black spotted trout of Colorado, croppies and a variety known as "Albino trout."

The board have been greatly hampered in their work by lack of room and facilities for raising the young fish when hatched. So during 1893 they secured some twenty acres of ground adjoining the present hatchery, and have constructed seven ponds, in size about 35x90 feet, of irregular shapes, and so connected by a raceway 4x4 feet wide and over 400 feet in length, that the fish in any pond can be readily transferred to any other pond desired. The springs supplying the water for all purposes are first conducted to a main pond or reservoir 65x110 feet and from there distributed throughout the entire system of ponds, hatching houses, etc. Some twelve acres of land have been surveyed and laid out and provision made for eighteen ponds in which to breed and raise the young fish. The work of the Minnesota Game and Fish Commission is acknowledged to be of such a character that the results obtained place it in the very front rank of all states maintaining similar commissions.

There are four hatching houses fitted up with troughs, where the pearllike eggs lie nestled upon a gravelly bottom over which the sparkling water gently ripples, but whose limpid transparency permits the secrets of embryonic development to be seen and studied as no other vertebrate can be. In addition to these four hatcheries, is another house for whitefish and walleyed pike, whose eggs must be manipulated in a different manner from those of the trout.

In this latter hatching house there is a "battery of Chase-McDonald hatching jars," consisting of 200 jars, each jar capable of containing 100,000 pike eggs.

The current of water flowing into the jars imparts a gentle and continuous rotary motion to the eggs, which is necessary to their vitality. The same current carries away the bad eggs, which, being of less gravity, rise to the surface and are floated away.

The fishes as hatched are also moved forward by the gentle current into suitable troughs and tanks, where they are held until such time as is proper for their distribution. During the season of 1892, Supt. S. S. Watkins succeeded in obtaining a few white or "albino trout," and he carefully guarded these and managed to raise thirteen—three of which came to maturity, and from these he secured spawn, and to-day there are in the ponds fifty-seven of these novelties of the piscatorial family, ar in the hatching troughs 3,200 small specimens. This fish is a rarity, and a beauty, as well, the skin being a cream white, beautifully spotted with the pink spots of the native brook trout, the fins and eyes also being a shrimp pink. These are the only specimens of the kind known to exist. The process of spawning fish is intensely interesting, and at the periods when this branch of the work is in progress, a great many persons find their way to this institution. After the eggs are secured they are transferred to the hatchery at Willowbrook, where they are hatched and the fry distributed in the different lakes and streams throughout the state. Artificial black bass propagation has not been a success, but we believe we have solved the problem in stocking our lakes and streams with this king of our fresh water fish. It has been known for a long time that the Mississippi river and Lake Pepin have been natural breeding grounds for our game and food fish. Those fish go into the different sloughs along the river and lake, when the water overflows in the spring, and deposit their eggs where the young are hatched out. We have made it a practice during the past two years to seine those sloughs with a minnow seine, and during the season of 1898 we secured nearly one-half a million black bass fry, which would otherwise have died when the water receded. All this fry was planted where the commission considered the most good would be accomplished, and we expect to see good results therefrom in the future.

As an estimate of the value of those fish, the following will be of interest:

During the years 1897-98 we planted trout fry to the number of 3,000,700; probably 40 cent per cent of these fish attained the age of two years. Their weight should be then at least one-third of a pound each, or 1,000,200 pounds, worth thirty cents a pound, or $300,000 in round numbers. Wall-eyed pike fry was planted to the number of 97,000,150; probably 33 per cent of these reached the age of two years. Their weight should then be one pound each, or 29,400,000 pounds in round numbers, worth five cents a pound, or $1,470,000, a very creditable addition to the resources of the state.

In one of the hatching houses is located the collection of birds that was on exhibition at the World's Fair in Chicago. This is a nucleus for a fine collection which this board hopes to complete in due course of time.

Lake of the Woods, on our northern boundary, lies in both the United States and in Canadian territory. It is a most charming body of water, is thickly studded with islands, large and small, estimated at 12,000 in number. The islands are all timbered, but the quality is nearly worthless.

These islands are all in Canadian territory except two, which lie in the "Big Traverse," as the lower or open part of the lake is termed. This portion of the lake is in the United States territory, and is a part of this state. The "Big Traverse" is an open body of water 40x45 miles, and is shallow, the greatest depth of water being only about fifty feet. Here is the great feeding and breeding grounds of the fish that inhabit these waters, and where the most fishing is carried on and where the fishermen obtain the best results for their labor.

THE STATE LAW LIBRARY.

The state law library was organized by an act of the legislative council of 1851. The purpose of that act was to create a library for the collection and preservation of all books, papers, maps, charts, engravings, paintings, and other things of whatsoever nature, properly belonging to a library, but the granting of state aid to the Historical Society in 1864 rendered much of this superfluous.

For many years, therefore, the state library has been devoted exclusively to the collection and preservation of public documents, and books, reports, journals, magazines and pamphlets devoted to the law. Along this line it is undoubtedly one of the most serviceable libraries in the West, the number of volumes at present aggregating nearly 27,000. The capitol fire in 1888 resulted in the loss of many valuable numbers, but, fortunately, these, with but few exceptions, have been replaced.

The present apartments of the library are in two large rooms on the second floor of the capitol, directly adjoining the rooms of the state supreme court; but, although the quarters appear large, they are by no means adequate for a proper arrangement of the books.

The library is in charge of a librarian appointed by the governor for a term of two years, and an assistant appointed by the librarian for a like term.

The judges of the supreme court exercise a general supervision over the library and have authority to purchase such books as may be necessary and cannot be obtained through exchanges. The supreme court reports of the various states are mainly obtained through the exchange of Minnesota reports therefor; likewise the session laws, and in some cases the digests and statutes. Standard law books and statute laws and reports of states that cannot be obtained by exchange are the only books purchased.

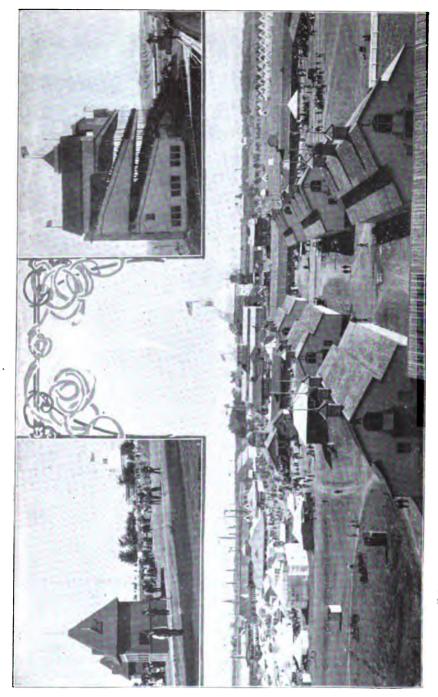

During the past two years 757 volumes were added to the library by purchase and 1,367 by exchange, the average number received each year being in the neighborhood of 1,000 volumes.

While most of these are law books and reports, many of them are documents of a character that give the library great value for statistical reference.

Under the rules the library is free for the examination of any volume. From thirty to fifty use it daily.

STATE DEPARTMENT OIL INSPECTION.

This department has now been working six years under the act of the legislature of 1892. The changes then made necessary in the law on account of the changed conditions of the crude oil and manner of treating the same has proven wise legislation, and the inspection has since been attended without the least friction between the oil companies or the people of the state and the inspection department; and, for the first time in many years, the gasoline clause in the law has been rigidly enforced, and has done much to reduce the number of accidents which would otherwise have occurred from this highly explosive fluid, though no law can be enacted which will entirely do away with the danger incident to the handling and use of gasoline.

The present law was drawn up by Attorney General Childs and H. W. Foote, then inspector, and became a law by nearly unanimous vote of the legislature of 1893. F. C. Barrows was appointed inspector to succeed Mr. Foote, January, 1897, who, in turn, was succeeded by Julius J. Heinrich, appointed January, 1899.

MINNESOTA STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Minnesota State Agricultural Society dates its corporate existence from the year 1868, although for many years previous to that date, even into the territorial days, a society had been in existence, covering the main features of the present organization. By the law of 1867 (chapter 21, an act relating to the organization of agricultural societies) the state reorganized the state society by providing an annual appropriation of $1,000 for its encouragement. The constitution provided that its object should be the promotion of agriculture, horticulture and mechanic arts. The annual fairs of the society were held in different localities, with varying financial success, until 1885, when the county of Ramsey offered to convey to the State of Minnesota forever 200 acres of land adjoining the city limits of St. Paul, for the purpose of exhibiting thereon, under the management of the state agricultural society, or its successors, annually, the agriculture, stock-breeding, horticultural, mining, mechanical, industrial and other products and resources of the State of Minnesota, including proper exhibits of the arts, sciences and all other public displays pertinent to or attendant upon exhibitions and expositions of human art, industry or skill. The legislature met this munificent donation with the same liberal spirit that characterized the tender, and appropriated $100,000 for permanent improvements. The board of managers proceeded at once to erect such buildings as were necessary for holding the first exhibition on the new grounds, but it was found that, despite the most careful management, the grounds could not be put in condition for the use of the society without a greater expense than had been anticipated. The total expenditures for improvements aggregated $131,319, and the amount beyond the $100,000 was advanced by public-spirited citizens of St. Paul and Minneapolis. During 1886 further expenditures, equal to $34,074, were incurred, and the state was again appealed to, and in 1887 an appropriation of $50,000 was made.

In 1887 the state society was reorganized by act of legislature, approved March 3d, the membership to be composed of the following members:

First—Three delegates from each of the county and district agricultural societies.

Second—Honorary life members, who, by reason of eminent services in agriculture, or in the arts and sciences connected therewith, or of long and faithful services in the society, or of benefits conferred upon it, may, by a two-thirds vote at any of its annual meetings, be elected as such.

Third—The president ex-officio of the State Horticultural Society, the Amber Cane Society, the State Dairymen's Association, the State Forestry Association, the Southern Minnesota Fair Association, the State Poultry Association, the State Bee Keepers' Association, and the president and secretary of the Farmers' Alliance.

Fourth—The president of any society having for its object the promotion of any branch of agriculture, stock raising or improving, or mechanics relating to agriculture, provided such societies shall maintain an active existence, hold an annual fair and pay out for premiums as much money as they receive by annual appropriation from the state.

The annual meeting of the society occurs in St. Paul on the second Tuesday in January each year and continues for three days, the election of officers occurring upon the last day of the session. A president and two vice presidents are elected to serve for one year and two managers to serve for three years, at each annual meeting. The state appropriates $4,000 annually to aid in paying premiums. It should perhaps be stated in this connection that the state also appropriates $14,000 annually to aid in premium payments at county and other fairs and exhibitions complying with the provisions of the

The Minnesota State Agricultural Society is in a prosperous, growing condition. Minnesota is an agricultural state, and the management is giving as much prominence as possible to agricultural interests in the annual exhibitions. Large premiums are offered for live stock and for all classes of farm products. Each year there is marked increase in the variety and magnitude of exhibits, resulting in a largely increased interest and attendance at the fairs. MINNESOTA STATE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Minnesota State Horticultural Society, incorporated under the laws of the state, has for its work the gathering and dissemination of horticultural knowledge adapted to Minnesota, pertaining to forestry, fruit and vegetable growing, the culture of flowers, etc. It is not a money-making institution and has no other purpose than as defined above.

The present working membership of the society consists of over 700 of the most active and wide-awake professional and amateur horticulturists throughout the Northwest.

This society holds annual summer and winter meetings, at which fruits, vegetables, flowers, etc., are exhibited, papers and reports read on horticultural topics, and the personal opinions of the members secured in the discussions which follow.

Different committees, selected from the members, have special charge of investigations in the various branches of horticulture, and a number of trial stations in different parts of the state, under the charge of members, are making practical tests of everything new and desirable. The reports made by these committees and by the superintendents of the trial stations, along with the papers and discussions and other information of value, are compiled by the secretary and printed at the expense of the state. The society receives also from the same source a small annual appropriation to assist in carrying on its work.

REPORTS.

The report of the society is issued as a monthly magazine, entitled, "The Minnesota Horticulturist." At the close of the year the twelve magazines are bound together as the annual report of the society for distribution, post-paid without extra charge, to members at the beginning of the next year. All subscriptions to this magazine expire with the December number, and all numbers for the current year issued prior to the date of subscription will be sent free, postpaid.

Any person may become a member of this society for the current year by payment of the annual fee of $1, which pays also for the magazine, a handsome cloth-bound copy of the annual report of the society, 530 pages (referred to above), sent postpaid, and all the other privileges of membership for the year. There are no assessments or fees to pay other than as above. This society should include in its membership roll the name of every one in the state in any way interested in horticulture. The expense is small compared to the benefits received, and every person who buys or plants flowers, fruits, trees or vegetables in Minnesota would be immensely the gainer by becoming a member.

The life membership fee is $10, payable in two annual installments of $5 each, if preferred. Life members will receive a handsome lithograph certificate of membership, suitable for framing. They are entitled to all the privileges of the society, including its publications, during life; and to a file of the back reports, as complete as possible (some twenty volumes), constituting an invaluable horticultural library.

STATE FORESTRY ASSOCIATION.

On Jan. 11, 1876, a number of prominent citizens of the state, interested in the cause of forestry, met at the state capitol and perfected the organization of the above-named society, which was incorporated under the laws of the state in November of the same year.

The association labors for the encouragement and promotion of tree planting on the open prairie, the conservation, management and renewal of our forests, and the advancement of any kindred measures or influences that affect our welfare or tend to promote these objects.

Hon. E. F. Drake, Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, Gen. Geo. L. Becker, ex-Gov. W. R. Marshall, Col. J. H. Stevens, Hon. S. M. Owen and Capt. J. N. Cross, in turn, have filled the position as president of the society.

Up to 1883 the work was very ably carried forward by its efficient promoter and secretary, Leonard B. Hodges, whose untimely death was a serious set-back for the association and its plans. The following three or four years very little active work was performed by the society, until Mr. C. L. Smith took up the duties as secretary, in 1887, carrying them forward very creditably. In connection with the Farmers' Institute, corps lectures were delivered and forestry literature distributed, which, together with other work, gave the society an impetus, from which time on it has steadily gained ground, until it now holds a firmer footing than at any time in its existence.

During the past twenty-three years the association has received aid from the state to the extent of $20,500. The present legislature has been asked for an appropriation of $1,500 annually for its support.

Minnesota's forestry exhibit at the World's Fair, under the auspices of the Forestry Association, ranked among the best, and a special award was given it. It has been re-erected in its original form in one of the buildings at the state fair grounds.

At the time of organization and ever since there has been a constant demand for information on the subject of tree culture, particularly from the prairie sections. The "Tree Culture Act" of 1873 largely accounted for this, and from time to time "Tree Planters' Manuals" and other timely and practical literature have been issued as demand warranted. The past two years this work has been made far more efficient by the issuing of articles to the public press, and at present nearly 100 publications are utilizing them. Thereby many thousands of readers are brought in touch with forestry literature that otherwise would not be reached.

By far the best publication the society has ever issued is its recent one, entitled "Forestry in Minnesota," by Prof. S. B. Green, professor of horticulture and forestry in the university. Ten thousand copies were issued, and from appearances it will be very necessary to order a reprint. It is, doubtless, one of the best and most concise works on the subject ever published. Many schools and colleges have already introduced it either as a text-book or for a reference work, and indorsements of its value have been received from many of the most prominent educators in the country. It is a book that should be in the hands of every citizen of the state.

The condition and position of our forest areas, without doubt, exert great influences on the welfare of every individual, directly or indirectly, and these important questions deserve consideration on the part of each and every one of our citizens. Of late years questions bearing on the perpetuity of our lumber industry, conservation of moisture, and tree planting in general have received well merited attention from every source, and are being agitated as never before.

Any person can become a member of the association upon the payment of a fee of one dollar to the secretary. Members are entitled to copies of the publications of the society as issued, which matter is also sent free to residents of the state upon receipt of postage.

THE MINNESOTA DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

The Minnesota Dairymen's Association (incorporated March 2, 1882,) was organized Feb. 7, 1878, for the purpose of improving the Minnesota stock and dairy products, by holding an annual meeting of the representatives of these interests, and the distribution of literature on such subjects among the people of the state. They were encouraged by the offer of premiums on butter, cheese and dairy cattle by the State Agricultural Society, and by a small fund from the state for the same purpose, but from a lack of funds none of the proceedings were published until 1885, which edition was very valuable and was soon exhausted. In 1893 the legislature appropriated $500 per year for two years for the publication of their reports, and in 1895 made a permanent appropriation of $2,000 annually for such publication, and to aid in making the association more beneficial. The last publication for 1808 contains 315 pages of very valuable, up-to-date information in the shape of papers and discussions, and there is no doubt that the work of this organization has been of inestimable value in building up our grand system of diversified agriculture, with dairying as the keystone.

By statute the president elected in 1896 is made a member of the Farmers' Institute board for three years, and he is also ex-officio a member of the State Agricultural Society.

This association now holds one annual meeting, which is largely attended, and at which good premiums are given for creamery and dairy butter and cheese. Over twenty smaller meetings were held in 1897, in an effort to reach those who do not attend the annual meeting and where encouragement was needed to build up the dairy interests. This same missionary work, as it were, is still being carried on.

MINNESOTA STATE BUTTER AND CHEESE MAKERS' ASSOCIATION.

This association was organized in the fall of 1894, and comes under the head of agricultural societies, its special object being to advance the dairy interests of the state and to improve the quality of Minnesota dairy products. It holds an annual meeting, and pays premiums on butter and cheese exhibited, and participates in the appropriation allowed by the state for the encouragement of such organizations. To become eligible to a full membership, a person must be an active butter or cheese maker, having had at least a year's experience in the business. All officers of this association are ex-officio members of the State Agricultural Society and the State Dairymen's Association.

THE MINNESOTA STATE FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

The work of the State Farmers' Institute began in 1887. It is controlled by what is termed the board of administration. At present this board consists of six members, three of whom are chosen from the board of regents. The other three are the respective presiding officers of the State Agricultural Society, the State Horticultural Society, and the State Dairy Association. This work is under the immediate direction of Mr. O. C. Gregg, who has been the superintendent of farmers' institutes since they were first organized in the state. The feeling of hostility which at first was manifested toward the work of the institutes in many sections of the state has entirely disappeared, as witnessed in the eagerness of the farmers in the different counties to have institutes held in their midst, in the crowds which attend the meetings, and in the kind utterances that are heard on every hand regarding the utility of the work.

The chief aim of the institutes is to disseminate information among the farmers that will be helpful to them in the prosecution of their work. This information relates to every phase of farm life. The discussions at the institutes cover the whole ground of live-stock keeping. They treat of such questions as the growing of field and garden crops, trees, wind-breaks, orchards and small fruits. They consider the various questions pertaining to tillage, the maintenance of fertility and the fighting of insect foes, and they give special attention to all matters pertaining to mixed husbandry in crop production, and also in the growing of live stock and live-stock products.

In selecting the various members of the institute corps it is the aim of the superintendent to secure the best. None are chosen save those who are recognized as experts in their respective lines of work. The best only will satisfy the requirements of the standard set for the work that is to be done on the institute platforms, and in choosing the members of the corps country or creed are not taken into the account. The one consideration is to secure men who will do the work required of them in the most efficient manner.

The statute bearing upon the number of institutes that must be held fixes the same at forty per year as the minimum. More than the number called for are held every year. The institutes held in the winter, from November to April, usually last for two days, and those held in the summer, between seed time and harvest, usually continue but for one day.

The attendance at the institute is phenomenally large, and it would seem to increase every year. To bring a crowd together has long since ceased to be a question for consideration. The chief concern now is to secure a place in which to hold the meetings that will be sufficiently commodious. During the past winter, notwithstanding the severity of the weather, many who came to the institutes were unable to gain access to the meetings.

Reports of the addresses given and of the discussions growing out of them are drawn up by one of the members of the corps. These are then multiplied and a copy is forwarded for publication to each paper published in the county within which the institute is held. The information imparted at each institute is thus made to reach a large number of farmers who may have been unable to attend the sessions of the institute.

An annual of some 400 pages is prepared every year for distribution among the farmers. The subject-matter in this annual bears upon many of the phases of what may be termed every-day agriculture. None but experts are asked to contribute to its pages. The various articles have especial reference to the requirements of the farmers of the state and of farming within the same. The book is handsomely illustrated and twenty thousand copies are issued every year. A copy of the annual is given to every farmer who attends the opening session of the institute. In this way the annual is made accessible to not fewer than 100,000 readers within the state every year. No more important work is accomplished by the institutes than the distribution of this annual.

The good seed of agriculture which is thus being sown throughout the land cannot fail to take root downward and to bear fruit upward. The information reaches the people through so many channels that it is virtually accessible to a very large proportion of the rural population. If it could be made to reach them all the benefits resulting would be proportionately greater than they are.

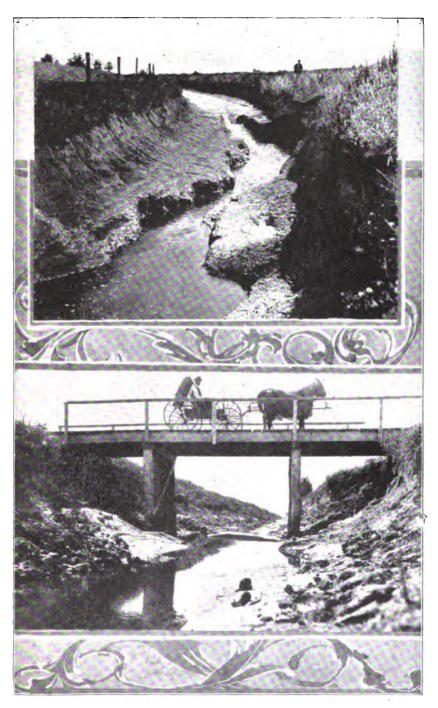

There is not a feature of farm life and of farm work that has not felt the beneficent touch of farmers' institute work. We see it in the 650 creameries and more that are now operated in our state and in the marked improvement of the average cow that furnishes milk for the same. It is manifest in the strides that have been made in growing beef and mutton in the state and in fattening the same during the more recent years. There are evidences of it in the strides that our farmers are making from year to year in the direction of a more intelligent and diversified production of crops. The fruits of the same are manifest in the great rush of students towards the school of agriculture, the outcome in no small degree of the liberal advertising that was given to the school in past years from the institute platform. There are traces of it in the lessened relative export of food stuffs from and manufactured within the state, and in the increased proportion of these that are being fed within our borders. And those benefits may be seen in improvement all along the line of farm practice, and to an extent that promises in the near future to place our agriculture in the very front rank when compared with that of other states.

THE RED RIVER VALLEY DRAINAGE COMMISSION.

The Red River Valley Drainage Commission was organized pursuant to chapter 221, General Laws of 1893, in August of the same year, by the election of Ezra Valentine as president. By law the board is composed of the governor, secretary of state and one person to be selected by the chairman of the board of county commissioners of Wilkin, Clay, Norman, Polk, Marshall, Kittson, Grant and Traverse counties, and one person to be selected by the Great Northern Railway Company. The sum of $100,000 was appropriated to begin the work. The total amount appropriated by the legislature of the state is $157,500 and the amount donated by the Great Northern Railway Company $25,000, making a total of all moneys received for this work, $182,500. Out of this money, with the exception of $3.335.91 still remaining, there have been constructed the following ditches:

DRAINAGE DITCHES BUILT BY STATE.

From the above table it is to be seen that out of the total amounts received by the commission $162,412.62 was expended in actual construction of ditches, being 90 per cent of the entire amount received for this work. A record that is not likely to be approached by any state in contract work.

Since 1893 the state has been engaged in the construction of these ditches which are located in the Red River Valley, and whose function is to furnish a speedy removal of the waters of spring freshets and severe summer rains. These ditches take the water from a point twelve to fifteen miles to the east of the Red river and carry it toward the west over a very gently sloping area and deliver it into coulies or old water courses three to five miles from the Red river. This tract of land is about ten miles wide, and the length of the valley is so flat that but few natural streams have been able to maintain open channels across it. The small current produced by this slope (one to three feet per mile) is not sufficient to carry the sediment or keep down the vegetation, and thus many streams on approaching this level tract spread their waters over the prairie, and, after weeks of sluggish flow, finally reach the Red river.

These ditches have greatly assisted this flow of storm water to an outfall, but the same action that obliterated the earlier water courses, if indeed there were any, set in at once and threatened to seriously impair the usefulness of these artificial rivers.

The growth of weeds and sedges and the filling up by sedimentation are the most threatening dangers to the continued efficiency of these channels. Two seasons' use was sufficient to develop these harmful tendencies.

To protect its own property, costing nearly $200,000, and to insure to this valley the continued beneficial effects of these ditches by keeping them open water courses, the legislature of 1897 created the and provided that it should have the care and supervision of all the state ditches; should inspect them each year and report their condition and needed repair to the several counties in which the ditches are located, the county in such case to make such repair at its own expense. Pursuant to this act a commission was appointed, consisting of George R. Roberts of Stephen, chairman; E. D. Childs of Crookston, and W. R. Hoag, C. E., of Minneapolis. secretary.

There are about 125 miles of these ditches, varying in length from two to fourteen miles, scattered in nine counties in the Red River Valley. They are from four to eight feet deep and from twenty to forty feet wide.

During the past two years all these ditches have been inspected throughout their length, as required by law, and the repairs recommended by the commission have, for the most part, been attended to by the counties.

The inspection of this commission has not only served to check, upon its first appearance, the vegetable growth, but it has been helpful in creating a favorable sentiment towards drainage projects in the valley by the county.

With the continued action of these ditches, which it is the purpose of the commission to insure, all this land, once water-soaked and unsuited for cultivation, is rapidly becoming as productive as any land in the state, and thus is being yearly added large wheat areas to the already famous home of "No. I Hard."

COMMISSIONER OF STATISTICS.

This office has been in existence since 1870. As constituted since 1887, the duties of the commissioner are confined to the gathering and compiling of agricultural statistics.

The farm statistics gathered by this department, although not as perfect as they ought to be, mainly through the indifference and carelessness of township assessors, and sometimes the neglect of county auditors, have an approximate value of great interest to the state, in showing the trend of certain farm industries and in giving a basis of figuring from which to obtain a money value as to the agricultural resources of the state. The annual reports of the commissioner contain an array of figures well worth analyzing by the political economist.

MINNESOTA STATE BOARD OF HEALTH AND VITAL STATISTICS.

Minnesota was the third state to organize a board of health. This board has now been in existence twenty-seven years. The states preceding Minnesota in the organization of a board of health were Massachusetts (1859) and California (1870).

The first state boards of health had only advisory power, but circumstances seemed to demand executive power as well, in order to deal successfully with infectious diseases, and this was granted later.

In 1883 the laws governing the Minnesota board were again modified (chapter 132), and it is under this change that it is now operating.

In 1885 a law was passed (chapter 200) "to prevent the spread of contagious or infectious diseases among cattle, horses and other domestic animals." This law was displaced in 1897 by a new law (chapter 233), entitled "An act to prevent the spread of contagious and infectious diseases among domestic animals in this state."

Other laws, under the control of the State Board of Health, are found: In 1885 (chapter 222), regulating offensive trades and employments; (chapter 225) to prevent the pollution of rivers and sources of water supply; also, in the laws of 1887 (chapter 114), to provide for the collection of vital statistics; also, in the laws of 1897 (chapter 133), relating to the posting of quarantine notices and (chapter 47) relating to the spread of diseases among swine.

In the effort to control infectious diseases of men and infectious diseases of animals are 1,828 local boards throughout the state, working under the supervision of the state board. Of these forty-five are in cities, four in boroughs, 335 in villages, while for country districts the various town boards of supervisors constitute the local boards of health and the chairman is ex-officio the acting health officer.

Up to 1896 the bacteriological and chemical work of the board had been carried on by its secretary, Dr. Chas. N. Hewitt. It was then felt that this work had assumed such importance as to demand special attendance, and, consequently, following the appointment of Dr. F. F. Wesbrook as a member of the board in January, 1896, he was made its bacteriologist and later (Jan. 30, 1897,) director of the bacteriological laboratory. The demands upon this laboratory have increased rapidly, for it is engaged in the diagnosis and investigation of infectious diseases of animals as well as of infectious diseases of men.

Following the appointment of Dr. M. H. Reynolds as a member of the board in January, 1897, and after the passage of the new laws relating to infectious diseases of animals, he was made director of the veterinary department of the State Board of Health, thus placing infectious diseases of animals where they properly belonged, under the control of a veterinarian, and at the same time doing away with the necessity of creating a state veterinary department.

The work of the board has thus grown markedly within the past few years and has opportunities still before it of increased usefulness.

STATE BOARD OF MEDICAL EXAMINERS.

This board derives its existence from chapter 9 of the General Laws of 1887, and as amended in 1895. The board is composed of nine members, three of whom are homeopathic physicians. Members are appointed by the governor to serve for a term of three years. No member shall serve for more than two terms in succession, and no member so appointed shall be a member of the faculty of any college or university having a medical department. The object of the board is to license physicians to practice within the state, and for that purpose public examinations are held quarterly at the capitol; and a license can only be granted by the consent of not less than seven members of the board. Candidates must present evidence that they have attended four full courses of lectures at a medical college. The expenses of the board are provided for by fees required of applicants. The object of this board is not alone to license physicians, but its duty is also to punish persons violating the provisions of "An act to regulate the practice of medicine in the State of Minnesota." Midwives are examined and licensed by this board. The legislators of this state claimed the right of the state to protect its citizens against incompetent medical practitioners and charlatans. Minnesota enjoys the proud distinction of being one of the pioneer states of our Union to enact such laws.

STATE BOARD OF PHARMACY.

This board was called into existence by chapter 147 of the General Laws of 1885, as amended by chapter 104, General Laws, 1891,* which provides that it shall be unlawful for any person other than a registered pharmacist to retail, compound or dispense drugs, medicines or poisons, or to institute or conduct any pharmacy, store or shop for retailing, compounding or dispensing drugs, medicines or poisons, unless such person shall be a registered pharmacist, or shall employ or place in charge of said pharmacy, store or shop a registered pharmacist within the full meaning of the act of the legislature. The governor appoints the board from a list of five respectable pharmacists, to be elected by the Minnesota State Pharmaceutical Association, an organization incorporated in 1883, under the general laws of the state, as the Minnesota Pharmaceutical Association, and amending the title in 1885 to include the word "state." This society has done good service in protecting the public against ignorant and unskilled compounders of drugs and medicines.

The state university has established a department of pharmacy which promises to be successful; besides, there are private schools, so that students now have ample opportunity to secure a good pharmaceutical education within the limits of the state.

The expenses of the board are met by a small fee for the annual renewal of registration.

STATE BOARD OF DENTAL EXAMINERS.

The Minnesota State Dental Association was incorporated in 1884, the object being to contribute to the elevation of the dental profession by encouraging a full and liberal interchange of opinions in methods and practice and to advance the standard of dental education. In 1885, the legislature (chapter 199, Gen. Laws, 1885,) recognized the society by providing for a board of dental examiners and authorizing the preparation of a dental code, or examination, and the right to issue certificates and registration, and prohibiting the practice of dentistry by all persons not holding certificates. The legislature of 1887 (chapter 19, Gen. Laws, 1887,) repealed the act of 1885, and enacted a more stringent law governing the practice of dentistry, which law is now in force. This board is entirely independent of the state dental association, except that the latter has the right to present the names of twice as many members of the society as are to be appointed by the governor to fill vacancies in the board. The college of dentistry in connection with the state university has prospered, and is now a permanent department of the university.

STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS IN LAW.

In 1891 an act was passed by the legislature to establish a uniform standard of admission to the bar of this state. By this act (chapter 36, General Laws 1891,) a board was created consisting of one person from each congressional district for a term of three years, said member to be appointed by the justices of the supreme court.

The board elects its own officers, with headquarters at St. Paul. Board holds at least three meetings a year, time to be determined by board. The examination fee is fifteen dollars.

BUREAU OF PUBLIC PRINTING.

The public printing for the State of Minnesota is under the control of commissioners of printing, comprising the secretary of state, state auditor and state treasurer. Biennially the commissioners elect a superintendent of printing, whose duty it is to receive orders for all the printing, binding, and manufacture of blank books for the various departments of the state; place the same with contractors for the respective classes of printing; supervise the work; receive and audit accounts of contractors, and issue orders in settlement therefor; to keep an account of printing and binding with contractors, and with the various state departments.

The public printing is divided into five classes, and let by the commissioners of printing by contract to the lowest bidder, sufficient bonds being required of contractors for faithful performance of the work.

Accounts for printing are kept with each department, and annually the secretary of state makes a report of the same to the governor, and through him to the legislature.

The expense of printing for the biennial period from Aug. 1, 1896, to Aug. 1, 1898, was $113,912.85.

The Minnesota Society for the Prevention of Cruelty was organized Oct. 21, 1869, for the purpose of preventing cruelty to animals throughout the State of Minnesota. It was recognized by the legislature of 1889 (chapter 209, Gen. Laws) amending the penal code, authorizing any agent or officer of this society to interfere to prevent the perpetration of any act of cruelty, and may use force therefor, and may summon bystanders to assist. He has also authority to destroy any animal found abandoned and not properly cared for, appearing in the judgment of two reputable citizens to be glandered, injured or diseased past recovery for any useful purpose. For the general purposes of prevention of cruelty the officers of this society have the powers of constables, sheriffs or police officers. The local societies, organized under the care of the parent society, are generally doing efficient work in the cities, and inhuman drivers of horses in the public streets have a wholesome dread of the officers.

Presidents of local cooperating societies are es-officio vice presidents of the state society.

THE GEOLOGICAL AND NATURAL HISTORY SURVEY.

The Geological and Natural History Survey of the state is the proper agent through which all matters relating to the natural features and resources of the state should find expression, and it is the recipient and custodian of all specimens, maps, field notes, correspondence and other information relating to the same which may come into the possession of the state. It is equipped and ready to undertake any examination into any of the features of the state which the legislature may wish.

The principal officers of this survey are the following professors of the state university.

N. H. Winchell, State Geologist, appointed 1872.

Conway MacMillan, State Botanist, appointed 1891.

Henry F. Nachtrieb, State Zoölogist, appointed 1891.

William R. Hoag, State Topographer, appointed 1892.

The headquarters of the survey are at the university, Minneapolis, where it has offices and laboratories.

STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

The State Board of Equalization is composed of the governor, auditor of state and attorney general, with one qualified elector not a member of any county board of equalization, from each judicial district of the state, to be appointed by the governor (as provided by the tax law), and meets annually on the first day of September, for the purpose of examining the returns of the assessment of personal and real property, and to equalize the same, so that all taxable property in the state shall be assessed at its true and full value.

SURVEYORS OF LOGS AND LUMBER.

The districts for the survey and scaling of logs and lumber of the state are divided as follows:

First District.—On Lake St. Croix and tributaries, with office at Still-water.

Second District.—The Mississippi river and tributaries between Lake St. Croix and the Little Fork and Big Fork rivers and their tributaries, with office at Minneapolis.

Third District.-*

Fourth District.—The Mississippi and tributaries between the foot of Lake Pepin and southern boundary of Wabasha county, with office at Minneiska.

Fifth District.—All the waters tributary to Lake Superior and all the waters in the counties of St. Louis, Lake and Cook, except Little Fork river, with office at Duluth.

Sixth District .-- *

Seventh District.—The Red river, Red lake, Lake of the Woods, Rainy lake and tributaries, with office at Crookston.

^{*}No inspectors appointed for this district. Practically not in existence any more.

The duties of these officers are to scale and record the logs that are cut in the lumber regions and floated into the streams, for the purpose of determining the ownership and to facilitate the transfer of the same to purchasers, and also to record liens, mortgages and bills of sale that may be filed against any portion of the logs registered. The several surveyors are required to report biennially to the legislature the total number of feet of logs and lumber surveyed in their respective districts.

BOARD OF PARDONS.

John Lind	Governor
CHAS. M. START	Chief Justice of the Supreme Court
W. B. Douglas	Attorney General

The Board of Pardons was created by chapter 23 of the General Laws of 1897, and consists of the governor, chief justice of the supreme court and the attorney general. Said board has the power to grant pardons and to commute the sentence of any person convicted of any offense against the laws of this state; to hold regular meetings on the second Mondays of January, April, July and October of each year, and such other meetings as may be deemed expedient. All meetings of the board are held in the governor's office at the capitol or at such other place as may be ordered by the board. All applications for clemency shall be made in writing, addressed to the Board of Pardons, and shall be signed by the convict or some person in his behalf. The governor's private secretary, or, in his absence, the executive clerk, shall be and act as clerk of the board.

STATE BOARD OF ARBITRATION AND CONCILIATION.

JOHN B. ATWATER, President (recommended by other two members),

Minneapolis

Minneapolis

The State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation was created under the provisions of chapter 170, General Laws of 1897. The board consists of three persons who are appointed biennially by the governor, one of whom shall be an employer of labor, one selected from some bona fide trade union, and the third appointed upon the recommendation of the other two, who shall be neither an employe nor an employer of skilled labor, if the two first fail to agree in making a nomination for a third member before the expiration of ten days, the governor then to make appointment without such recommendation. Whenever any controversy or difference arises between any employer and his employes, the board shall, upon application being made to it, investigate the dispute, and advise both parties what ought to be done to adjust the controversy.

STATE BOARD OF INVESTMENT.

The state board for the investment of the proceeds from sales of state lands consists of the governor, state auditor, state treasurer, chief justice of the supreme court, and the president of the board of regents of the state university. (Section 4005, Statutes of Minnesota, 1894, and section 10, chapter 163, General Laws, 1895.)

This board controls the investment of the trust funds in the state treasury, and no purchase or disposition of securities can be made without its favorable action.

The governor, auditor and treasurer constitute a board that has entire charge of the loaning of school and university funds to counties, cities, villages, townships and school districts, as provided in chapter 83, General Laws, 1897.

STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS OF BARBERS.

Chapter 186 of the General Laws of 1897 makes it unlawful for any person to follow the occupation of barber in this state unless he shall have first obtained his certificate of registration, to be granted by the board of examiners created by this act. This board consists of three persons, appointed by the governor, one member from those persons who may be recommended by the several unions and journeymen barbers in this state which have been in actual existence at least two years; one member who has been for at least three years an employing barber in this state; and the third a practical barber, who has been for at least five years engaged in such occupation in this state. Said members serve for two years, and shall give a bond, to be approved by the secretary of state. The compensation shall be three dollars per day for actual service and mileage. Said compensation and mileage shall be paid out of money received for licenses issued. This board holds public examinations at least four times each year in four different cities in this state.

STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS OF PRACTICAL PLUMBING.

This board was created by chapter 319 of the General Laws of this state for 1897. This is an act to prevent incompetent persons from working as journeymen plumbers or conducting the business of plumbing in any city having a population of 10,000 inhabitants or more which has a system of sewer or water works. The governor appoints, biennially, five persons, who shall constitute said board, two of whom shall be master plumbers engaged in the plumbing business, two of whom shall be journeymen plumbers, and the fifth to be one of the plumbing inspectors of any first-class city.

This board shall hold public examinations at least four times a year, and make examinations as to the competency and qualifications to work at the plumbing business, and upon being satisfied that the persons so examined are competent, shall grant certificates which will entitle the holders to conduct and engage in the business of plumbing. Fees for these certificates are three dollars, and one dollar for renewal thereof. The commissioners serve without compensation. This board is required to make biennial reports to the governor as to the condition of the board on or about the first day of February.

HORSESHOERS' BOARD OF EXAMINERS.

The Horseshoers' Board of Examiners was called into existence by chapter 128 of the General Laws of 1897. This board consists of five members, appointed by the governor for a term of five years, of which two members are to be master horseshoers and two members thereof journeymen horseshoers and one a veterinarian. This board holds sessions for the purpose of examining applicants to practice horseshoeing, at least once a year, in each city of this state of over 50,000 inhabitants. To those who have passed a satisfactory examination are issued certificates authorizing them to practice horseshoeing. The fee for this certificate is two dollars, and before a person can be entitled to register as a master or journeyman horseshoer he shall file with the city clerk his certificate from the board of examiners.

INSPECTION OF STEAM BOILERS.

The law relating to the inspection of steam boilers defines its objects in the title to be "to provide for the better protection of life and property, by establishing a board of inspectors to inspect steam vessels and steam boilers, and provide for the licensing of engineers of steam engines and masters and pilots of steamboats on the inland waters of the State of Minnesota." An act of 1885, for the same purpose, had been in operation for four years, but limited to three districts. The duties of the inspectors were extended over so large a territory that they could not cover the field; hence the law of 1889, providing for five inspectors, and embodying in its provisions the additions to the law which four years' experience brought to view. Under this law no person can operate a steam engine without a license. No boat can be run on the inland waters of the state without an annual inspection by one of the state inspectors. The law does not apply to railroad locomotives, nor to engineers running locomotives, nor to boilers inspected by insurance companies through their authorized inspectors. The inspectors are compensated by the fees received. They make annual reports to the secretary of state. By an act approved March 22, 1899 (chapter 91, G. L. 1899), the number of districts is changed from five to seven.

NOTARIES PUBLIC.

These are appointed by the governor, for the term of seven years, upon the payment of a fee to the private secretary of three dollars, and the filing of a bond in the sum of $2,000. Each notary public must provide a seal, with the words "Notarial Seal" and the name of the county for which he is appointed engraved thereon. The bond is filed with the secretary of state, and the commission is recorded with the clerk of court. A notary public may administer oaths, take and certify depositions, acknowledgements of deeds, mortgages, liens, powers of attorney, and other instruments in writing, and make protests. The supreme court has decided that every signature of a notary must be attested by the impression of the seal.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

The legislature for the year 1899 is composed of sixty-three senators and one hundred and nineteen representatives. The legislature meets biennially, commencing on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January in oddnumbered years. The session is limited to ninety legislative days by constitutional amendment, adopted at the general election in 1888. The first legislature under this amendment remained in session for eighty days. The legislative term of representative is for two years and of senators for four years. The legislature has full power to make a new apportionment; and with the figures of the census of 1805 to keep the body within its present bounds, the representatives would be apportioned as one for every 13,800 inhabitants, and the senators as one for every 29,100 inhabitants. The compensation to members of the legislature is mileage at the rate of fifteen cents a mile for going to and returning from the capitol, and five dollars per day for the legislative session, computing by including the first and last days of the session and every intervening day. The session of 1899 commenced on the third day of January, and closed on the eighteenth day of April.

STATE LAWS.

The existing laws provide for 12,000 copies of the General Laws to be printed. Of the General Laws about 7,700 are distributed to state and county officers, leaving only about 4,500 for general distribution. The law authorizing the number to be printed was passed in 1893, being an increase of four thousand copies over act of 1874. The demand far exceeds the number printed.

PUBLICATION OF GENERAL LAWS IN NEWSPAPERS.

The early publication of laws in newspapers is for the purpose of giving information to the people as soon as possible after adjournment of the legislature. The printed volumes of laws are not ready for delivery until ninety days after the legislative sessions. The earlier publication of the laws by the newspapers is certified by the secretary of state. All legal newspapers of the state are used for such publication, and an appropriation of $40,000 is made therefor. The theory is that each newspaper prints the laws within its own columns. The practice for many years has been for private enterprise to print and furnish the laws in newspaper supplement form to all publishers, who give the same distribution by folding the supplement within their regular editions. The legislative appropriation, less cost of supplements, is divided pro rata, regardless of circulation, among all legal papers of the state.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

In addition to the provisions of the constitution relating to the manner of submitting constitutional amendments, the legislature (chapter 157 of the General Laws of 1887) has provided that the attorney general shall critically examine all proposed amendments, and prepare and furnish to the secretary of state, at least four months preceding any election, a synopsis thereof, containing the original article or section and the proposed amendment, and explaining the nature of the same.

The secretary of state is required to cause the same to be published in the newspapers at the capital, and in one newspaper in each county for three weeks immediately preceding such election. In addition to this public notice the secretary is obliged to forward to each county auditor at least six copies in handbill form for each polling place in the county.

STATE ELECTIONS.

The state elections are held on every even-numbered year, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. The official year commences on the first Monday in January, and the terms of office terminate at that time. Women may vote for school officers, and are eligible as school officers, county superintendents of schools, and to appointments as deputies by county officers, provided they are citizens of this state.

The election law passed by the legislature of 1891, brought the entire state under the so-called Australian system of voting at general elections.

The qualifications of electors are defined by article seven of the constitution. The following amendment to said article was adopted at the general election of 1896. Amending section one (1) of article seven (7) of the constitution of the State of Minnesota, so that the same shall read as follows:

"Section 1. What persons are entitled to vote.—Every male person of the age of twenty-one (21) years or upwards, belonging to either of the following classes, who has resided in this state six (6) months next preceding any election, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time have been for thirty (30) days a resident, for all officers that now are, or hereafter may be, elective by the people.

"First—Citizens of the United States who have been such for the period of three (3) months next preceding any election.

"Second—Persons of mixed white and Indian blood, who have adopted the customs and habits of civilization.

"Third—Persons of Indian blood residing in this state, who have adopted the language, customs and habits of civilization, after an examination before any district court of the state, in such manner as may be provided by law, and shall have been pronounced by said court capable of enjoying the rights of citizenship within the state."

LEGAL HOLIDAYS.

The legal holidays of the state, established by law, are: Lincoln's birthday, February 12th; Washington's birthday, February 22d; Memorial Day, May 30th; Labor Day, first Monday in September; and the general election day, the first Tuesday after the first Mcnday in November in even-numbered years. The statutes of the state indirectly recognize Sunday, New Year's day. Good Friday, Washington's birthday, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving day, and Christmas day (or the following day when either of the last fall on a Sunday) as legal holidays, by providing that maturing paper, bills of exchange, etc., falling due on those days shall be due and payable on the business day preceding. By an act approved March 3, 1899 (chapter 36, G. L. 1899), authorizes the governor to designate a holiday to be known as "Arbor and Bird Day."

FISCAL YEAR OF THE STATE.

The first legislative enactment designating the fiscal year of the state was in the adoption of chapter 40 of the General Laws of 1861, in section 7, relating to the time when official reports shall be made to the governor. Previous to that time the officials had closed their reports for the year ending November 30th, as had been the practice under the territorial government. The law of 1861 officially recognized December 1st as the commencement of the state fiscal year. This enactment remained in force until 1883, when (chapter 124, General Laws of 1883) it was provided that the fiscal year of all official reports should commence on the first day of August and close on the thirty-first day of July; except the reports of the insurance commissioner and commissioner of statistics, which are made for the calendar year.

GENERAL TAXES

become a lien upon real property from the first day of May of the year in which levied; but between grantor and grantee the lien does not attach until the next January. Tax sales by county auditor are made annually, on the first Monday in May, of the lands delinquent on the first of June of the previous year.

Payment of real estate taxes must be made on or before the first day of June for the taxes of the previous year. After that date a penalty of ten per cent immediately attaches, which penalty carries it through the remaining seven months of the year; at the expiration of that time, if still unpaid, the tax is deemed delinquent, and an additional five per cent will be added. If still unpaid, the property for which the tax is delinquent will be sold on the first Monday of May.

Chapter 54 of the General Laws of 1897 provides "That if one-half of the amount of the tax on any real estate shall be paid before the first day of June of each year, then no penalty shall be charged or collected on the one-half remaining unpaid; provided, such one-half remaining unpaid shall be paid before the first day of November of each year; but if said remaining one-half of said tax shall not be paid before said first day of November, then a penalty of ten per cent shall immediately accrue, and thereafter be charged upon the one-half of any such real estate tax remaining unpaid."

After the tax sale, the amount of the judgment against the property and for which it was sold draws interest at the rate of one per cent per month until redeemed, whether the same has been purchased or is bid in by the state.

The redemption period extends for three years, and until public notice of the time of expiration of such redemption has been made by the county auditor for three weeks in a county paper.

The holder of a tax certificate of sale, before he obtains absolute title, must, after the time of expiration has expired, present his certificate to the county auditor, who thereupon prepares a notice to be served upon the person in whose name the property was taxed at the time of delinquency, to be served by the sheriff in the usual manner of serving summons, and make returns to the county auditor. If not to be found in the county, notice is to be served on party in actual possession; if no person is in actual possession, then the county auditor must publish said notice for three weeks in a county paper; and no final transfer of the land can be made to the holder of the tax certificate until sixty days after such notice and the proof of service thereof.

THE RIGHT TO HOLD OFFICE.

Eligibility to hold office in this state is defined in section 7 of the constitution, which provides that any person entitled to vote may hold office. The limit of age does not apply, except for the offices of governor and lieutenant governor, where candidates must be over twenty-five years of age. Under the constitution of the United States a senator in congress must be thirty years of age, and nine years a citizen of the United States. A representative in congress must be twenty-five years of age, and seven years a citizen of the United States, if foreign born. Foreign born citizens will notice the difference in qualifications for offices within the state and for members of congress.

Under section II of chapter 6 of the state constitution judges of the supreme and district courts are prohibited from holding any other office; and all votes for either of them for any elective office under the constitution, except a judicial office given by the legislature or the people during their continuance in office, shall be void.

Section 9 of article 4 of the state constitution provides that no senator or representative of the state shall hold any other office under the state or United States, except that of postmaster, and that no state senator or representative shall hold an office under the state which has been created or the emoluments of which have been increased during the session of the legislature of which he was a member, until one year after the expiration of his term of office in the legislature.

Women may be elected county superintendents of schools or members of town school boards or boards of education. Under chapter 40 of the General Laws of 1891, females may be appointed deputies in county offices.

RIGHTS OF WOMEN.

The constitution of the State of Minnesota, when originally adopted, made no special distinction between the sexes, except as to the right to vote and to hold office. An amendment, adopted in 1875, however, gave the right to vote for school officers. The territorial legislature, as early as 1852, had taken advanced ground in the recognition of the rights of married women over those granted by the common law. The real and personal property owned by her before marriage remained in her own right, and any property that she might acquire during marriage, but subjected the sale of the property to the consent of the husband.

In 1869 the law of 1852 was superseded by the more liberal privilege or proviso that property in her own right might be conveyed direct and without intervention of trustee, from husband or otherwise, and the rents, profits and increase, and her wages, should be held by her for her sole and separate use; with the same rights and powers, the same remedies and obligations, with power to sue and be sued for any contract or wrong, the same as if unmarried. In 1887 another act was passed, which declared that a woman shall retain the same legal existence and legal personality after marriage as before marriage, and shall receive the same protection of all her rights as a woman which her husband does as a man; and for any injury sustained to her reputation, person, property, character, or any natural right, she shall have the same right to appeal, in her own name alone, to the court of law or equity for redress and protection, that her husband has to appear in his name alone; provided that the act shall not confer upon the wife the right to vote or hold office, except as is otherwise provided by law.

A widow is entitled to one-third of the property of her deceased husband by natural descent, unless she has previously assented in writing to a different division. A homestead goes direct to a widow without children. With children, the widow has a life interest in the homestead. As to personal property, a widow is entitled to the wearing apparel of her deceased husband; to household furniture not exceeding in value $500; other personal property not exceeding in value $500; and after a final settlement of the estate, if there is any personal property to divide, it follows the same division as real property.

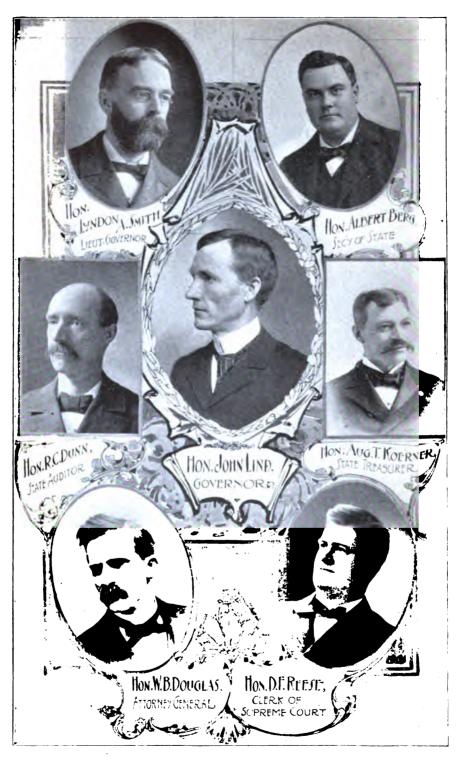

Women in order to vote must be naturalized, and alien women married to citizens are eligible to vote.

Divorces are adjudged and decreed by the district courts, on suit brought in the county where the parties, or either of them, reside. The complainant must have been a resident of the state at least one year immediately preceding the complaint. An action may be brought by a wife in her own name; and all actions must be commenced by summons and complaint in the county where the plaintiff resides. Pending the suit, the court may require the husband to pay any sum necessary for the wife to carry on or defend the suit, and for support during pendency.

POPULATION.

POPULATION OF MINNESOTA.

The figures used in the compilation of this department of the Manual have been obtained from the fourth decennial census of Minnesota, taken by the secretary of state June 1, 1895. From this census has been abstracted the population of the state in detail by counties, townships, cities, wards of cities and villages, as well as tables showing the various occupations, the nativity, legal voters, sex, color, etc., by counties; also, tables giving population by congressional and senatorial districts.

The population of the state is given at 1,574,619. The state census of 1885 returns as total population of state 1,117,798, thus the increase during the decade was 456,821, or 40.86 per cent. During the same period only one out of the eighty-one counties in the state shows a decrease.

The following summary gives in detail the population of each county according to the state census for years 1895 and 1885 and federal census for the years 1890 and 1880, together with increase (or decrease) in number:

POSTAGE RATES.

THE CLASSES OF MAIL MATTER.

Domestic mail matter is divided into four classes, as follows:

First Class—Letters, postal cards and matter wholly or partially in writing, whether sealed or unsealed (except manuscript copy accompanying proof-sheets or corrected proof-sheets of the same), and all matter sealed or otherwise closed against inspection.

Rates of Postage—Two cents per ounce or fraction thereof. Postal cards one cent each. On "drop" letters, two cents per ounce or fraction thereof, when mailed at letter- carrier's office; and one cent per ounce or fraction thereof at other offices.

Second Class—Newspapers and publications issued at stated intervals as often as four times a year, bearing a date of issue and numbered consecutively, issued from a known office of publication, and formed of printed sheets, without board, cloth, leather or other substantial binding. Such publications must be originated and published for the dissemination of information of a public character, or devoted to literature, the sciences, art or some special industry. They must have a legitimate list of subscribers, and must not be designed primarily for advertising purposes, or for free circulation at nominal rates.

Rate of Postage—On cent for each four ounces or fraction thereof, when sent by other than publishers.

Third Class—Books, circulars, periodicals and matter wholly in print (not included in second class), proof-sheets, corrected proof-sheets and manuscript copy accompanying the same.

Rate of Postage—One cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

Fourth Class—Merchandise, namely, all matter not embraced in the other three classes, and which is not in its form or nature liable to destroy, deface, or otherwise damage the contents of the mail bag, or harm the person of any one engaged in the postal service, and not above the weight provided by law.

Rates of Postage—One cent per ounce or fraction thereof, but on seeds, cuttings, roots, scions and plants, one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

THE LIMIT OF WEIGHT.

A package must not exceed four pounds in weight, unless it be a single book.

PAYMENT OF POSTAGE.

On first-class matter the postage should be fully prepaid; but if two cents in stamps be affixed, the matter will be forwarded and remainder due collected and addressed before delivery.

On second-class matter the postage must be fully prepaid. On third-class matter the postage must be fully prepaid. On fourth-class matter the postage must be fully prepaid.

WHAT MAY BE WRITTEN OR PRINTED ON MAIL MATTER.

Second Class—The name and address of persons to whom the matter is to be sent; index-figures of subscription book printed or written; printed title of publication; printed or written name or address, without advertisement of publisher or sender; written or printed words or figures, or both, indicating date upon which subscription ends; correction of typographical errors; a mark except by printed or written words to designate a word or passsage to which it is desired to call attention; the words, "sample copy"; publishers' or news agents' bills, receipts and orders for subscriptions, but the same shall convey no other information than the name, place of publication, subscription price, and amount of subscription due. The number of copies inclosed may be indicated on wrapper or face of package.

Third Class—Sender's name and address, with the word "from"; marks other than by written or printed words to call attention to word or passage; correction of typographical errors; on the blank leaves or cover of any book may be placed a simple manuscript dedication or inscription not like a personal correspondence; upon the address side of wrapper, envelope, tag or label must be left space sufficient for legible address and necessary stamps.

Fourth Class—With matter of this kind may be inclosed any mailable third-class matter. On wrapper, cover, tag or label may be written name and address of sender with word "from"; marks, numbers, names or letters for purposes of description, or same may be printed; any printed matter not in nature of a personal correspondence. On address side must be left space sufficient for legible address and necessary stamps.

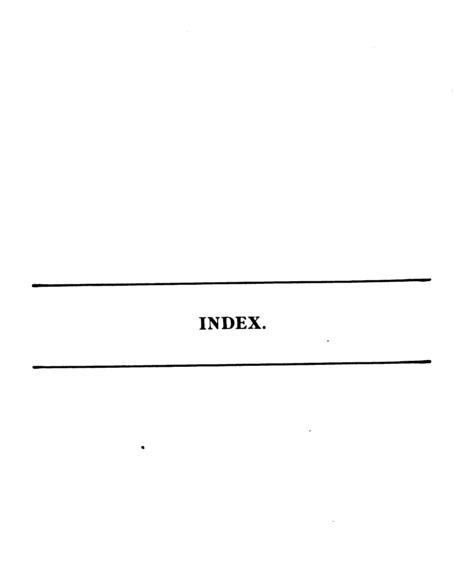

THE REGISTRY SYSTEM.

All mail matter, including drop letters, may be registered; but not matters addressed to fictitious names, initials or box numbers, or bearing vague and indefinite addresses. The registry fee is eight cents in addition to postage. It must be prepaid by stamps affixed.

THE POSTAL MONEY ORDER SYSTEM.
